PROGRESSIVES CALL FOR RADICAL LAWS; HOUSE FACES TIE-UP

BIG SPLIT ON CAUCUS EVE

DEMOCRATS AVOID A DEAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—With party caucuses on the organization of the new Congress set for tomorrow the program of the Republican leaders in the House was threatened with wreck tonight by the presentation of demands by the progressive group for legislation, coupled with an open declaration that the organization of the House would be blocked unless an agreement were reached.

Senate conflicts appeared to be postponed and the indications were that Cummins of Iowa, the President pro tem., would be permitted to continue in that position. This truce was obtained by Republican concessions to the Democrats of increased representation on important committees.

Just when President Coolidge will be able to make his address to Congress is not settled. The President, it is said, expects to appear on Wednesday, but if the situation is not arranged by that time this will be impossible, parliamentarians declare. Members of the progressive group in the House indicated that they would not object to an agreement by which the message could be heard, and that the organization fight could come up later. But it was asserted in other quarters that this would not be legal, the view being that Congress must be duly organized before the President can submit his annual communication.

Rights Centres on House Rules.

The program of the Progressive group in the House was framed in four days' behind closed doors. While the primary substances of this group will be on the liberalization of the House rules to prevent "gag" procedure, its demands cover tax revision and much other important legislation. One of their principal recommendations is for a soldier bonus raised through taxation of large incomes.

In an introduction to the statement, the progressives declared that legislative channels were now closed to constructive legislation under the present rules, and that they proposed to "free the people's Congress from control of the special interests." They also said:

"The progressives were sent to Congress by a people who reduced the Republican majority in the House from 169 to 17. That is interpreted to be a repudiation of the control of Congress as it then stood because of the failure of the last Congress to enact constructive legislation in the interest of the whole people."

Demands of the Progressives.

The program of legislation demanded, as framed by the Progressives, is:

"1. Farm relief measures, preferably by the repeal of special interest legislation and the elimination of gamblers in necessities of life, also by a more scientific method of marketing and distribution in the interest of producer and consumer.

"2. A child labor amendment to the Constitution.

"3. Aid for disabled veterans and adjusted compensation for veterans of the World War, to be raised mainly by a tax on large incomes and excess profits, and an increased inheritance tax. All other nations have paid their soldiers adjusted compensation.

"4. Repeal or amendment of the so-called Esch-Cummins Railway Act, so as to secure lower freight rates and to eliminate guaranteed dividends to favored classes.

"5. Government control of necessities of life, when necessary, to prevent profiteering in coal, oil, sugar and other necessities.

"6. Congressional prevention of the usurpation of autocratic power by the courts in injunctions, contempt cases and attempted legislative functions by the judiciary.

"7. Uniform Presidential primaries.

"8. We favor the elimination of all profits arising from the private manufacture of war materials. In the event of war necessitating the conscription of man-power, capital and industry are also to be conscripted.

"9. Abolition of tax-exempt securities.

Tax Program Is Offered.

"11. Equalization of taxes by the following:

(a) Reduction of 25 per cent. in the tax on earned income;

(b) Reduction of the present normal tax of 4 per cent. to 2 per cent., and the normal tax of 8 per cent. to 4 per cent., which is one-half the present rate;

(c) Maintenance of the surtaxes at the present level of 50 per cent. maximum;

(d) Limitation of capital losses to 25% per cent. of the loss;

(e) Limiting of deductions from gross incomes for interest paid and for losses not of a business character;

(f) Adoption of the British and for-

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—With the completion of his annual message to Congress, President Coolidge, about whose taciturnity much has been written and said since he took office, appears to have lifted much of the weight of office from his shoulders. Those who saw him at the White House today remarked his good color, cheerful disposition and observed that he appeared as "fit as a fiddle" physically.

The President's good cheer was very evident to Secretary Slemp. "The President is in fine spirits," Mr. Slemp told a caller. "With the writing of his message to Congress completed and a good day of rest—which he had on Thanksgiving Day—behind him, the President is most chatty."

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 30.—The second statue of King Tut-ankh-Amen was transported this morning to the laboratory. The procedure described yesterday in connection with the first statue was again followed in preparing and handling this figure, and the work of removal was carried out most satisfactorily.

The preparatory work inside the tomb has now been completed and everything is ready for the demolition of the partition wall, which is the first decisive step to be taken toward the solution of the mystery of Tut-ankh-Amen's shrines. The demolition will start tomorrow and how long this will take it is difficult to say at present. Preliminary operations have occupied a considerable time owing on the one hand to the need of extensive recording and on the other hand, as already explained, to the confined space which makes it very difficult to work quickly.

An excavator is expected to give particular care to the removal of all objects found, but the most important obligation that is laid on him is to note all the data that can be derived from a discovery. Not only must he make a complete description of the chambers and their contents, but he must also carefully record the position of each object and its relation to its neighbors. Often a little detail in this respect may turn out to be important and bear on the general information obtained from the discovery.

Co-ordination of Data Vital.

Co-ordination of data can, however, in most cases only be made some time after the discovery has been dealt with "in the field," and unless every possible fact is annotated while the object is in situ, there is the risk that it may be found only when it is too late that important data which had been available are lacking to complete the story.

Moreover, the contents of tombs like that of Tut-ankh-Amen are in a somewhat fragile condition, and it might easily happen that at a touch a valuable object might fall to pieces or, even worse, crumble to dust. This is another reason why before anything is moved the fullest possible details must be noted and photographs taken, giving a complete record of each object. Indeed the omission to make such records has sometimes in the past been the cause of the loss of valuable historical and other data.

It should be mentioned here that in view of the importance of the discovery the work of recording in Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb is being carried out on more comprehensive and scientific lines than ever before had been attempted, and no scrap of data which might serve as evidence is being omitted.

But a further reason why the preliminary operations have occupied so much time has been the problem of the removal of the shrines. They are so large compared with the whole tomb that no attempt could be made to devise any plan of dealing with them until complete measurements of the walls and passages and the shrines themselves were available.

The experience gained last season in bringing out the sides of the ceremonial

COOLIDGE DECIDES HE HAS THE POWER TO PARDON CRAIG

Action by the President Now Considered a Certainty in Washington.

AWAITS DAUGHERTY RULING

HAYWARD GIVES FACTS

Makes No Recommendation as to a Pardon—Possibility of Commutation Discussed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—While no official announcement has been made regarding the action President Coolidge will take, the granting of a pardon to Controller Craig became a virtual certainty today when it was learned at the White House that the President is of the opinion that he has the right to extend clemency in a contempt case in the category of that of Craig.

There is no doubt that the President will pardon Craig unless advised by his Attorney General that such action would be beyond the President's constitutional powers. A spokesman for the President, in reviewing the circumstances of the case today, went into the civil and criminal aspects of contempt proceedings. In behalf of the President, he expressed the belief that the right of Executive clemency did not extend to contempt cases of civil nature, but that in criminal contempt it was within the Presidential prerogative to grant a pardon.

A study of the Craig case, it was stated at the White House today, has convinced the President that it was a proceeding under criminal contempt, and this makes it more plain that the President can act.

Meantime, it was stated at the White House that the case is still in the hands of the Attorney General and no action will be taken by the President until the Attorney General's report has been received.

Mayer Sends His Views.

Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer and Colonel William Hayward, United States District Attorney, sent communications to the Department of Justice at Washington yesterday in regard to the proposed Presidential pardon for Controller Charles L. Craig. Judge Mayer and Colonel Hayward did not meet in conference on the matter, as had been expected, and did not even consult each other in regard to their replies.

Colonel Hayward's reply consisted in furnishing data on the case and was without any recommendation for or against a pardon. According to Colonel Hayward, the data were furnished in a telephone communication to the department. Colonel Hayward was not United States District Attorney when the contempt proceedings were instituted, and that is understood to have been the reason why he did not feel called upon to make any recommendation.

Francis G. Caffey, a Democrat, was United States District Attorney at that time, and his assistant, who prepared the case against Mr. Craig, was Benjamin A. Matthews. The view was expressed in Colonel Hayward's office that either or both these men might be asked for an opinion if the Washington authorities felt that one from a prosecuting official was necessary.

No information could be obtained as to the tenor of Judge Mayer's reply. Judge Mayer was understood to feel that the proprieties of the case prevented him from even discussing the matter with friends.

The feeling among his friends, however, was that Judge Mayer's letter to the Department of Justice, which it was presumed would be presented at least in substance to the President, would constitute a complete reply to allegations made by Mr. Craig and his friends and would show that from Judge Mayer's viewpoint Mr. Craig was not adjudged guilty of contempt because of criticism of the Judge, but because he made alleged false statements concerning the Court.

The failure of Colonel Hayward and Judge Mayer to confer with each other did not indicate, it was said, that the two officials were antagonistic, because the fact is that they are old and close friends. Each understood, it was said, that the Department of Justice was seeking information and possibly a suggestion from each and not a duplicate opinion in which each would concur with the other with possible mental reservations.

Controller Craig, who went to his

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 30.—Martha Mansfield, leading woman in "The Warrens of Virginia," being filmed here, died today noon from burns suffered yesterday when a smoker's match ignited her Civil War costume of billowing hoopskirts and filmsy ruffles. She had just finished her scenes and had retired to an automobile, when her clothing suddenly burst into flames.

As Miss Mansfield jumped from the car men in the cast came to her rescue. Wilfred Lytell, leading man, threw his heavy overcoat over her, thus saving her face and neck. The fire was extinguished, but she received severe burns about the body.

She was rushed to a hospital, where she died less than twenty-four hours later, though announcement was given out late Thanksgiving Day by Elmer Clifton, director of the company, that her condition was not serious.

Miss Mansfield was born 23 years ago in Mansfield, Ohio, and was reared in New York, where her mother now lives. Accompanied by Philip Shorey, a member of the cast, her body will be sent to New York tomorrow, at the request of her mother.

Since her entrance into moving pictures Miss Mansfield has appeared opposite some of the leading actors. She also had played on the vaudeville stage.

She first gained prominence in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," in which John Barrymore starred. She appeared with Eugene O'Brien in "The Perfect Lover." Recently she was seen in "Potash and Perlmutter." She was playing the part of Agatha Warren in the picture being filmed here.

Police Department Lifts The Embargo on Vacations

Police Captains were notified yesterday that, beginning today, members of their commands entitled to vacations would be permitted to take them. This modified the order issued canceling all vacations during the emergency crime situation.

Yesterday's order was made so that policemen who had not taken their vacations would get them during the calendar year, so that they might be paid during their vacations out of the budget for 1923.

The extra patrol hours will continue for those remaining on duty.

REAL BANK SLAYERS CAUGHT, POLICE VIEW

2 GANGSTERS DIE IN CRASH

Within two days of the slaying on Nov. 14 of William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, employes of the West End Bank, and the theft of $43,607 of bank funds, detectives had shadowed Barlow Morris Diamond and his brother, Joseph G. Diamond, wanted for the crime, but withheld arrest so that others of the gang might be captured.

This was made known yesterday by the police, who narrated in some detail the methods of the 100 or more detectives on the case. It was also made evident that neither the police nor District Attorney Dodd of Kings County had accepted the stories of the Diamond brothers that they were not the actual slayers. On the contrary, District Attorney Dodd admitted that it was not unlikely that the men who did the shooting were in the group of eight now in custody.

Nevertheless, the search for three men named by the Diamonds as the actual murderers was continued. Detectives are working in and near Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, Toronto and Montreal as centres in the search.

Whether these men are caught in the next several days or are still at large next week, the prosecutor plans to bring the case next week before the Kings County Grand Jury. Indictments for murder in the first degree and robbery will be asked against the Diamonds and Anthony Pantano, former clerk of the West End Bank, who confessed he originated the plot. It is likely that certain of the others now held as material witnesses—William Fried, Nicholas Luciano, Edward Capobianco, Michael Mezzano and Angelo Farini will be accused also.

Joseph Diamond Was in Cleveland.

The police announced yesterday that they had established that Joseph Diamond was the "Mr. Schwartz" who accompanied Barlow Diamond to the Cleveland Trust Company Nov. 22 when the latter rented a safe deposit box and left $9,000 of the stolen money. Raymond Cordner, a teller of the bank, yesterday identified in Cleveland a photograph of Joseph Diamond as that of Barlow Diamond's companion in the visit to the safe deposit vault.

Cordner said that on Nov. 22 Joseph Diamond handed him $1,097 in $5 and $1 bills, asking that they be changed into $50, $100 and $500 bills. To make up $1,700, Joseph handed over a $10 bill, saying, "Keep the change." Later in the day, said Cordner, Joseph turned in $3,000 in $5 bills, changing them to $10 bills. This time he gave $5 as a tip. In relating this incident the police said that the Diamond brothers received at least one-third of the loot, though Barlow Diamond said he was given only $9,300 and was "trimmed" out of a promised larger share by the three men now sought.

Barlow Diamond said that his purpose in going to Cleveland was to find these three men. The police said yesterday that one of the three fugitives had been sought for two other murders. The three, it was said at headquarters, comprised a gang who would not undertake a holdup unless the proceeds were likely to be at least $5,000. That was their rock-bottom figure.

On the possibility that the three fugitives were still in New York, Barlow ("Whitey") Diamond was asked yesterday to accompany detectives on a search of places the three had frequented. The prisoner declined, saying the men would shoot rather than permit themselves to be captured.

"Are you sure that two of the three missing men did the shooting or do you believe you have the actual murderers in custody?" District Attorney Dodd was asked.

"I am not certain the missing men did the actual shooting," replied the Prosecutor. "We have one witness who says he saw Joseph Diamond near the elevated station a few minutes before the crime. We have another who says he saw Joseph shoot one of the messengers on the elevated station stairway. I also doubt Luciano's story that he did not participate in the robbery conference in the Williamsbridge Road house in the Bronx on Nov. 12."

It was learned that Joseph Diamond's fingerprints, as well as those of his brother, were found on the abandoned sedan and were compared with records at Police Headquarters. Both brothers had been fingerprinted in 1922 when arrested in Brooklyn for a hold-up. In this case the Grand Jury failed to indict them.

E. H. GARY WARNS CONGRESS AGAINST FALSE GENEROSITY

URGES TAX REDUCTION

Extortionate Levies Threaten Prosperity; Business in Danger of Breaking, He Says.

COST OF LIVING TOO HIGH

Questioned in Town Hall, Says He Once Was For League, Is Now Against It.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, in a speech on "Generosity" before members of the League for Political Education and the Civic Forum in the Town Hall last night, strongly opposed any cancellation or reduction of the allied debts to the United States. He condemned the proposed soldiers' bonus and the appropriation of money by Congress for extravagant schemes. Making a distinction between real and false generosity, he warned Congress, when it comes to consider the bonus, allied debts and similar questions, not to be too generous with the taxpayers' money.

Judge Gary urged legislation for the reduction of taxation, charging that taxes had become burdensome almost to the point of business depression. Business was in danger of breaking and national prosperity was threatened by extortionate taxation, he maintained. He called on Congress for economy in Government expenditures and on producers, tradesmen and workmen for co-operation to reduce prices and lower the cost of living.

At the end of his address Judge Gary agreed to answer questions put by the audience according to town meeting custom. In reply to a question by Robert Erskine Ely, temporary Chairman of the meeting, as to what he thought of President Wilson's Armistice Day statement that the United States had played a cowardly part in world affairs since the armistice, Mr. Gary declared that the United States never had and never would play the coward.

Now Against the League.

He announced that he was once in favor of the League of Nations, but was now against it, and believed that most Americans were against it, on the ground that our entrance into the League would subject us to the dominance and control of other nations.

In answer to another question Judge Gary said he was convinced that all the debtor nations could pay their debts to us in time, and that they were much more prosperous than their spokesmen pretended. He quoted travelers and foreigners, withholding their names in respect for confidences, who have told him that people abroad are better off than many of us believe.

Another question brought the answer that Secretary of State Hughes has done everything possible to show Europe that we are willing to help them straighten out their tangled affairs and that we should refrain from doing more on the principle that we should not go where we are not wanted. He declined to give his opinion on the World Court on the ground that the question of whether we could get a fair hearing in a court organized and sitting in Europe was still a burning question among President Coolidge, Secretary Hughes and other American statesmen, and that it would not be proper for him to express his views.

Judge Gary's Address.

Judge Gary's formal address follows:

"This is the annual Thanksgiving season. The citizens of the United States have reason for being especially grateful this year. To quote from an editorial writer who ranks with the very highest in the world: 'We have one hundred and ten millions of people living at peace in forty-eight different States, all trading freely, back and forth, from ocean to ocean. While other nations lack food and raw materials, our problem is to get rid of our surplus on a profitable basis. We haven't even begun to scratch the wealth of this country. Wages are higher than they ever were before; prosperity is greater; there is more money to be spent.'

"We have no wars, no revolutions, no uncontrollable plagues, no impending earthquakes, floods or other physical disasters, no political, social or religious upheavals, no threatening financial, commercial or industrial cyclones, no enormous disturbances, natural or unnatural.

"It is meet and becoming for all of us to acknowledge with feelings of deepest gratitude the many kindnesses bestowed by an all-wise and merciful Providence, largely undeserved. It is natural and easy to give expression to these thoughts at least once during the year; but there must be more than mere verbal declarations if our acknowledgment is intended to reach the 'Giver of all Good.' There must be exhibited, throughout the year, and so long as we are permitted to live, a spirit of liberality toward others, to be measured by our capabilities and duties, depending upon all our obligations and responsibilities combined.

"The observations made lead us to a brief discussion of questions pertaining to generosity—a liberality on our part contributing to the welfare of others. Real, true generosity toward others should go hand in hand with gratitude for what we have received. We are not sufficiently informed of all the facts to intelligently pass judgment on the act of the widow who gave her two mites or one farthing, which was all she had at the time. If by so doing she did not deprive others, whom she was obligated to support, of the necessities of life, it may

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Since the Crown Prince arrived at Oels certain facts have leaked out that make him appear anything but the harmless victim of circumstance, as those who are responsible for his return from exile would have him appear. From a man who saw a great deal of the Crown Prince during his return trip that lasted fully four days THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent hears the Crown Prince met many well-known officers of high rank at various points with whom he discussed the political situation in a manner that left no doubt he was highly interested. Indeed, he said on one occasion that nobody could expect him to sit still and look on while Germany was going to pieces.

Once when the green police were discussed the Crown Prince expressed disgust with their discipline. He was told that 90 per cent. of this green police were loyal Republicans, whereupon he remarked: "Twenty thousand men of the kind I would select should be sufficient to wipe the whole machinery of this republic off the map of Germany."

From another source the correspondent hears that Kaiser Wilhem's disapproval of the Crown Prince's return is due mainly to the knowledge that the latter was trying to play the part in German politics that the Kaiser had reserved for himself. The premature development of the Munich putsch, too, is said to have been due to the fact that Ludendorff feared the Crown Prince's return might interfere with his own dictatorial plans.

British Say Reparation Total Might Be Considered—Entente Co-operation Revived.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Relations between England and France took on a distinctly brighter tone today when the Reparation Commission let lie the thorny question of the legality of the Ruhr occupation and at the same time adopted the French project for naming experts to study the German financial situation. Just as the allied decision on military control in Germany ten days ago represented French concessions to maintain the Entente, today's developments mark British concessions for the same purpose. Regarding the Ruhr occupation as illegal, the British declined the invitation to say so again, and, regarding the committee of experts as useless under Poincaré's restrictions, they voted for it today.

Transactions of ten days ago and of today certainly show the spirit of the two great Allies to get back together. Skeptics here say London's attitude signifies a desire to avoid foreign complications on the eve of the election. Whether that be true, time surely will tell.

The Reparation Commission decided today to name two committees of experts from representatives of the allied powers, with a place for America on each. The experts will not touch the amount of reparations and will not even discuss German payments for three or six years to come.

Committee No. 1 will be charged with seeking ways and means to balance the German budget and measures to stabilize her currency. Committee No. 2 will be to seek an evaluation of German wealth held abroad and the means of getting it back to Germany. The committees are to be named by the Reparation Commission under Article 234 of the Treaty of Versailles.

Study of Capacity to Pay Dropped.

The French proposal, made last week, provided that experts should study Germany's capacity for payments in the next three years. The reasons for dropping this plan are twofold. In the first place it is obvious Germany can pay little or nothing in the next three years, and, in the second place, the discussion of what she could pay would bring up the issue of the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr, which English wishes not to raise for the time being and which the French naturally are willing to let lie.

So, as it stands, the experts will have nothing to do directly with either the yearly amounts or the total of what Germany should pay, but will touch on two angles only of the general situation.

When the proposal was originally made Sir John Bradbury, British member of the Reparation Commission, called it a pill prescribed for an earthquake. But after his trip to London and his talk with Premier Baldwin, Sir John apparently sees reasons for adopting it—reasons perhaps more political than material.

Sir John said tonight he hoped America would take part in the proposed inquiry and predicted that without American co-operation it would amount to nothing. Probably he referred to the fact that a good deal of German exported wealth is in New York and it would do little good to unearth it in London if there is nothing to prevent its flight to the United States.

The British have never thought much of the French plan to seek German capital abroad, doubting it could be found because of many means of concealing the real depositors and because they doubt, if found, the money could be got back to Germany in the present circumstances and not until conditions are such in Germany as to attract it back.

The English wanted a German member on the committee of experts, but gave in before French opposition, it being M. Barthou's position the Germans could be called before the experts to give testimony and should not sit on the body

WEEKS DEFENDS COST OF OUR ARMY

FOR RAISING TO 150,000 MEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The answer of the Coolidge Administration to pacifists who would still further decrease the cost of the army, "already cut below our vital needs," is given in the annual report of Secretary Weeks, just submitted to the President.

The report is devoted to an economic analysis of the national defense and is intended as a direct reply to criticisms of American defensive measures during the past year on the basis of their cost. It challenges those who have been engaged in propaganda against the army on the ground that it costs too much and that the nation cannot afford and does not need as large an army as the budget estimates contemplate.

Secretary Weeks asserts that the army, navy and Marine Corps combined cost only 14 per cent. of the Federal budget; that the army alone takes only 6 per cent. of Federal costs; that if each taxpayer "purchased each year for his own protection any army automatic pistol the total expenditure would be more than the cost of the army"; that the Government maintains only one soldier for each $2,500,000,000 of the $400,000,000,000 of national wealth, and that each citizen contributes at the rate of less than $2.50 annually for "his or her share of this common security."

"In one year we spend six times as much for soda and confections as we spend for military purposes, for tobacco nearly four times, for perfumery, jewelry and other items of adornment nearly five times, and for theatres, cabarets and similar amusements more than three times," says Mr. Weeks. "Military preparations cost us, roughly, one-eighteenth of what we spend for luxuries, amusements and mild vices.

Compares Protection and Luxuries.

"By way of analogy, if we suppose that a citizen maintains his household for $250 per month in an unorganized community with no superior Government and no municipal police, what could he afford for protection? If he spends $50 per month for luxuries and amusements such as the above, could he afford to spend $3 per month for the protection of his household and his wealth? The question is almost ludicrous. He could afford to spend, if necessary, at least twenty times as much.

"The analogy is a fair one. No one can reasonably pretend that we spend more than an extremely small proportionate amount for the national defense. We, too, could afford to spend many times what we do."

Pointing out that since 1921 the number of persons under military training or in military organizations in this country had decreased from 519,041 to 504,010, Mr. Weeks advises "strongly against the slightest cutting of the budget as submitted to Congress."

"We are already cut below our vital needs," says Mr. Weeks. "I am convinced that our people as a whole are in accord with the constructive policy under which we are endeavoring to operate. I believe they will deeply approve the constructive statesmanship which demands that this policy be fulfilled even at the expense of the natural complaints on the part of the taxpayers. Americans have before now proved their willingness to 'give until it hurts.' They should now be encouraged to pay the moderate amount needed, since the failure would mean that they would pay many times more in money and in lives in the future."

Mr. Weeks points out that in the last fiscal year $350,750,283 was appropriated for the departments concerned with national defense—$340,984,122 for the War Department, and of this latter only $237,615,470 for military purposes.

"These are tremendous sums," says Mr. Weeks, "but ours is a great nation. The total Federal budget for this period

We Will Aid All Humanitarian Efforts, the Secretary Says.

BACKS POLITICAL ISOLATION

He Calls It "Better to Bear Its Evils Than Sacrifice Our Independent Position."

SUPPORTS FRENCH SECURITY

But Says We Do Not Want the Prostration of a Vanquished People.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—American foreign policy today, whether with relation to conditions in Europe, Latin America or the Pacific, squares consistently with the Monroe Doctrine, Secretary Hughes said in an address here tonight before the American Academy of Political and Social Science, gathered in celebration of the centenary of the Doctrine.

With that declaration as his text, the Secretary delivered a comprehensive restatement of the position of the United States toward the European tangle, the Far East and Latin America. He said the American nation would rather bear such ills as might result from its present policy toward Europe than "suffer the greater evils which would follow the sacrifice of our independent position." He reasserted the adherence of this Government to the principles of peace in the Pacific laid down by the Arms Conference and set forth nine propositions which he said should govern relations with the other powers in the Western Hemisphere.

All of these policies, Mr. Hughes declared, accorded entirely with the Monroe Doctrine, which "remains an essential policy to be applied whenever any exigency may arise requiring its application."

"It would not be entirely correct," he continued, "to say that the Doctrine is merely negative. * * * The Doctrine is a principle of exclusion. Both with reference to the declaration as to non-intervention and to that as to extension of territorial control, it aims directly at the exclusion of interposition by non-American powers. * * * The principle of exclusion embodies a policy of self-defense on the part of the United States; it is a policy set up and applied by the United States."

Wants Peace in Europe.

Taking up the relationship between American policy toward Europe and the Monroe Doctrine, he said:

"We entered the great war, not violating our tradition, for the cause of liberty itself was at stake. We have emerged from the war with the same general aims that we had before we went in. Though victors, we have sought neither territory nor general reparations. Our people have borne their own burdens and in large part we are bearing the burdens of others.

"We are not seeking to dictate to Europe or to deprive any one of rights. But we do desire peace and economic recuperation in Europe."

The Secretary thus summed up our attitude on foreign affairs:

"Generally, our policies toward Europe may thus be summarized: We are still opposed to alliances. We refuse to commit ourselves in advance with respect to the employment of the power of the United States in unknown contingencies. We reserve our judgment to act upon occasion as our sense of duty permits. We are opposed to discriminations against our nationals. We ask fair and equal opportunities in mandated territories, as they were acquired by the Allies through our aid. We desire to co-operate according to our historic policy in the peaceful settlement of international disputes, which embraces the policy of judicial settlement of such questions as are justiciable. It is our purpose to co-operate in those varied humanitarian efforts which aim to minimize or prevent those evils which can be met adequately only by community of action.

"In short, our co-operation as an independent State in the furtherance of the aims of peace and justice has always been and still is a distinctive feature of our policy."

Policy in the Pacific.

So far as the Pacific and Far East were concerned, Mr. Hughes said, the United States had developed "the policies of (1) the open door, (2) the maintenance of the integrity of China, (3) co-operation with other powers in the declaration of common principles, (4) co-operation with other powers by conference and consultation in the interests of peace, (5) limitation of naval armament and (6) the limitation of fortifications and naval bases." He declared all these, also, were entirely consistent with the policy of Monroe.

Nine "affirmative policies" of the United States were enumerated by the Secretary as a "fitting complement" to the Monroe Doctrine. These included recognition, the equality of the American republics and their equal rights under the law of nations, application to any policy of intervention by any one and willingness to help always to promote the stability of the sister republics.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS.

Mr. Hughes's address was as follows:

"Foreign policies are not built upon abstractions. They are the result of practical conceptions of national interest arising from some immediate exigency or standing out vividly in historical perspective. When long maintained, they express the hopes and fears, the aims of security or aggrandizement, which have become dominant in the national consciousness and thus transcend party divisions and make negligible such opposition as may come from particular groups. They inevitably control the machinery of international accord, which works only within the narrow field not affected by divergent national ambitions, or an interest yields to apprehension or obtains compensation through give and take.

"Statesmen who carry the burdens of empire do not for a moment lose sight of imperial purposes and requirements. When a balance of power is deemed essential to national security you cannot conjure it away by any form of words. The best of diplomatic instruments, the conference, has no magical potency to dispose of these strongly held national convictions.

"We are fortunate in our detachment from many difficulties and dangers which oppress the imagination of other peoples, but we should resist the temptation to indulge in self-praise. When we have a clear sense of our own interests we are just as inflexible as others.

"The great advantage we have had is that, coming to independence in a world afflicted with the long rivalries of military powers, the traditions of conquest, and the dreams of empire, we sought simply the assurance of freedom, and our national instinct has been opposed to aggression and intervention.

"The Monroe Doctrine was the embodiment of this sentiment. Through the one hundred years since its announcement, despite the strife of parties and opposing convictions as to domestic issues, it has been a unifying principle, contributing not only to our security and peace but to our dignity and prestige as a power capable of thus asserting and maintaining a vigorous independent policy. The attitude of American statesmen toward this doctrine, with few exceptions, has been that expressed in the familiar words of Daniel Webster: 'I look on the message of December, 1823, as forming a bright page in our history. I will neither help to erase it nor tear it out; nor shall it be by any act of mine blurred or blotted.'

Early Averse to Entanglements.

"The anxiety to escape the toils of European politics and intrigues was early manifested. John Adams in 1782 wrote in his diary:

'You are afraid,' says Mr. Oswald today, 'of being made the tools of the powers of Europe.' 'Indeed I am,' says I. 'What powers?' said he. 'All of them,' said I. 'It is obvious that all the powers of Europe will be continually maneuvering with us to work us into their real or imaginary balances of power. * * * Indeed it is not surprising; for we shall very soon be able to turn the balance of the scale. But I think it ought to be our rule not to meddle.'

"We were not isolated and could not be. The European powers were at our doors; their conflicts had embroiled the New World from the beginning. There was no chance for a permanent detachment from their dealings with these powers, whose rivalries menaced our peace, but upon what basis should these dealings be had? We had the choice of seeking the security of alliances or the more difficult course of maintaining independence. With splendid courage no less than with profound wisdom the Fathers chose the latter course, at once conserving our safety and enhancing our influence. It was for the nation, and not for the party, of a nation conscious of the promise of its influence as a world power.

"This was the admonition of the Farewell Address: Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. * * * The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, and have with them as little political connection as possible. * * * Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence, she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships, or enmities. * * * Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, or caprice?

"Non-participation, interest dictated abstention from participation in European politics, so it also required that the machinations of foreign powers should not have increased opportunity here, and where the independence acted by the Spanish colonies in this hemisphere was threatened by the imposing combination of European sovereigns, styled the Holy Alliance, this correlative policy found emphatic expression in Monroe's message.

"'We should consider,' said he, 'any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and have maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States.'

"And on the same occasion, in response to Russian pretensions, it was announced with equal emphasis 'that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers.'

What the Doctrine Means Today.

"These are the two points of the Monroe Doctrine. The most significant circumstance connected with the form of the declaration of the non-intervention principle was that it was made by the United States alone. The British Foreign Secretary, George Canning, had proposed a joint declaration with Great Britain, and this was favored by both Jefferson and Madison. But, with the advice of John Quincy Adams, and in view of the fact that Great Britain had not recognized the new republics, Monroe decided upon a separate declaration as our sole responsibility and joined with it the statement of the non-colonization principle, which not only had not been suggested by Canning, but was wholly opposed to his views.

"It is not my intention to repeat what I have said in a recent address with respect to the Doctrine, but rather, remembering the event, to inquire as to its place in the international policies of the United States as a world power in the twentieth century with respect to the regions of the Pacific Ocean and the Far East as Europe and its dependencies, one hundred years, there should be no hesitancy in declaring what we mean by the Monroe Doctrine, and this, despite those critics who seek to disparage it by professing to be unable to understand it, and those followers of a new era who would thereby indicate that their zealous support was in a convenient warrant for any sort of action they may favor in this part of the world, is, after all, not a very difficult task.

"In the original declaration there were, as I have said, two points stating the opposition of this Government. First, to any action by European powers to extend their systems to this hemisphere, or to any interposition by them for the purpose of oppressing or controlling the destiny of the new American Republics and, second, to the future colonization by European powers of the American continents.

"In all that has been said or done since the declaration of Monroe it can be regarded as modified in only two particulars. What was said with Europe exclusively in view must be deemed equally applicable to all non-American powers; and the opposition to the extension of colonization was not dependent upon the particular method of securing territorial control, and, at least since Polk's time, may be deemed to embrace opposition to acquisition of additional territory through transfer of dominion or sovereignty.

"Neither of these modifications changes the Doctrine in its essentials, and it may thus be summarized, as I have elsewhere stated, as being opposed (1) to any non-American action encroaching upon the political independence of American States under any guise, and (2) to the acquisition in any manner of the control of additional territory in this hemisphere by any non-American power.

"How does the Doctrine thus defined stand in the present scheme of American policy? And by that I do not mean the proposals of any party or group, but those principles and aims which have been supported either by definite action of the executive withthis authority or of the treaty-making power, or by a sentiment so preponderant and long cherished that it may be called the opinion of the country. The changes of one hundred years in population, extent of territory, and developed resources, and our military potency are obvious enough and need no recital. But have the changes altered our policy, or has it become inconsistent with the Doctrine?

Our Attitude Toward Asia.

"In relation to the Pacific Ocean and the Far East we have developed the policies of (1) the open door, (2) the maintenance of the integrity of China, (3) co-operation with other powers by the declaration of common principles, (4) co-operation with other powers by conference and consultation in the interests of peace, (5) limitation of naval armament, and (6) the limitation of fortifications and naval bases.

"The Empress of China, fitted out by Robert Morris and others, sailed to Canton in 1784, and by the year 1805 thirty-seven American vessels cleared for that port. In 1843 Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, instructing Caleb Cushing as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to China, said: 'You will signify, in decided terms and a positive manner, that the Government of the United States would find it impossible to remain on terms of friendship and regard with the Emperor if greater privilege or commercial facilities should be allowed to the subjects of any other Government than should be granted to citizens of the United States.'

"Most-favored-nation treatment was secured in the Treaty of 1844, with respect to which Caleb Cushing said:

"'Thus, whatever the precise effect the Government makes in opening this vast empire to the influence of foreign commerce, is for the common good of each other and of all Christendom.'

"Thus was laid the foundation for the policy of the open door, or equality of opportunity. When the great powers took advantage of the weakness of China to obtain spheres of interest in order to facilitate exploitation and to restrict free commercial intercourse, this Government, through Secretary Hay, sought to establish by international accord the principle of the open door, and with this to obtain the recognition and preservation of the territorial and administrative integrity of China.

"These many obstacles, caused by the disregard of professions and the desire to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by the progressive disintegration of China, this Government continued earnestly to press these principles, and at the recent Washington conference the postulates of American policy were taken out of the unsatisfactory form of diplomatic notes and with a more adequate and explicit statement were incorporated into a solemn international agreement, signed by the nine powers especially interested in the Far East. This treaty has been ratified by all but one of these powers, and it is hoped that ratification by that power will not be long deferred.

Open Door More Firmly Established.

"While the diplomatic exchanges between the powers, in which the open door policy was fully accepted, were not, of course, satisfactory and later became largely ineffective, they were so strongly supported by public opinion in this country as to make it clear that while we eschewed alliances we were ready to join in declarations of common principles where this method of co-operation would supply the best means of attaining the desired object. This was again illustrated by the resolutions adopted at the Washington conference.

"Again, through the four-power treaty between the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan, which is to continue for ten years and thereafter subject to termination on twelve months' notice, we have established another form of co-operation with regard to insular possessions and insular dominions in the region of the Pacific Ocean.

"It is provided that if any controversy arises between any of the parties out of the Pacific question which cannot be settled by diplomacy, with regard to their rights in relation to these possessions and dominions, they shall invite the other parties to the treaty to a joint conference to which the whole subject will be referred for consideration and adjustment.

"Also, if the rights sought to be safeguarded by the treaty are threatened by the aggressive action of any other power, the parties shall communicate with one another fully and frankly in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly or separately, to meet the exigencies of the particular situation.

"In giving assent to this treaty the United States Senate made the reservation, which in no sense departed from the intent of the treaty, that it should not be regarded as a commitment to armed force, or alliance, or obligation to join in any defense. Thus we have definitely adopted the policy for the protection of our insular possessions and for the preservation of peace in the Pacific region of conference and consultation with other powers.

Disarmament "Unfinished Business."

"Limitation of naval armament has manifest relation to our policies in the region of the Pacific Ocean and the Far East, but it has, of course, a much wider scope and expresses our strong desire to avoid extravagant outlays and the competition in armament which is provocative of war. In the proposals which our Government made to this end we were carrying forward an American principle which as early as 1796 Alexander Hamilton recommended for application to the Great Powers, and which was so applied in the Rush-Bagot Agreement of 1817.

"It had been the desire of our Government that the project of reduction or limitation of armament which failed at the First Conference at The Hague in 1899 should be taken up in the Second Conference in 1907. And we then considered this matter, and we still consider it, so far as land armament is concerned, as 'unfinished business' to use the phrase found in the instructions to our delegates at the Second Hague Conference.

"Further, in support of this policy we were willing to agree to certain definite limitations as the fortifications and naval bases in the Pacific Ocean, abstaining for fifteen years, or until [illegible] of the year 1936, and thereafter subject to termination on two years' notice, the status quo with respect to fortifications or naval bases in the Philippines and Guam.

"This was sufficiently emphatic with respect to our non-aggressive and peaceful intentions in the East, and yet it merely confirmed the policy of Congress, which has never had the intention of fortifying either the Philippines or Guam.

"As indicative of this phase of our policy with respect to those possessions which we acquired as the result of the Spanish War, let me repeat what Senator Lodge said in the course of the debate in the Senate on the recent naval treaty. With respect to Guam, he said:

"'We took that island in the Spanish-American War. * * * We have had as little interest in the island that we have never passed a line of legislation in regard to it or to provide for its government or to make any provision about it at all. * * * We have never fortified it, and nobody would vote to spend money in fortifying it.'

"With respect to the Philippines he said: 'The Philippines will be in exactly the condition in which they now are and have been ever since they were taken. * * * We shall never fortify them. It would cost hundreds of millions of dollars to fortify them. * * * We are not going to do it.'

Accords With Monroe Doctrine.

"How do these policies in the region of the Pacific Ocean square with the Monroe Doctrine? Is there any inconsistency? Has our entrance into this region as a world power of first rank led us to violate our traditions? Manifestly not.

"We fought the Spanish War to put an end to an intolerable nuisance at our very doors. We established and make secure the independence of Cuba, not to override it. And as a consequence of victory in that war we acquired distant possessions, but not with the purpose of making these a basis for encroaching upon the territory or interfering with the political independence of the peoples of the Eastern nations. In safeguarding the integrity of China, in securing equality of commercial opportunity in endeavoring to forestall efforts at exploitation and aggression in seeking to remove suspicion and allay apprehensions, and in enlarging, through assured tranquility, the opportunities of peaceful commerce, we have been pursuing under different conditions the same aims of independence, security and peace which determined the declaration of Monroe.

"With respect to Europe, our policy has continued to be in the phrase of Jefferson: 'Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none.'

"We entered the great war, not violating our tradition, for the cause of liberty itself was at stake. We have emerged from the war with the same general aims that we had before we went in. Though victorious, we have sought neither territory nor general reparations. Our people have borne their own burdens, and in large part we are bearing the burdens of others. We are not seeking to dictate to Europe nor to deprive any one of rights.

Against "Frustration of Vanquished."

"But we do desire peace and economic recuperation in Europe. We contributed our arms in the interest of liberty and to destroy the menace of an autocratic power, but not to secure the economic prostration of a vanquished people. We have the deepest sympathy with the people of France; we warmly cherish their ancient friendship. We desire to see France prosperous and secure, with her wounds healed and her just demands satisfied.

"We desire to be a united and prosperous Germany. We will be helpful in making amends to the full extent of her power and obtaining the appropriate rewards of her labor and skill.

"We wish to see an end to the waste of military efforts and the easing of the burdens of unproductive expenditures. We wish to see the fires of hatred quenched. It is because of these earnest desires that we have hoped, as was stated in the recent communication to the British Government, that the solution of the present grave problems would be sought in fair and comprehensive inquiry in which all interested might participate and which would be inspired by the determination to find means to restore the productive activities through which alone reparations can be paid, and to bring opportunity for the reasonable contentment and amicable relations of industrious peoples, through which alone peace and security can be assured.

"The bitter controversy which followed the war has abated with the tendency to still hold to the principle of not meddling in the political strife of Europe. It is true that the spread of democratic ideas and the resulting change in Governments have removed the danger of organized effort to 'extend to this continent the European 'political system' of 100 years ago. But Europe still has 'a set of primary interests' which are not ours. As Washington said:

"'She must be engaged in political controversies the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns.'

"Unity in war did not avail to change the divergent national aims and policies in peace. It is not that our interests may not be affected injuriously by such controversies. That was true in the days of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe; indeed, the effect of changes and developments is that we are far better able to bear such injuries today than we were then, as is sufficiently illustrated by our sufferings during the Napoleonic Wars.

"But it was, despite such injuries, the abiding conviction that we had better bear these ills than suffer the greater evils which would follow the sacrifice of our independent position.

"We still hold to that view. The preponderant thought among us undoubtedly is that our influence would not be increased by pooling it. The influence that is due to our detachment and impartiality could not long be maintained if we should substitute the role of a partisan in European quarrels, and the constant efforts of propagandists have brought vividly before us the fact that where the direct American interest is not clearly involved foreign governments often afford abundant opportunity for the play among us of intense racial feeling.

"What was true in Monroe's day is even more true today in view of our vast population drawn from many countries and reproducing here the conditions of European interests. It is not to our interest to adopt a policy by which we would create or intensify divisions at home without healing divisions abroad. And it must be always remembered that the moving forces of our expansions depends upon the degree of the preponderance of the sentiment behind them. Each group intent upon the assertion of its own demands forgets the equal insistence of others. But when all is said there is still no doubt of our desire to be helpful in every practicable way consistent with our traditional policies and genuine aims. We have poured out our wealth without stint both in charity and investment and the important productive enterprises undertaken abroad since the war have been supported by American capital. The difficulties which beset Europe have their causes within Europe and not in any act or policy of ours.

Our Policies Summarized.

"Generally, our policies toward Europe may thus be summarized:

"We are still opposed to alliances. We refuse to commit ourselves in advance with respect to the employment of the power of the United States in unknown contingencies. We reserve our judgment to act upon occasion as our sense of duty permits. We are opposed to discriminations against us commercially. We seek fair and equal opportunities in mandated territories, as they were acquired by the Allies through our aid. We desire to so-operate according to our historic policy in the peaceful settlement of international disputes, which embraces the policy of judicial settlement of such questions as are justiciable.

"It is our purpose to co-operate in those varied humanitarian efforts which aim to minimize or prevent those evils which can be met adequately only by community of action. For example, we are at this moment leading in the effort to put a stop to the abuse of narcotic drugs. We strongly support by our present action the known international conference where the conditions are such that they afford an instrumentality for the adjustment of differences and the formulation of useful conventions.

"We seek to aid in the re-establishment of sound economic conditions. In short, our co-operation as an independent State in the furtherance of the aims of peace and a just order always been and still is a distinctive feature of our policy.

"There is plainly no inconsistency between these policies and the Monroe Doctrine. Our position as a World Power has not affected the question of whether that Doctrine is still important under changed conditions. The answer must be in the affirmative. The fact that the intervention of non-American powers in this hemisphere is not threatened at this moment cannot be deemed to be controlling. The future holds infinite possibilities, and the Doctrine remains as an essential policy to be applied whenever any exigency may arise requiring its application. To withdraw it or to weaken it would aid no just interest, support no worthy cause, but would simply invite trouble by removing an established safeguard of the peace of the American continents.

Must Avoid Misunderstanding.

"While retaining the Doctrine, we should make every effort to avoid its being misunderstood. It its import has been obscure, it is largely because it has often been treated as though it were our sole policy in this hemisphere, and as though every action bearing upon our relation to our sister republics must be referred to it. Attempts to stretch the Doctrine have made it an object of offense. Treating the Doctrine as a catchall has not only given rise to much unnecessary debate but has been harmful to our just influence by arousing fears of latent possibilities of mischief and affording opportunities to those few but busy persons who are constantly seeking to foster a sentiment hostile to this country.

"By correct definition of the Doctrine I do not mean a statement in advance of every application of it. That, of course, as in the case of any principle, would be quite impossible. The important thing is the understanding of the principle itself.

"It should be recognized that the Doctrine is only a phase of American policy in this hemisphere and the other phases of that policy should be made clear. It would not be entirely correct to say that the Doctrine is merely negative, for it is a positive declaration that certain action on the part of non-American powers in relation to this hemisphere will be regarded as dangerous to our peace and safety and as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition.

"But the Doctrine is a principle of exclusion. Both with reference to the declaration as to non-intervention and to that as to extension of territorial control it aims directly at the exclusion of interposition by non-American powers.

"In recognizing these limitations of the Doctrine we do not detract from its importance; it gains rather than loses by such clarification. The principle of exclusion embodies a policy of self-defense on the part of the United States; it is a policy set up and applied by the United States.

"While the Monroe Doctrine is thus distinctively a policy of the United States, maintained for its own security, it is a policy which has rendered an inestimable service to the American republics by keeping them free from the intrigues and rivalries of European powers. The same, or similar, principles might, of course, be set up and applied by any or all of our sister republics, and it is believed that each of them would be benefited by having such principles as a definite part of her foreign policy. We have always welcomed declarations by other American States as to their determination thus to safeguard their independence. We have also been gratified at the acquiescence in these principles by European powers.

Equality of Nations Upheld.

"But, fully recognizing the value of the Doctrine, it still remains true that it simply states a principle of opposition to action by non-American powers. It aims to leave the American continents free from the described interposition, but it does not attempt to define in other respects our policies within this hemisphere or our relations to the political sphere of other States relating to matters of our own conduct in relation to other American States, and not merely our policy with respect to the conduct of non-American powers, should be clearly envisaged. Those affirmative policies which find no direct expression in the exclusion set forth in the Monroe Doctrine, are not inconsistent with that Doctrine, but rather constitute its fitting complement.

"First—We recognize the equality of the American republics, their equal rights under the law of nations. Said Chief Justice Marshall:

"'No principle of general law is more universally acknowledged than the perfect equality of nations. * * * It results from this equality that no one can rightfully impose a rule upon another.'

"At the first session of the American Institute of International Law, held in Washington in the early part of 1916, the jurists representing the American republics adopted a declaration of the rights and duties of nations. This declaration stated these rights and duties 'not in terms of philosophy or of ethics, but in terms of law,' supported by decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. The declaration set forth in the following principles:

I. Every nation has the right to exist, and to protect and to conserve its existence; but this right neither implies the right nor justifies the act of the State to protect itself or to conserve its existence by the commission of unlawful acts against innocent and unoffending States.

II. Every nation has the right to independence in the sense that it has a right to the pursuit of happiness and is free to develop itself without interference or control from other States, provided that in so doing it does not interfere with or violate the rights of other States.

III. Every nation is in law and before law the equal of every other nation belonging to the society of nations, and all nations have the right to claim and, according to the Declaration of Independence of the United States, "to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them."

IV. Every nation has the right to territory within defined boundaries and to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over its territory, and all persons, whether native or foreign, found therein.

V. Every nation entitled to a right by the law of nations is entitled to have that right respected and protected by all other nations, for right and duty are correlative, and the right of one is the duty of all to observe.

Our Policy to Latin America.

"It cannot be doubted that this declaration embodies the fundamental principles of the policy of the United States in relation to the republics of Latin America. When we recognized these republics as members of the family of nations we recognized their rights and obligations as repeatedly defined by our statesmen and jurists and by our highest court. We have not sought by opposing the intervention of non-American powers to establish a protectorate or overlordship of our own with respect to these republics. Such a pretension not only is not found in the Monroe Doctrine but would be in opposition to our fundamental affirmative policy.

"Second—It follows that it is a part of our policy to respect the territorial integrity of the Latin-American republics. We have no policy of aggression; we do not support aggression by others; we are opposed to aggression by any one of the Latin-American republics upon any other.

"Fortunately, however, under present conditions, there is no reason to apprehend such aggression. History shows that boundary disputes not infrequently give rise to action which in reality is of an aggressive character, but they ought to be justified by territorial claims.

"There are but few of these controversies still open in Latin America. Argentina and Chile resolved their boundary difficulties by arbitration. The boundary controversy between Argentina and Brazil was also submitted to arbitration and the decision has been loyally carried out. Chile and Peru have found a possible, and we were privileged to give the aid of our good offices to the matter, directly for the settlement to arbitration of the question which have long severed their relation growing out of the Tacna-Arica controversy and the Treaty of Ancon. There are a few minor boundary questions in Latin America, and there is no reason to doubt that they will be disposed of peacefully. It is believed that no aggression is threatened in Latin America.

"Third—States have duties as well as rights. Every State on being received into the family of nations accepts the obligations which are the essential conditions of international intercourse. Among these obligations is the duty of each State to respect the rights of citizens of other States which have been acquired within its jurisdiction in accordance with its laws.

"A confiscatory policy strikes not only at the property of citizens of individual but as the foundations of international intercourse, for it is only on the basis of the security of property, validly possessed under the laws existing at the time of its acquisition, that the conduct of activities in helpful co-operation are possible.

"Each State may have its code of laws in accordance with its conception of domestic policy, but rights acquired under its laws by citizens of another State it is under an international obligation appropriately to recognize. It is the policy of the United States to support these fundamental principles.

Anxious to Effect Stability.

"Fourth—It is the policy of this Government to make available its friendly assistance to promote stability in those of our sister republics which are especially afflicted with disturbed conditions preventing their own peace and that of their neighbors.

"It is the desire of the United States to render this assistance by methods that are welcomed and which are consistent with the general policies above stated.

"For example, in the case of the Central American republics, it has been our constant endeavor, in the interest of the maintenance of their integrity and sovereignty, to facilitate by our good offices such agreements between themselves and such measures of security and progress as will favor stable and prosperous conditions. This has been the object of the conferences of Central American republics, and at the last conference, held in Washington in December, 1922, an important advance was made.

"It is not too much to say that if the treaties and conventions then formulated and signed are ratified and carried into effect there will be no probability of further serious disturbances in Central America, and these republics, favored with vast natural resources, will enter upon an era of tranquility and will enjoy opportunities of almost unlimited prosperity.

"In promoting stability we do not threaten independence, but seek to conserve it. We are not aiming at control, but endeavoring to establish self-control. We are not seeking to add to our territory or to impose our rule upon other peoples.

"Fifth—The United States aims to facilitate the peaceful settlement of difficulties between the Governments in this hemisphere. This policy has had notable illustration in our own relation to our neighbor on the north, the Dominion of Canada, which is justly proud of its position in "the community of nations known as the British Empire." We have a boundary with Canada, including that of Alaska, of about 5,500 miles unfortified. Through arbitration we have disposed of such serious controversies as those relating to the Bering Sea fisheries rights, the Alaska boundary, and the North Atlantic coast fisheries.

"We have an international joint commission for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon questions relating to boundary waters and other questions arising along the boundary between Canada and the United States. Our 100 years of peace furnish a shining example of the way in which peoples having an inheritance of bitterness and strife have been able to live in friendship and settle all their differences by peaceable methods.

Put Justice Before Power.

"With respect to the Latin-American Republics, it is our policy not only to seek to adjust any differences that may arise in our own intercourse but, as I have said, to extend our good offices to the end that any controversy they may have with each other may be amicably composed. We are seeking to establish a Pax Americana, maintained not by arms but by mutual respect and good-will and the tranquilizing processes of reason. We have no desire to compete to superiority in armaments, but it should constantly be recognized that the most influential and helpful position of the United States in this hemisphere will not be that of the possessor of physical power, but that of the exemplar of justice.

"In connection with this aim, it is gratifying to note that the treaties between the United States and other countries providing for commissions of inquiry in the interest of full investigation and consideration of causes of difference before resort to hostilities, and the similar treaty concluded in February, 1923, between the United States and the Republics of Central America, formed the basis of the conclusion at the Santiago conference for a general treaty for the avoidance of armament of inquiry of controversies arising between the American Republics.

"Sixth—In seeking to promote peace as well as to aid in the reduction of unproductive expenditures, this Government has sought to encourage the making of agreements for the limitation of armament. Through our treaty with the great naval powers we have limited our capital ships, and we have voluntarily reduced our land forces.

"One of the matters negotiated at the Central American conference provided for the limitation of armament on the part of the Central American republics. At the recent Santiago conference it was impossible to reach an agreement between the other Latin American States upon this subject, but undue importance should not be attached to this failure. I have recently pointed out that whether we have regard to the total active armies in the world or to the total organized forces in the world, we have in this hemisphere, including the United States and Canada, but 6 per cent. of the whole.

"Moreover, the discussion at Santiago did not reveal points of view that must be considered to be utterly irreconcilable. On the contrary, it may be hoped that in the fortunate absence of all causes of serious controversy, and for the purpose of avoiding unnecessary outlays, a basis of agreement to limit armament may yet be reached.

"Seventh—The policies which have been described are not to secure peace as an end in itself but to make available the opportunities of peace that it may open the way to a mutually helpful co-operation. This is the object of the Pan American conferences. These will be increasingly helpful as they become more and more frequent.

"The object is to create the opportunity for friendly contact, to develop a better appreciation of mutual interests and to find particular methods by which beneficial intercourse can be aided.

"This bears directly upon the facilitation of exchanges, the protection of health, the promotion of education and commerce and the developing of all the machinery agencies for disseminating information and for improving means of communication. With our resources and apprehensions allayed, it will inevitably be found that there is less diversity of interest than had been supposed, and that there is an ever-widening opportunity for working together for the common good.

Seek Equality in Commerce.

"Eighth—It should also be observed that in our commercial relations the United States is seeking unconditional most-favored-nation treatment in customs matters. Prior to the beginning of the present year preferential tariff rates had for about twenty years been conceded by Brazil to certain imports from the United States. This had been an anomalous feature of our tariff relations, since the general policy of this Government has been neither to give nor to seek customs preferences.

"In view of the adoption of the tariff act of 1923, Section 317 of which authorizes the President to declare additional duties on products of any country that may discriminate against the commerce of the United States, it was felt that this Government could not longer with consistency ask the Brazilian Government to grant to goods of the United States rates which were lower, or to accord to articles wholly or chiefly the product of the United States treatment similar to that accorded to similar imports from other countries. Negotiation which are hardly accorded to any other policy, save to the first principles of the Republic itself. These sentiments are none the less wide or none the less potent because they are general and that treaties declaring doctrine are rather vague and as events have proved decidedly elastic.

"It has been extended without difficulty to cases not contemplated when it was promulgated and every successive development has been sanctioned by public opinion and greeted with public applause. It has exercised great and far reaching influence on the history of the whole of the new world. It may be destined to exercise influence still more profound and more decisive upon that history and upon the history of mankind.

"The world into which the Monroe Doctrine was born was very remote from the world of today. The Monroe Doctrine lay almost quiescent until President Polk awoke it to cover his annexation of Texas and American claims on the Northwest frontier. Polk managed to taint it in the popular mind with the defense of slavery, and for this reason among others Lincoln's Secretary of State did not rely upon it in his opposition to Louis Napoleon's adventure in Mexico.

"But when the House of Representatives in 1888 took into consideration the bill for the eventual annexation of British America this enlargement of the doctrine provoked the passage of the British North American act. It was appealed to in connection with the Panama Canal and in every extravagant and dangerous form over the British boundary dispute with Venezuela.

Referring to the attitude of the South American republics toward the Monroe Doctrine, the London Times points out that Secretary Hughes disclaimed all idea of aggression against American States and described the object of his policies and of the Pan-American conferences in doing "upon the way to mutually helpful cooperation."

"The South American republics," comments The London Times, "know their own affairs and their own interests best, but the contention of Mr. Hughes seems reasonable to outside observers. The failure of these States and the principles on which it rests meet the wishes of these States more fully than any other association or any other policy, but Pan-Americanism and the Monroe Doctrine as expounded by Mr. Hughes are no more incompatible with them than is the British Empire and the principles it embodies. They may even be steps toward the larger hope.

"The Monroe Doctrine, like all broad policies loosely expressed, is open to abuse, but without the fringe of a shot it has saved South America from foreign invasion for a hundred years, and that is its abundant justification to the mind and conscience of the world."

WILLIS SEES COOLIDGE GAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Senator Willis of Ohio returned today and after calling upon President Coolidge, said that conditions in Ohio were very favorable to Mr. Coolidge, who, he predicted, would be nominated and elected.

"President Coolidge is making an earnest and successful effort to carry forward the policies of economy and efficiency inaugurated by President Harding," he said.

"The people of Ohio and the country at large are back of the President in this respect. Congress should, in my judgment, give him cordial support.

"One of the crying evils of the Government is the constant increase of its machinery and functions. Already there are too many boards and commissions. Appropriations must be pared to the bone so as to make possible a reduction in taxes.

"I can see no wisdom in the appropriation of $5,000,000 for the purchase of new ships to be used by the Treasury Department in law enforcement while the Navy Department and the Shipping Board have ships to sell. If naval vessels cannot be used to protect our coast line they are unsuited for use ought to be so amended as to authorize it. The blockade runners will not knowingly steer into the mouth of American naval guns. Our coasts can be protected by the navy without firing a gun."

Japan Plans to Thank Us for Aid.

TOKIO, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—A proposal has been made that the Imperial Household Department send Prince Kan-In and a warship to America next year to express Japan's gratitude to the United States for her assistance at the time of the earthquake, according to the Nichi Nichi. Prince Kan-In is honorary President of the Red Cross Society and in 1918 accompanied the Crown Prince on his trip to Europe in 1921.

PROGRESSIVES CALL FOR RADICAL LAWS

sign rates of inheritance tax of 40 per cent. on the larger inheritances;

(g) A gift tax, with reasonable exemptions, up to a maximum of 25 per cent;

(h) A moderate tax on undistributed profits;

(i) In the event of the adoption of these other proposed tax revisions, the abolition of the so-called nuisance and amusement taxes;

"12. The foregoing, together with many other problems, including the exploitation of our Territories, freedom for the Philippines, determination of a policy for the American merchant marine, and the protection of our natural resources, are receiving the earnest study and consideration of the Progressives with a view to finding a satisfactory solution.

"13. The progressives condemn most emphatically partisan favoritism, waste, graft, neglect and incompetence in public departments, and demand the elimination of these evils as speedily and thoroughly as it is possible to accomplish it.

"Since it has been demonstrated in the last Congress and in previous ones that there is little hope for the enactment of a constructive legislative program, such as the foregoing under the present rule governing legislative procedure in the House, we insist that it is the first duty of the Congress to effect such improvement in the House rules as will make possible the passage of constructive legislation.

Plan for Revising House Rules.

"The transfer of power from the Steering Committee to a majority of the House of Representatives is to be accomplished by the following general procedure:

"1. Appointment of a special committee to revise the rules of the House.

"2. This committee to report back to the House in a specified time, and its proposed revision of the rules to take precedence over all other business of the House until adopted or rejected.

"3. Revision of the rules which will make possible the replacement of a sectional chairman who proves himself incompetent or neglectful of his duties by a Chairman who is competent and who will promptly discharge his responsibility.

"4. A rule making possible upon the filing of a petition signed by a specified number of House members the calling up of a measure when the committee in charge of the measure has failed to report it, so that the House may vote on it.

"5. Such changes as will prevent the Committee on Rules from introducing a special rule prohibiting amendments by members of the House. It is proposed that a reasonable percentage above a majority of those voting shall be necessary to the adoption of such a rule.

"6. When the Chairman of the Rules Committee has for fifteen days failed to report to the House a measure on which the committee has acted, any member of the committee shall have the right to bring the measure and the report of the committee before the House for action.

"7. That the Speaker of the House must, as far as possible, give a week's notice of all business to be before the House, so that the sudden calling of surprise legislation on such short notice as to force action without mature deliberation thereon by the House will be prevented.

"8. That opportunities for amendments shall be made sufficient to afford every member desiring to offer amendments an adequate privilege with five minutes in which to explain his amendment.

"9. That upon the demand of one-fifth of the members present there shall be a recorded vote by the full membership of the House upon amendments rejected in the Committee of the Whole, so that each member of the House will have to record his vote against, as well as for, amendments; that the member in producing the amendment to have five minutes for rebuttal.

"10. That [illegible] shall be established whereby an individual member of the House shall be enabled to get required information from any department of the Government upon his demand by resolution after the seven-day period now provided for rules to be received and during which the committee in charge of the resolution has failed to act.

Plan Consults on Rules.

As far as could be learned, about twenty-five to thirty men were present at the progressive caucus. These included Representatives Nelson, Voigt, Frear, Cooper, Schaefer, Lampert, Beck, Schneider and Browne of Wisconsin; Woodruff of Michigan, Guevara of Porto Rico, Davis, Keller and Knutson of Minnesota; Fish and LaGuardia of New York, Sutherland of Alaska, Hull of Iowa and Morgan of Ohio. The caucus continued all day.

It developed in the conference that he appeared by invitation, that he was not pledged to all the ideals of these present nor against the support of Mr. Gillett for Speaker, and that he came solely because of his interest in revision of the rules. He refused to the progressives his views on this subject. If 100 members of the House signified by a petition that they wished a committee to report a bill, he said, the House after one week should vote on the proposal. In order for the vote to be effective, it would have to be a majority of a quorum, and if the members so wished they could dispose of the bill at the same time. Mr. Nolan said that he merely wanted such a redrafting and that Representative R. Walton Moore of Virginia was sincere in support of it.

He also recommended a special committee of three to seven members to deal with constantly revised rules of the House. Another suggestion which he made to the caucus was for the appointment of a committee of twenty-one to deal with all legislation affecting the Veterans' Bureau, except compensation.

The proposal to appoint a committee of three to help Mr. Fish put his suggestions in definite form.

Nelson Predicts Victory.

No test of votes faces the progressives, Representative Nelson told them when he met them in the caucus.

"We are going to be sifted as wheat," he said. "We are going to be tried as gold in the furnace. All real progress will be put to the acid test.

"Fortunately, there are some of us who have gone through a previous contest of this kind, when we overthrew the arbitrary power of the Speaker, historically known as the fight on Cannonism. Then, as now, special privilege had entrenched itself in legislative power, in abuse of our parliamentary rules and in stacked committees. It was a gruelling contest, and the caucus suffered of four years, but the people finally understood and the so-called 'insurgents' triumphed. The House of Representatives of America was set free from the intolerable tyranny of autocratic power.

"All who faithfully took part in that fight won public approval. They were re-elected to Congress with increased majorities. Special honors came to many by way of election to the Senate; two, and only two members of the House will enjoy the fruitage of our glorious victory.

"A similar situation presents itself today. During the decade or more of years that have passed since that notable event, the same evil forces of selfish interest have again lodged themselves in a steering committee, in a floor leader, in autocratic Chairmen of committees, especially that of the one on rules, in a committee on committees recently to arrange the floor or five members from the larger States can freeze the assignment of all members to the interests of special privilege to such an extent that once more equality or right of representation has been greatly lessened for the average member.

"This has driven minorities into the inevitable necessity of forming agricultural blocs or progressive groups for self-protection against the Bourbon boldness of the mother of all blocs and groups, the organized predatory interests in the countries.

Despite the action of the Progressives, Old Guard leaders predicted tonight that organization would be effected through a flattening out of the opposition.

Democrats Solid for Garrett.

Democrats who have been charged in some quarters with a tacit agreement to show up the Republican Party's inability to control the situation by checking organization for several days, and then giving up the struggle and consenting to Mr. Gillett's election through their abstention, denied that they intended to "traffic" with the regular Republicans in such a scheme. Instead, they said that Democratic votes would be cast from the outset as a unit for Finis J. Garrett for Speaker.

Liberals Seize Upon Maker's Admission That Tariff Will Raise Prices.

LLOYD GEORGE ON IDLENESS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A curious correspondence has taken place in regard to a notice sent out by the house of Morley, one of the leading hosiery manufacturing firms of the country. This notice accompanied their latest price list and informed customers that if protective duties were imposed the firm might be obliged to raise its quotations.

The Liberal campaigners have jumped at this notice with glee. It appeared to them to be irrefragable documentary proof that their prophecies of increased prices as a result of the tariff were true. They proceeded to publish the notice in their party newspapers in large type and circulate it among their constituencies in pamphlet form.

But the fire has by no means gratified at its sudden political prominence, and its lawyers are sending letters to all the politicians who are using the notice, and especially to Sir Arthur Cope, at Liberal headquarters, calling their attention to the fact that the notice was of a confidential character, and that they strongly object to its use for political purposes.

The Conservatives, on the other hand, have been poking fun at The Daily Chronicle, Mr. Lloyd George's own organ, because it admitted to its columns an advertisement calling attention to the number of cheap factories which would be available for manufacturers desiring to take advantage of the new tariff.

In the course of his speech-making in Wales today ex-Premier Lloyd George contested the statistics which Premier Baldwin had quoted to show the effects of tariffs on the British woolen trade, &c.

"In 1913," he said, "France sold 61,000,000 square yards of woolen tissues. This year they have sold 135,000,000. In 1913 Britain sold £32,000,000 worth of goods to America. In 1932, after the Fordney tariff started, we sold £40,000,000 worth. This was after the tariff had been in complete operation."

Mr. Lloyd George also declared that tariffs had never cured unemployment. Comparing America with England, he said that, taking a period of years, unemployment in New York was three times what it was in London. In the case of Massachusetts, from 1908 onward there was only one year in which unemployment was worse in this country than it was in Massachusetts. Every other year it was worse in Massachusetts.

Renews Attack on Father's Ministry.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Oliver Baldwin and A. G. Macdonald, respectively sons of Premier Baldwin and James Ramsay Macdonald, the Labor leader in Parliament, appeared on the same platform at an election meeting held in London tonight to support the Labor candidate for the Islington district.

The Chairman of the meeting addressed Mr. Baldwin as "Comrade," and Mr. Macdonald as "the son of the future Prime Minister." Mr. Baldwin in his address repeated his previous attack on the Government his father heads, particularly with regard to the threatened increase in the tax on tobacco. He asserted that he was not opposing his father, but was opposing principles which would lead nowhere. The Government, he said, had fulfilled none of the promises made during the war, and he had looked in vain in the manifesto of the Labor and Liberal Parties to find in them any intention of dealing with the filthy conditions under which the poor were living in London. That was why he was supporting the Labor Party.

J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, who has represented Derby in the House of Commons since 1910 and is again a candidate, predicts that the election will end in a stalemate, though he is convinced that the Labor Party will return stronger than ever.

Instead of the Government distributing money in humiliating doles, Mr. Thomas says, it should insist on necessary work being undertaken immediately. Half a dozen of the railways, he says, are badly in need of electrification, and other works, such as afforestation and land reclamation, are urgently needed.

American Aviator Aids Liberals.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Lawrence Sperry, American aviator, and his "aerial flivver" have been enlisted by the Liberal Party for the election campaign.

Mr. Sperry's aid to the Liberals is due to his friendship with Sir Alfred Cope, ex-Premier Lloyd George's campaign manager, formed during their crossing on the Mauretania. Mr. Sperry awaits orders at Croydon Aerodrome, where he is supplied with campaign literature. On receiving telephonic orders he will jump off with leaflets or carry communications to distant constituencies.

LADY WARWICK FEARS NO LEVY ON CAPITAL

She and Her Husband Are Secured Against It by Transfer of Estates to a Company.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Curious to learn how the Countess of Warwick regards herself and family in the light of the capital levy which she, as the Labor-Socialist candidate for Warwick and Leamington, entirely upholds, the anti-Laborite Daily Mail sent a reporter to interview her ladyship at one of her country mansions.

The interviewer found the Countess seated in a paneled hall surrounded by costly furniture, bric-a-brac and old armor. She was wearing a pearl necklace.

She genially admitted what is publicly known, namely, that the encumbered Warwick estates have been transferred for the lifetimes of her husband and herself to a limited liability company whose capital, as belonging to a company rather than an individual, would be exempt from the capital levy, according to the explanatory statements published in behalf of her political party.

Thus, says the Daily Mail, it would be impossible to derive any revenue for the State from the 16,674 acres of land and the other property held in the name of the Earl of Warwick, and when the Earl and Countess die their estates, relieved of death duties by life insurance policies, will pass unencumbered to their son, Lord Brooke.

To the remarks of the interviewer on this point, the Countess naively replied: "Even if the estates were not vested in a company, they could not be touched, being protected by the law of entail."

Another titled landowner, the Duke of Atholl, is in a less happy position, according to his own statement. Speaking at Dalkeith in behalf of his wife, who is the Conservative candidate for Kinross, the Duke was interrupted by a heckler who shouted: "We are going to take your money!" To this remark the Duke replied that he had no money to take, being so poor that he could not afford to live in his own mansion; he and his wife were dwelling in a small cottage.

Those whom the capital levy would affect are particularly interested in a statement made by a Labor candidate, Captain Gordon, in a campaign speech at Bringhton. He said the levy would not come into operation until it had been submitted to the country again. Labor Party leaders have said nothing in this sense so far as has been reported.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Labor is finding the advocacy of the capital levy a considerable handicap in the campaign. It cannot drop the issue because its extreme wing regards it as the most important plank of the platform and indeed, without it Labor could offer practically nothing but the nationalization of the principal industries, which is almost as unpopular among large sections of the electorate.

At the opening of the electoral campaign J. Ramsay Macdonald, the Labor Party leader, explained that if his party was returned to power it would exclude from the operation of the capital levy all personal fortunes of less than £5,000 and the capital resources of all public companies. Moreover, he declared that whatever steps were taken would come only after the plan had received the approval of Treasury experts. He is still protesting that the Labor Party really means to impose a capital levy, but there is a note in a speech which he has just made in his own constituency of Aberavon which suggests that he has discovered how hard it is to get his constituents to accept his ideas.

He said he was perfectly amazed and bewildered by the criticism with which the suggestion of a capital levy had been received. He said that if a capital levy was wrong, and therefore impracticable, it would be in the interests of the Labor Party to drop it.

"And I tell you honestly and candidly," he said in conclusion, "that if any party or any person can produce a better scheme I will take that in preference to the capital levy."

FRENCH COMMUNISTS OPEN ON POINCARE

SAY INDUSTRIALISTS GAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—While France had remained neutral and would remain neutral, Premier Poincaré declared in the Chambers this afternoon she had the right to hope that the people of the Rhineland would one day voluntarily and spontaneously break their Prussian bonds. The Separatist movement which had begun had been up till now perfectly honorable.

This attitude of the Government toward the republic of Matthes and Dorten was defined by the Premier during warm criticism from the Communist benches of the Rhineland republic as it has been constituted. One Deputy, quoting the Belgian newspaper Le Peuple, gave the history of the Rhineland Cabinet which Matthes and Dorten had assembled, showing that nearly every member had been condemned at one time or another to terms in prison for crimes ranging from theft and forgery to desertion and immorality.

Marcel Cachin began an attack on the Government's policy with the allegation that Bavarian nationalism was at one time subsidized by France in the hope Bavaria would break from the Reich. General Mangin, said Cachin, had strongly advocated granting subsidies to strengthen the Bavarian organizations.

As for what had happened since he took office, Premier Poincaré hotly denied the allegation but in the face of some of Cachin's documents would not take the responsibility for what had happened previously.

Ernest Lafont, another Communist, followed Cachin's lead. He wanted to know where the arms and money of the Rhineland Separatists came from and where the Separatist army was recruited. It was certain, he said, that the movement could never have grown without the aid of France, and even with that was ridiculous.

The Ruhr policy also came in for harsh criticism from the extremists, whose argument was that France's success was no better than participation in the guilt of Stinnes in his exploitation of the Ruhr workers. The profits from the Ruhr enterprise, Cachin said, were not going to rebuild the devastated districts. The only people who were likely to get these profits were the Comité des Forges and the industrialists, who would now have both the Saar and the Ruhr working for them. They were reaching their goal of joining the French mineral fields to the German coal fields.

Deputy Gautherey, member of the Right, supported this view with the remark: "When the industrialists grow rich the country grows richer." But Cachin was quick with his answer: "Yes, but in Germany the industrialist of the country where Stinnes has made himself one of the richest men in the world."

France, he argued, had acted just as the Germans did in the war, when they expelled from the Rhineland and Ruhr 140,000 railroad workers. But the worst result of the occupation, was that it had roused in Germany ideas of revenge and war and recreated militarism which the revolution had crushed.

Lafont wanted to balance the whole profit and loss account of the Ruhr occupation. On one side he found estrangement from the Allies, suspicion, loss of prestige, failure at Lausanne and an immense monetary cost. On the other side he found that from these temporary six months' accords which had been signed with Stinnes and company far less coal and coke would come than would have been received during the past year had the Ruhr not been occupied.

"We know well," said the Communist Deputy, "that you are not interested in a policy of reparations, but that you entered the Ruhr in pursuit of political prestige and the policy of domination."

All that France could now hope to get was these coal and coke deliveries which had cost so much, and yet the present Government used to declare deliveries in kind were not enough.

M. Poincaré, stirred by the long-continued attack, replied hotly that France was getting at the present moment more than her share, as normally she would have had to hand back part to the Allies. This brought the retort, "Why, then, is coal so dear at Paris?" The Premier was prepared to reply at once, but the session having lasted longer than the Deputies' patience the debate was adjourned until next Friday.

EXPLAINS ARMS REPORT.

Reuter's Says Material on Germany Did Not Come From French.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Reuter's News Agency, which on Thursday sent out a news item concerning military preparations in Germany, which was widely printed and commented on, tonight issued a statement declaring that its information as given out, although authoritative, was not official and did not originate from any French source.

"Retuer's Agency," says the statement, "states that the paragraph issued yesterday on the subject of German disarmament was evoked by inquiries regarding reports telegraphed from Berlin and also from Paris attributing certain statements to General Bingham (British representative on the Interallied Military Control Commission in Germany).

"The information contained in the paragraph, although authoritative, was in no sense official and did not emanate from any French source."

SEEKS TO HELP SCIENTISTS.

League Committee on International Co-operation Resumes Work.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The League of Nations' International Committee on Intellectural Co-operation resumed work here today under the chairmanship of Professor Henri Bergson. The United States is not officially represented, and the American unofficial member, Professor Robert Andrews Millikan, winner of the Nobel physics prize, was prevented from attteding, but he was replaced by Waldo G. Leland, director in Paris of the historical research work of the Carnegie Institution.

Three other Americans, Professor Algernon Coleman, Horatio S. Krans of the American University Union in Europe, and Dr. J. R. Schramm of the National Research Council in Washington, are participating in the rôle of experts.

The session, which began with the study by a special committee of international bibliographic co-ordination, will continue until about Dec. 8. Among the subjects to be discussed besides the exchange of library catalogues and pamphlets of the organization of research efforts so as to avoid duplications in various countries and facilitate supplemental work by the scientists in one country of the work done in other countries.

Other subjects are the exchange of professors and students between colleges and the protection of intellectual work, ideas and titles, the last named in order to prevent abuses and confusion through indiscriminate use of such titles as doctor and professor.

SAYS BRITISH LAG IN AIR.

Aviation Official Says Their Airplanes Would Be Useless in War.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—How Great Britain lags behind the United States and other nations in some points of the science of aviation was the theme of Major Mayo, who was in charge of the designs department of the Air Ministry during the World War, in addressing the Royal Aeronautical Society last evening.

The Major said the fastest British pursuit machine was slower by thirty miles than that of any other nation, and that it was obvious if British airplanes were called to war they would never get into a fight at all.

Charging the Government with neglecting research and experiment in aviation, the speaker said America had been making steady progress. He cited the record of 268 miles an hour made by the Curtiss United States Navy racers, referring especially to the wind radiator, to which he attributed the tremendous speed made by the American fliers.

"The wind radiator," said the Major, "has as yet not been introduced in Great Britain, although it has been talked about for years."

NEW CABINET READY TO MEET REICHSTAG

ONLY SOCIALISTS STAY OUT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

By CYRIL BROWN.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Doctor Marx, the Centrist leader, succeeded last last night in completing his Cabinet and will present the result to the Reichstag at the earliest moment, probably tomorrow or Monday.

The members of the Cabinet are the following:

Chancellor—WILHELM MARX.
Foreign Minister—GUSTAV STRESEMANN.
Minister of Defense—OTTO GESSLER.
Minister of Labor—HEINRICH BRAUNS.
Minister of Finance—HANS LUTHER.
Minister of Transport—RUDOLPH OESER.
Minister of Food—Count KANITZ.
Minister of Economy—A. D. HAMM.
Minister of Justice—Dr. EMMINGER.
Minister of Occupied Territories—ANTON HOEFLE.

Negotiations with party leaders, who remained in permanent session in the Reichstag buildings until nearly 11 o'clock last night, continued all day, and more than once it looked as if Marx would fail like the men before him who tried to form a Cabinet. The People's Party, which had threatened to decline to send any members into the Cabinet unless Marx would also appoint some Nationalists, finally relented and permitted its members to serve despite the fact that the Nationalist Schiele refused the portfolio of Food Distribution.

The only party that remained disinterested was the Social Democrats.

When THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent showed the list of the new Cabinet to a well-known Socialist leader he said, "There are doctors enough in it to kill the healthiest patient."

BERLIN, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—There was talk in the Reichstag lobbies tonight to the effect that Dr. Marx intends to carry on the Government under some sort of modified "authorization law," with the spectre of the dissolution of Parliament forever hovering in the background.

The new Government is made up of members of the Clericals, the People's party, Democrats and Bavarian People's party. The combined 193 mandates will be insufficient to insure it a working majority in the Reichstag, being only 23 in excess of the 170 mandates commanded by the Socialists alone.

Dr. Marx will need the Nationalists or Socialists to safeguard the Parliamentary existence of his government. Its inherent frailty was frequently spoken of throughout the day as the new Chancellor strove to overcome partisan objections to the men of his choice. While President Ebert's mandate to him was supposed to afford ample leeway in the direction of constructing a non-partisan cabinet, his ultimate choice reflects a straight party line-up. None of the non-parliamentary economic experts who had been mentioned in connection with the posts of finance and economics figure in the official list.

The respective party affiliations of the members of the new Cabinet follow: Marx, Clerical; Jarres, People's Party; Stresemann, People's Party; Hamm, Democrat; Emminger, Bavarian, People's Party; Luther, People's Party; Hoefle, Clerical Party; Gessler, Democrat; Oeser, Democrat; Brauns, Clerical, and von Kanitz, People's Party.

Among the newcomers is Dr. Erich Emminger. He and Gessler, Brauns, Hamm and Hoefle comprise the five Bavarians in the new Cabinet. Eduard Hamm, who was Secretary of the Chancellery under Chancellor Cuno, was formerly Bavarian Minister of Trade. Dr. Karl Jarres was Lord Mayor of Duisburg, from which post he was removed by the French authorities. Jarres ranks as an authority on municipal administration.

The radicals will make their temporary sufferance of the new government wholly contingent on its attitude on the question of abolishing martial law and its treatment of Bavaria. The Nationalists backed away from the new Ministry altogether.

REICH STOPS ALLOWANCES.

Occupied Territory to Get No Help After Dec. ..

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 30.—The German Government announced today that all allowances for the occupied territories stood suspended from Dec. 2, after which the municipalities would not be repaid for any advances they might make to the unemployed.

A similar announcement made on Nov. 15 gave rise to such protests that the Government of the Reich decided not to put it into effect, but advanced 100,000,000 of the new rentenmarks as relief for the workers. This sum now is exhausted.

LUSITANIA CLAIMS STATUS.

R. W. Bonynge Explains the Ruling of the Mixed Commission.

Robert W. Bonynge, attorney, of 111 Broadway, issued a statement yesterday in connection with his recent filing of a brief with the Mixed Claims Commission on the Lusitania case, in which he said:

"The article appearing in this morning's Times relating to a brief recently filed by me with the Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany, in support of the claims of certain life insurance companies for loss of unearned premiums on policies written by them on the lives of persons who met their death through the sinking of the Lusitania, may possibly lead to a wrong impression as to the attitude of the Government of Germany with respect to other Lusitania claims. The German agent does not now and never has contested the liability of the Government of Germany for the loss of life, personal injuries or loss of property sustained by individual American nationals through the sinking of the Lusitania.

"The Mixed Claims Commission has recently handed down an opinion holding Germany liable for such losses and announcing the general rules to be followed by it in assessing the damages in particular cases. A large number of such cases are now before the commission for its determination. In the opinion in the Lusitania cases the commission said: 'The circumstances of the sinking (of the Lusitania) are well known to all the world, and as liability for losses sustained by American nationals was assumed by the Government of Germany through its note of Feb. 4, 1916, it would serve no useful purpose to rehearse them here.'

"It has been the uniform policy of the American agency not to disclose the contents of exhibits filed in support of claims. That policy was pursued in the Lusitania cases.

"I may add, however, that so far as I am aware there is nothing contained in the exhibits filed in support of the Lusitania claims of which the public has not been heretofore fully apprised."

WEEKS DEFENDS COST OF OUR ARMY

was over $4,000,000,000. The War and Navy Departments consumed 14 per cent. of the total Federal budget, and purely military activities 6 per cent. It is apparent our military expenditures have not assumed the proportions the founders predicted."

Denies a "Great Military Burden."

Moreover, says Mr. Weeks, it should not be forgotten that this 6 per cent. of Federal costs by no means represents 6 per cent. of all governmental expenditures in America.

"If one includes in this study of Government costs," he continues, "State and City budgets, all of which are governmental, only 2½ per cent. of the total is consumed by the War Department and its activities. Since these budgets are relatively a small part of the total national income, the percentage of our gross income spent for common defense is obviously an extremely small one. The per capita cost is slightly more than $2 annually. It is grossly improper to picture our costs as a great military burden upon the civilian population."

Discussing the cost of national defense ersus total cost of government, Mr. Weeks presents statistics showing that twenty-one of the largest American cities, with an aggregate population of 19,801,500, had city budgets aggregating $867,765,385, and that States with a population of 61,849,440 had budgets aggregating $577,960,234, while Federal expenditures for a population of 110,000,000 aggregated $4,232,205,942. The average per capita cost of government, Federal, State and Municipal, for citizens of the largest twenty-one cities in 1923, Mr. Weeks says, was $91.64, of which $41.82 represented the per capita for city budgets, $9.34 for State budgets, and $38.48 for Federal expenditure, of which $5.45, or 5.95 per cent. of the total, was for national denfense purposes, and $2.84, or 2.55 per cent., the per capita for army purposes.

Warns Against "Isolated" Idea.

"We have always enjoyed the belief," says Mr. Weeks, "that our isolated situation rendered us comparatively immune to aggression from abroad," and this has been a major factor in our policy of maintaining an extremely small army. We cannot afford to forget, however, that each new invention in the field of transportation has decreased the gap which separates us from other nations. We are no longer a self-sufficing people, as will readily be proven by a comparison of our exports and imports in the past ten years. Our excess production of wheat, for example, places every farmer in direct competition with foreign interests, in many fields we are competing with foreign nations.

"We are more and more appreciating our need for a merchant marine and other elements which will enable us to compete on favorable terms. As we come more and more closely in contact with other nations, any failure on our part to maintain our proportionate strength against aggression will merely invite actions threatening to the peace which we are so anxious to maintain. From a purely economic viewpoint we should realize that we maintain a lower rate of protection than other countries, and that in relation to the factors I have mentioned our degree of protection is relatively decreasing, while our contacts are increasing and our isolation growing less each year."

Secretary Weeks declares many opponents of defense expenditures "when cornered" into the admission that army costs are "really very small, relatively, will state that they are, at any rate, unnecessary." He challenges this view and insists that the United States not only needs the army it possesses, but a larger one, and that it will never do to forget that "the cost of national defense is the price of freedom." The World War, he declares, proved the fallacy of the argument that "Americans will rise up like one man for defense if the emergency should come again."

"We learned then," says Mr. Weeks, "that even with the Allies protecting our front, we would always be put to a tremendous effort at a tremendous cost to mobilize raw forces. Without allies, the raw levies that we could raise would be practically at the mercy of a determined enemy.

"The first claim has been advanced after every great war for the past thousand years, at least, and probably since the beginning of time. Such a belief cannot be substantiated until we are also prepared to state that the last murder and the last robbery have been committed, and that competitive will power has at last been removed from the human breast.

Need of Preparedness.

"Opponents of national defense are the first to complain against the cost of war and the last to appreciate that our own great cost for the war was due largely to our previous lack of preparation. They like to employ the argument that Germany was prepared for the World War, yet the result was a catastrophe for her. The obvious answer is that Germany was not sufficiently prepared for the war which she undertook against the Allies, and that France, on the other hand, by this time would have lost her identity as a nation if she had not been so well prepared and supported."

Assuming the national wealth to be $400,000,000,000, Mr. Weeks says the premium rate of defense insurance, for army and navy together, is less than $1.50 per $1,000, and presents statistics showing that the figure of one soldier for each $2,500,000 of natfonal wealth is the lowest maintained for seventy years. The ratio of uniformed protectors to the population they represent, he adds, is 1¼ to 1,000, adding that it is absurd to assume that "one professional soldier can ever militarize a thousand professional civilians."

The American people, he declares, should realize that the National Defense act was drawn to provide essential security by a plan that would completely eliminate a possibility of the growth of militarism, that "our present scheme is a compromise between compulsory military service and the maintenance of a large professional army," that the World War clearly taught the need for national security, and it "is the height of folly to continue the recent policy of cutting our financial support of the War Department to such an extent that the National Defense act is endangered."

Secretary Weeks's report contains tables showing the military expenditures of foreign powers, compared with America, showing the American per capita ratio to be the smallest, the ratio of soldiers for each 1,000 of population the smallest, and the minimum base pay of American soldiers the highest in the world.

Secretary Weeks recommends that at the earliest possible date the enlisted strength of the army be increased to 150,000. He holds this strength the minimum necessary to make effective the national defense program.

"We are already cut to a dangerously low limit on our foreign garrisons," he says, "and these cannot be cut further."

RESTRICTIONS LIFTED IN THE BELGIAN ZONE

Paris and Brussels Conferring on Troop Withdrawals and Release of Prisoners.

COBLENZ, Nov. 30.—The Interallied High Commission has rescinded all restrictions on the free movement of people in variqus cities in the Belgian zone. It also has abolished some of the red-tape requirements in connection with coal shipments.

These steps have been taken as part of the program for restoring normal conditions in the Rhineland and the Ruhr, now that passive resistance is considered to have ended.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30.—I learn that negotiations are now in progress between the French and Belgian Governments on the question of reducing the strength of the military detachments in the Ruhr. The subject has been raised by the fact that passive resistance has ceased in the Ruhr. General Degoutte is favorable to the reduction so far as "compatible with the security of the troops."

The Belgian Government considers that by acting gradually and according to the resumption of work, the régime may be transformed and that the moment has come to withdraw troops. In view of the disorder which reigns beyond the occupied regions, however, "certain precautions" are considered necessary.

The two Governments are favorable also to a wider measure of clemency toward the people who were expelled from the Ruhr for their opposition to resumption of work. Those measures will be made public very shortly. Many of those expelled will be able to return to the Ruhr, and convicted persons at present serving their sentences will be liberated.

THREE WOMEN CLAIM ITALIAN YOUTH AS SON

Question of Who Is Mother of Shell-Shocked Soldier Puzzles.

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 30.—Northern Italy is seeking a super-Solomon to settle who is the mother of a youth claimed by three women. The youth was kidnapped today by Concetta Cavalieri, one of the women, who brought him here from Florence.

Shell-shocked during the war, and a deaf-mute in consequence, the young man has been in Florence since the close of hostilities, waiting to have one of the women declared to be his mother, as he is unable to identify her.

No judicial authority can be found who considers himself competent to decide the case, and common gossip is seeking another sage with the Biblical King's wisdom as the only one capable of giving judgment.

NORTHEAST ITALY FLOODED.

Natives Flee to Hills as Rivers Overflow After Torrential Rains.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Torrential rains have caused a number of rivers in Northeastern Italy, including the Tagliamento and the Isonzo, to overflow. Large tracts of country are under water and four large bridges have collapsed. In Gradisca the streets are turned into shallow canals and in Trieste the lower parts of many houses and public buildings were flooded.

UDINE, Italy, Nov. 30.—Heavy rainstorms have affected the whole Friuli country in this province, causing the rivers to overflow their banks, flooding the surrounding country and obliging the inhabitants of some towns to take refuge in the hills. Large bodies of soldiers, firemen and Fascists militia from the surrounding territory have been rushed to the scene to assist the homeless and reinforce the river and canal banks against the flood. Several bridges have been swept away.

Low Water Pressure Due to a Strike Hampers the Firemen.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Nov. 30.—Fire early today swept a block of small business houses and offices on the outskirts of the city's commercial district. The damage is estimated at about $200,000. There were no casualties.

A strong north wind hindered the firemen, as did the darkness and failure of the water pressure in consequence of the electricians' strike, which has left the city without light or power for the last two days.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 30.—The fire at Tampico has been extinguished, and no damage was sustained by the office of the Mexican Telegraph Company, according to a message received by John F. Paschetage, local manager. No further details were given.

Vienna Students Renew Outbreaks.

VIENNA, Nov. 30.—The university authorities made an effort yesterday to reopen the institution, which was obliged to clos e some days ago because of anti-Semitic demonstrations by the Nationalist students. New outbreaks occurred, however, so the Rector of the university gave up in despair and announced that all lectures were suspended indefinitely.

which in a sense is the judge of the Reich.

The technical reasons given today for not raising the issue of the Ruhr legality was that the accords between the Franco-Belgians and the Ruhr industrials were not officially before the commission. One might easily reply that today's decisions for marking the experts was taken as a sequence of the Germans' appearance before the Reparation Commission last week when they based their case for the argument that the occupation of the Ruhr was illegal. The Germans intended by that play to get France and England into another argument, but the failure of Bradbury to say one word today followed the decision to allow the Ruhr issue to sleep for the moment. The French would argue that M. Poincaré has Mr. Baldwin in a corner, that to expose the accords would mean to leave France with a free hand and forever the prospects of sharing in the Ruhr, whereas to approve the accords would be to recognize the legality of the Ruhr occupation, and therefore the Reparations are quiet. The more likely reason is that London has decided that inasmuch as it cannot get the French out of the Ruhr the best thing to do is to let the Ruhr experiment have a fair trial. The French are perfectly willing to let it act at that.

Hope for American Participation.

PARIS, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Allied circles believe the Reparation Commission by its action today paved the way for the United States to participate in an expert examination of Germany's position. The commission decided to appoint two expert committees, one to determine means of balancing Germany's budget and stabilizing her finances, and the other to look into the question of the capital exported from Germany and devise ways of getting it back.

The resolution appointing the committees mentions no limitations to the scope of their inquiry further than to state that it will be held under the terms of Article 234 of the Treaty of Versailles. The Allied representatives believe that under these circumstances the American Government may find the terms sufficiently broad to give them sufficient opportunity for useful work.

American participation in the committees is regarded by the Allies as essential, though it is not thought the Americans will be asked that necessarily be officially nominated by the United States Government. If objections are still found in Washington to the scope of the inquiry there is strong hope that the American officials will at least be willing to suggest the names of a leading financial authority and a leading banker for each committee.

The resolution adopted today says the committees shall be composed of representatives of the Allied and Associated powers. It is understood that the British would have preferred to add some neutrals and also allow the participation of a German representative, but that they gave way on these points in order to get a unanimous decision.

While a sort of rump Government consisting of several members of the dissolved Cabinet and dismissed military chiefs of the Separatists forces still occupies the Coblenz Schloss issuing platonic decrees against the late chief, Herr Matthes, has got busy at Düsseldorf and his intention is to consolidate the Separatist movement in the Northern Rhineland and extend his activities to the Westphalian district and the Ruhr.

Yesterday forty-five delegates of local groups of the Lower Rhineland and Ruhr, meeting at headquarters of the "League for Rhenish Independence," unanimously accorded a vote of confidence to Matthes and passed the following resolution:

"Dissolution of the temporary Government of the Rhenish Republic at Coblenz by the late Chief Executive Matthes is approved.

"Any representatives of the League of Rhenish Independence in the late Cabinet who still remain in Coblenz are hereby ordered to return and report to their constituents.

"Disorganization of thy Rhenish movement caused by ill-considered action in the Belgian zone and the subsequent attitude of the Coblenz Government will be dealt with and reorganization undertaken.

"The delegates express unanimous agreement with the measures of Herr Matthes and continue to accord to him fullest confidence and appoint him recognized leader for reorganization.

"The League for Rhenish Independence, which, owing to the recent great impetus has become the League for Rhenish and Westphalian Independence, expresses unshakable determination to work in harmony with the occupying powers, instigate an honest, humane policy of reconstruction and establish permanent peace with Western neighbors.

"Rhinelanders and Westphalians expect the occupation authorities to protect them against all attempts of Prussian oppression for their political opinions.

"Herr Joseph Matthes, or a representative chosen by him, will act as intermediary between the League and the occupation authorities.

The resolution is signed by about forty delegates from Düsseldorf, Essen, Mülheim, the Ruhr, Bottrop and Aix-la Chapelle.

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The Separatists have been cleared out of Duisburg by the Belgians, according to the Düsseldorfer Nachrichten, because they failed to pay good money for their requisitions of flour sent into the Ruhr by the relief workers of the Quakers. The Separatists' authority, the dispatch adds, had been limited to the Rathaus for the last month, but they seized foodstuffs, including fifty-two sacks of the Quaker relief flour, to the value of 6,000 French francs.

They offered their rubber stamped notes in payment, but the Belgian authorities intervened and demanded that they pay in real money. The flour was consumed during the subsequent bickering, and the Belgians finally gave the Separatists until 10 o'clock yesterday morning to pay on a gold basis. When no chief Separatist requisitioner at that time produced only 1,100 francs the Belgians escorted from the Rathaus all the separatists they could find and served notice that any hidden Republicans must leave the city within forty-eight hours, which they are reported to have done.

Washington Awaits Details.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Coolidge is without official confirmation of reports from Paris that it is the desire of the Reparation Commissions to have the United States represented on committees of experts which it appears to have been decided to appoint to investigate Germany's finances.

It was stated at the White House that no decision would be made by this Government in the absence of exact and definite information as to just what may be desired with respect to the United States Government.

The American Government, as such, an authorized spokesman for the President declared, certainly would not be represented on the projected investigating committees. The only question, it was added, would be whether some prominent American citizen, a man of standing who would be important enough to serve in such a capacity, would be asked to participate in the work.

At the White House the view was expressed that the President assumed that no such person would be willing to serve unless he knew his Government did not object to such service.

BERLIN REPUDIATES RUHR AGREEMENTS

Note Sent to Reparation Commission Insists Arrangements Are Illegal.

BERLIN, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—In a note which the German Government has sent to the Reparation Commission concerning the recent agreements signed by the occupation authorities and the German industrialists the Reich declines to recognize the legality of the occupation, the policy of the pledges or of these agreements, and gives detailed arguments supporting its contention that all deliveries in kind should be credited wholly to the Reich's reparation account.

The Government requests the Reparation to adopt a resolution in this sense as speedily as possible. It claims that all reparation questions require unanimous action by the Allies, and that no individual power has the right to take separate action against the debtor State.

SIX LINERS ARRIVE WITH ALIEN THRONG

Immigration Gates Opened at Midnight for December Quotas.

10,000 DUE IN THREE DAYS

Barred Russians Ordered Deported, Although Canada May Be Willing to Admit Them.

Six steamships anchored yesterday in Gravesend Bay with immigrants from various European countries to await midnight and then enter Quarantine for the December quota. They were the Estonia from Libau, Drottningholm from Gothenburg, Frederik VIII. from Copenhagen, Minnekahda from Hamburg, Providence from Naples and Palermo and the President Filmore from Bremen. Three other vessels with immigrants are expected to reach Quarantine during the morning. They are the Rotterdam from Rotterdam, Orbita from Hamburg and the Dante Alighieri from Naples and Genoa. The total number of passengers arriving today on the nine liners will be 256 first, 1,068 second and 4,253 third class, making 5,477 of all classes, of whom about 10 per cent. are citizens of the United States. The Aquitania, from Southampton, will arrive tomorrow with 1,672 and the Hansa, from Hamburg, with 1,285.

The quotas for fifteen countries have already been exhausted. Italy's total for the year is expected to be used up by Dec. 10 and Germany's quota about the middle of January. Three liners, the Colombo from Naples, the Braga from Naples and the Azores and the Britannia from Naples and Palermo have been diverted to Philadelphia to avoid congestion at Ellis Island. Altogether more than 10,000 immigrants are expected to arrive in New York harbor during the first three days in December, which will fill up nearly all the quotas, immigration officials predicted yesterday.

Seventy-five Russians will be deported today on the White Star liner Olympic as in excess of quota, which leaves 600 remaining at Ellis Island from the liners Majestic and Belgenland whose cases have not been heard. Reports were received from Ottawa that Canada would admit the Russian immigrants who had been barred in New York for being in excess of quota, and Secretary of Labor Davis is reported to have said that he would agree to their going into Canada if it could be arranged. Joseph Barondess headed the Jewish delegation that went to Ottawa to make the appeal on behalf of these immigrants. As no word has been received from Washington by the steamship agents the seventy-five will be deported today.

It is expected that there will be several writs of habeas corpus served on the captain of the Olympic before she sails at 11 o'clock today from Pier 59, North River, to take some of the deportees ashore.

EX-OFFICIAL SHOT IN A LIQUOR RAID

William Jennings of Atlantic Highlands Is Severely Hurt by Trooper.

40 CASES FOUND NEAR HIM

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 30.—William Jennings, who resigned as a Councilman here recently after prohibition agents had found 400 cases of liquor in his cellar, was shot in the leg last night by State troopers on the beach at Little Wagner Creek. The troopers seized forty cases of liquor which apparently had been landed by bootleggers. State Trooper Harley L. Hutchinson, who is said to have fired the shot that hit Jennings, is under arrest on a technical charge of assault and battery.

The State troopers allege that when they reached the beach they saw a group of men around some cases, which later were found to contain liquor. The men started to leave, they said, and they called to them to halt. Trooper Hutchinson declared that one of the men reached for his hip pocket as if to draw a gun, whereupon the trooper fired. The former Councilman sank to the beach and the troopers and others on the beach went to his aid. When the troopers learned his identity they hurried him to a hospital, where it was found that it might be necessary to amputate his right leg to save his life.

The troopers questioned the men on the beach and all, including Jennings, denied that they knew anything about the liquor. They had heard that there was a large quantity of liquor on the beach, they said, and insisted that they merely visited the place out of curiosity.

Jennings was placed under arrest by the troopers, and Trooper Hutchinson will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace E. C. Wainwright at Red Bank.

The State police carted the forty cases of liquor to a Federal storage warehouse in Newark, where they were turned over to the prohibition authorities. The troopers, in co-operation with the Monmouth County authorities, have seized 925 cases of whisky near Atlantic Highlands in the last week.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Coolidge has given orders for the drafting of plans for an earthquake-proof embassy building at Tokio to take the place of the one destroyed in the earthquake and fire. The building may cost $1,000,000.

WOMAN ON HUNG JURY INSULTED, SHE SAYS

BLACK HAND THREAT BY ONE

Judge Sorry for Her, but Finds He Cannot Give Her Redress for Men's Rudeness.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30.—After having been locked up all night with the rest of a jury in a damage case in the Common Pleas Court here, Mrs. Orvilla B. Jones, a resident of Carnegie, a suburb, made complaint to Judge John C. Haymaker in court this morning when the jury was discharged as disagreeing.

"One of the men told me that if I were a man he would tell me what he would do to me and that I would be in the morgue instead of the jury room," Mrs. Jones declared. "Another man told me that when he got out of the jury room he would have me reported to the Black Hand Society and have them take care of me for not consenting to their verdict. I was insulted, intimidated and compelled to listen to perfectly horrid language. I don't think a woman should be subjected to such hideous treatment, your Honor."

Mrs. Jones told the Court that the vote stood 11 to 1 and that she was the one who refused to "come over." She stated that the terrible treatment continued while she remained in the room, and that even while she was eating her dinner she was browbeaten and mistreated.

"I am sorry that you have been subjected to such treatment," Judge Haymaker said. "I do not see what I can do for you. This is just one of the unpleasant features of the newly acquired right of women. No gentleman would subject a woman to such treatment as you were evidently given, but, unfortunately, there is nothing that I can do."

The case was a damage suit filed by Mike Long, a produce dealer, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, involving a shipment of grapes.

One other woman sat on the jury.

URGE PROSECUTIONS IN VETERANS' BUREAU

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Senators Reed and Oddie, members of the Senate committee which investigated the Veterans' Bureau, and General Frank T. Hines, Director of the bureau, today conferred with President Coolidge about the results of the inquiry.

The visitors impressed upon the President the advisability of prompt action by the Department of Justice, it is understood, and recommended that prosecutions be started without delay on the basis of facts presented by the committee to the Department of Justice.

Members of the committee are getting restless over what they see as the inactivity of the Department of Justice, which, it is asserted, had information warranting action before the committee began its investigation.

The recommendation also was made to the President by his callers that he use his influence to persuade Chambers of Commerce in different parts of the United States to do what they can to give rehabilitated soldiers employment.

CONSULATE STILL CLOSED.

Hitch in Negotiations May Prevent Reopening of Newcastle Office.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The American Consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne, which was closed after charges by the British Government that Consul Slater and Vice Consul Brooks were using their offices to influence prospective travelers to sail on American flag vessels, probably will remain closed.

Notwithstanding the informal announcement made several weeks ago by Colonel George Harvey, American Ambassador to England, that the case had been amicably settled, it now appears that some hitch in the negotiations has developed, making it difficult, if not impossible, for the American Government to reopen the Consulate.

When the British Government canceled the exequaturs of the American Consul and Vice Consul, the State Department made a thorough investigation of the charges, which failed to show any substantial claims, and as the charges had been made public and reflected upon an American Government agent, Secretary Hughes determined that the Consulate should remain closed until they were publicly retracted.

Consul Slater and Vice Consul Brooks were transferred to Corunna, Spain, and Dresden, Germany, respectively. Since the Consulate was closed there have been many complaints by British residents of Newcastle, who are put to great inconvenience, and the subject has been discussed on several occasions in the British House of Commons.

GARY'S WARNING ON FALSE GENEROSITY

be assumed she was one of the very few most generous givers ever mentioned in history. Certainly her act was approved as perfect in all respects.

Gifts With Right Motives.

"Gifts should be bestowed with right motives, good judgment and wise discretion. If one contributes to a good cause, whatever may be the means of obtaining that which is given, the act is desirable unless it interferes with the fulfillment of existing obligations; but if a man makes such a gift from his own surplus funds, properly and honestly acquired, he is entitled to great personal credit, even though he should sometimes speak of it in public, thus showing bad taste. Every day in this land, and many others, real, generous giving is fashionable and it is Christian. This nation, as such, and its constituency, during the last few years, have shown the most generous disposition ever exhibited. From motives of pity and friendship and Christianity, the citizens of the United States have contributed magnanimously to the necessities and comforts of the sufferers in many, if not most, other countries. It was from no obligation, except such as that which should prompt one to sympathize with others in need.

"There was no reward received nor expected by the masses of contributors, except the satisfied conscience which results from the performance of duty. Men with very large fortunes, with wisdom and discretion, have devoted millions for humanity during the last few years. These men have excited universal admiration. Except in the consideration of these fortunes in single hands, such large amounts would not have been thus appropriated.

"All will agree that the reward for good deeds or the condemnation for bad deeds is adequately portrayed only in the Holy Bible. A very striking illustration of these simple but all important fundamental principles is comprehended in the wonderful production by the talented writer and actor, Sir John Martin-Harvey, entitled 'The Crucible.'

Generosity That Is a Sham.

"But there is a genuine and true liberality; and there is another apparent or alleged generosity that is a sham and pretense, which even though thankfully received and for a deserving cause does not entitle the ostensible bestower to reward or praise.

"When a man accumulates a surplus and then contributes the whole or part to the best of purposes, if the same has been obtained by illegal, unconscionable or unfair means, he is not entitled to credit, for he is giving away that which is not deservedly his own. The dictates of conscience, the approval of a just God, are not satisfied with such gifts.

"In many lines of business at the present day, if not to the extent which was formerly characteristic, there is, in conduct, on the part of both employer and the employe, unfairness, greed, reckless and brutal disregard for the properties and decencies of human contact. If money is acquired by reason of these delinquencies and a conscience-stricken recipient is desirous of contributing the same, or any part of it, it would be appropriate to hand the amount to those who have unjustly suffered.

"Prices just now in many respects and in many places are unconscionable, and they enter into the very high cost of living. If any one, producer, tradesman or workman, after doing justice by those to whom he is responsible, can and will do anything to reduce the high cost of living, he will thereby give evidence of his gratitude for being permitted to live and work in this country of plenty and prosperity.

Distributing Public Funds.

"The State and municipal taxes of our locality, and probably other localities, are burdensome almost to the point of serious business depression. This is not a discussion of causes for unreasonable State or municipal taxation, but rather it is intended to emphasize the fact that those in office, not at the time acting under a mandate evidenced by general vote of the people, who make large and unnecessary appropriations for improvements or extensions or provide parks or to increase the pleasure of the people, are not entitled to be classed with the really generous persons who contribute their own funds for similar purposes.

"It appears to be easy and comfortable and enjoyable for many persons to make large donations to a good cause from the accumulations of others, notwithstanding by so doing they are as a final result materially adding to the cost of living. This is not true generosity.

"It should be rung in the ears of every officer that in completing the yearly national budget and in passing upon each and every national expenditure he is distributing the money of others and is compelled to answer to his own conscience at least for the exercise of strictest economy in these days of readjustment and rehabilitation. No one individual or official should be generous until after he has been just. One should be a cheerful giver but not a faker.

"During the war there were many individuals and some societies who made it a business to solicit, collect and distribute funds for war charities. It was justly or unjustly alleged that large sums were deducted by the solicitors as commissions or compensation. Also that in some cases no books of account were kept for inspection by subscribers, showing receipts or disbursements. The importunities of some of these were almost unbearable. They made no contributions from their own funds. Such as these were not generous. They were not respectable.

Burden of National Taxation.

"Of great magnitude is the burden of national taxation, so frequently referred to during the last few years. During the World War it seemed necessary to raise large sums and the income and inheritance taxes appeared to be proper. There was reckless extravagance and money wasted, perhaps by the billions, but there was little complaint. Excuses were made and accepted. But after the armistice was signed, it was realized that taxation must be readjusted if we were to promptly regain our natural equilibrium and momentum in business. As usual, the short cut and easy road were taken. Exhorbitant rates of surtaxes and other taxes were imposed. But business has more or less remained upon its feet, though its back has been considerably bent, it has been, it is in danger of breaking. Prosperity has been threatened, though many have been sufficiently courageous and loyal to contribute from their capital to pay income taxes and inheritance taxes on the properties of decedents, and something to make extensions in their business, which the natural growth of resources and demands required.

"The large and extortionate assessments which have been made do not, as a rule, show any generosity on the part of those who voted for them. Most of them paid only a small part of these taxes. They were voting the payment of money belonging to others. The promised remedy of the political party now in power, that is, the reduction of taxes, has not yet been wholly fulfilled, not by reason of desire on the part of those who made the promises, but on account of political and parliamentary obstructions. Now what is going to happen?

"First of all, we have a wise, fair-minded, courageous, unprejudiced President, whose disposition is to serve and promote the best interests of every part of this great country and of all the people. This is a great deal, but not all that is essential to secure and maintain the prosperity which is needed and to which this nation is entitled, regardless of conditions elsewhere. His efforts will tend to reduce the cost of living and to restore the equilibrium of business, which is now more or less disjointed, disrupted and in many respects disproportioned.

Problems for Congress.

"But secondly, there is need of legislation to recast or amend the existing tax laws. Any attempt however meritorious will provoke discussions, and this may mean, to judge the future by the past, a struggle merely for political or other unworthy advantage, notwithstanding the measures proposed by the President or others are intended to be of benefit to all the people and of injury to none.

"Congressmen, as usual, will be besieged and importuned by groups of individuals representing generally small minorities, but claiming to represent large numbers of voters, all seeking for private benefits. In the past some of these groups have been successful because they were so persistent and emphatic. It is not easy for a member of Congress to resist the demands of an organized minority; that is, a few men who actually represent a rather small vote, comparatively, but one large enough to exert a considerable influence as compared to an individual.

"Then there will be Congressmen who seek benefits in the way of expenditures for local improvements. Naturally such as these will stand together. Paul will vote for Peter and vice versa. There may be nothing immoral in this, but the practice usually results in improper appropriations. It would require increased governmental income to meet these appropriations if made, which at least might be postponed to a time when they could be afforded.

"These references are only typical. There is a great variety of questions pertaining to the subject of collection and disbursement of money calculated to trouble the ordinary Congressman, consuming much time and frequently resulting in waste or extravagance.

The Soldiers' Bonus.

"A very large contemplated appropriation just now is the proposed soldiers' bonus. It is difficult to discuss this question without being charged with indifference to the merits of the fine men who devoted their services to the protection of civilization. Their bravery, loyalty and competency excited the pride and the gratitude of all the American people and, let us hope, those of other countries. For their services there never will nor ever could be adequate monetary compensations. This is the sentiment of every true-hearted American. It includes large numbers, and it is believed a substantial majority of the soldiers themselves. For this reason, because they feel that the payment of dollars as a reward for patriotism is never to be considered, they themselves are opposed to the payment of a bonus, certainly at this time.

"In the long run, the added prosperity which would come as the result of the strictest appropriate economy would be far greater than any benefits which might follow payment of the proposed bonus. So far as the permanently injured soldiers are concerned they must, of course, be cared for. If members of Congress, under present conditions, vote for large appropriations to pay soldiers a bonus with the expectation of being considered generous, they are likely to be disappointed.

"However, if at a later date, when the condition of the National Treasury will permit, a majority of the soldiers should in any formal way make request for payment of a bonus, it is certain the national conscience will favor it. In the interest of the soldiers themselves, and on account of their own pride, it is hoped they will favor at least a delay in the consideration and determination of this question. Certainly if a bonus were to be paid at this time, then the money should be supplied by some special fund to be created, such as a sales tax or similar provision. If advocates of the bonus are sincere and genuine in their demand, they cannot object to a sales tax which would permit them with all others to contribute toward the necessary funds.

Europe's Obligations.

"There is at present a strenuous agitation in favor of canceling or reducing the debts of foreign countries to the United States. From the viewpoint of the United States and also many foreign countries who borowed money at a time when it was very much needed, with unconditional promises to pay, the proposition would appear to be irrational and preposterous. To the ordinary American mind, it is unthinkable. The debtors should have an abundance of time to pay their obligations and a reasonable rate of interest, but that they should desire to repudiate an honest national debt is beyond the comprehension of Americans, to say the least.

"When the Government which precipitated the terrible World War announced that it considered a solemn international agreement, which it had previously entered into, as only a 'scrap of paper,' the whole world was startled. It was believed at first the one who made the statement did not accurately represent the attitude of his country, and when it was found he did, most nations, including those who are now indebted to the United States for borrowed money, denounced the statement as an outrage and placed the nation that stood for the repudiation of an honest agreement as in disgrace and without the pale of civilization.

"With much greater reason, when a nation, relying upon the friendship of another nation, borrows money for immediate needs for a definite time upon an absolute, unconditional promise to do so, there is reason to question the bona fides or even the sanity of those who propose repudiation. Most of us remember clearly what took place and what was said during the war by those who borrowed money; how urgent they were, how profuse in promises, how grateful for accommodations; and it is difficult to believe there is a change in sentiment. It is insisted repudiation is not proposed or desired by a large majority of the people of any one of the debtor nations; that these debts, or any part of them, should be canceled. The recent address of the Hon. Gaston Liebert confirms this view. There are many in this room who have listened to declarations by individuals of debtor countries conforming to what is now being said.

"Likewise it is desired to emphasize that every one here entertains for the people of the debtor countries referred to feelings of sincere and deep friendship and esteem, and would not say or do anything intentionally to interfere with or decrease these sentiments. Therefore, everything that has been or will be said on this occasion is said as much for and in behalf of the foreigners as the Americans.

Paid Our Own Expenses.

"According to the published reports, it has lately been said by one of the foreign leaders in governmental matters, referring to war debts, that the war was fought by and for all the countries participating, for their joint benefit and safety. Even though this may be a complete, fair and accurate statement, which is not admitted, it may be urged in answer that as far as we were concerned we paid all our own expenses and furnished our own men and that they served efficiently and with great credit to themselves.

"It has been asserted by certain foreign nations that they are willing to pay their debts when their debtors pay them and not before. Did any one ever before hear such a condition insisted upon by any self-respecting, solvent individual or nation? Does any one of those foreign nations, through its courts, allow individual debtors to other individuals to postpone payment until these debtors have collected their claims against third parties? What would a foreign court say to such a defense to a suit brought upon a note given for borrowed money?

"The pride and sense of honor and regard for established reputation for integrity and fair dealing will not permit our foreign friends to repudiate or attempt to cancel their financial obligations to this country. They will reject the suggestions by any of their officials that solemn promises, made for consideration paid in good money, shall be canceled or reduced.

"If our United States Congress should vote in favor of any reduction in the principal of the foreign debts, whether as an intended act of generosity or otherwise, it would receive no genuine response of gratitude from the debtor, and, on the contrary, it would be charged by a majority, at least, of the people of this country with attempting to contribute the moneys of others for motives that are not commendable. We do not ask Congressmen to be economical with their own money, but with ours it is different, notwithstanding we do not believe in false economy, nor object to true and real generosity.

False Generosity.

"In pleading for the exercise of real generosity we are at the same time objecting to an attempt by any one, in official or private life, to substitute false generosity, especially by the contribution of funds which rightfully belong to another. There has been too much of this. If the foreign debts to this country were canceled or reduced, except by consent of at least a majority of the Americans, it would be outrageous, for it would be a mere transfer of the burden from one nation to another whose people are already carrying a very heavy load.

"We in this country desire the friendship of every other country and may be depended upon to do everything just and reasonable to maintain the cordial and friendly relationship with all of them; but when it comes to the point of being generous beyond the limit of obligations we must reserve to ourselves the decision as to what is appropriate, and in the consideration of all such matters we should not forget that charity begins at home and that the necessities and comforts of our own people are not to be overlooked nor neglected. True generosity regards always of highest importance actual obligations to our own dependents. This is good doctrine for all of us as individuals and for our lawmakers as official administrators as well.

"Let us be grateful for the blessings and mercies bestowed upon us. Especially let us be joyful for the friendship and esteem of our foreign acquaintances, whom we respect and love. Let us be forever thankful for the service and support of our splendid soldiers, who in time of darkest peril bared their breasts to a ruthless, powerful enemy. Let us be grateful for being alive and permitted to live in this glorious, honorable and universally respected country. And let us always be truly generous up to the limit of reason and propriety, reserving to ourselves the right to determine when, where and how much."

The Town Hall was crowded to its capacity by a very attentive audience of the type that is more used to hearing views favorable to the League of Nations than those expressed by Judge Gary. Mr. Ely, the temporary chairman, commented on this fact in thanking the speaker at the end of his address.

Henry W. Taft introduced Judge Gary as "a business statesman." Prefacing his speech with a few informal remarks, Mr. Gary said that another thing besides statesmanship had to be considered by a man who occupies an important business position—that he has to be careful what he says when he speaks in public.

Allied Debt Stand Applauded.

At the end of his formal speech, during his discussion of the allied debts question, Judge Gary was twice interrupted by applause. His statements that the desire to repudiate an honest national debt was beyond the comprehension of Americans, that we had furnished our own soldiers and sold our own expenses in the war, that if Congress voted in favor of any reduction of the debts it would be charged with giving other people's money for unconscionable motives, and that we should be grateful for being permitted to live in this country, all drew applause. Prolonged applause followed the speech.

Mr. Ely called on the audience for questions and put the first one to Judge Gary himself by asking him what he thought of President Wilson's statement that this nation had played a cowardly part since the armistice.

"I purposely left that question out of my speech," Judge Gary replied, "but I should like to say that the United States never has and never will play the part of a coward. There was a time when apparently a large majority of the people of this country were in favor of the League of Nations, and I do not hesitate to say that I was one of them, because we all thought that if there was any way possible by which we could establish peace and prevent war we ought to do it.

"That was a good doctrine, but it is only fair to us to say that the sentiment of this country at present is opposed to joining a convention which would subject the people of this country to the domination and control of a majority of voting nations, regardless of the interests involved. I am bold enough to say, in the kindest spirit, that in the deliberations abroad during the last few years, and in some of the actions following these deliberations, sometimes in actions without any deliberations at all, there has been selfishness on the part of some of them beyond all reason, and that we have been very much disappointed.

"I am glad that this country is not in a position where a majority of other nations could vote that we should send our boys to bloody battles, where we would be likely to be slaughtered, as they were in the Argonne, where some hundred thousand men were lost in a few days.

To Protect Our Own People.

"We only desire to protect our own people from being ruthlessly and unnecessarily sacrificed, and in saying this I believe I have voiced the sentiment of the majority of people in this country. We desire to be just, but we desire to be just to our own people first. That's natural instinct, that's honest, that's fair. We'll do our part, but not more than we honestly and conscientiously believe in our part, in all international compacts."

A woman in the audience then asked the following question:

"Is it possible for foreign nations within a reasonable length of time to pay their debts to us?"

"That is a very pertinent and intelligent question," Judge Gary replied. "No one believes in trying to compel another to pay what is impossible. My opinion is that foreign nations can all pay their debts if they make a long time to do so, but my information from men who have been traveling in foreign countries recently is that there is more prosperity, more activity, more progress, than any of us from what we read in the papers would have any reason to expect."

Pretend to Be "Hard Up."

Explaining that he could not disclose the source of his information, Judge Gary said he would give the substance of what one of these men had told him in private conversation. This man was a foreigner. Judge Gary quoted him as follows:

"Of course, all of us are hard up now when we are being pressed for these claims—at least, we pretend to be—but our people are working and saving as they have always done. While it is true that there is suffering in places, yet taken as a whole our people are progressing even in these times, and when we get through with these discussions about the debts you will see money earned, money exhibited and money paid."

"I believe that gentleman competent to express an opinion of his people," said Judge Gary, "and it is always to be remembered that the spokesmen of foreign nations who seem to want to default on their obligations do not represent the real intention of the masses of those countries.

"The large majority of people in those foreign countries mean to pay their debts and do the right thing. This is true in all the countries involved—I make no exception. We do not do justice to the masses of people in those countries when we judge them by what has been said by some of their leaders."

The next question came from a man in the rear, who asked:

"Do you feel that the United States is doing as much as she could do to help Europe straighten out her affairs?"

"Did you ever go to your neighbor's house in response to a statement that there was a family quarrel?" Judge Gary demanded. "If you haven't, let me give you a little good advice. Don't go where you're not wanted; don't go where you're not asked to come.

"I think that our country, through our splendid Secretary of State, has done everything it could to give evidence to foreign countries that it would like to be of assistance. I think President Harding went to his death having in his heart the most conscientious and earnest disposition in the world that these troubles in Europe might be settled, and that we might resume friendly relations with the world.

"But there is always a right time and a wrong time to do a thing, and we who are here in this room this evening perhaps are not in as good a position to decide upon the right time as the President and the Secretary of State, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hughes quietly, diligently, are trying to find a way to be of service. As a rule, those who come forward and talk the loudest in criticism are themselves least qualified to do anything."

On the World Court.

Another man in the gallery then demanded to know Mr. Gary's opinion of the World Court.

"It would certainly not be becoming for me to say anything against the courts," replied Judge Gary with a laugh. "The only thing between us here this evening and riots and disturbances is the law—the rule of action fixed by the law and the administration of the law by the courts.

"But when you consider the question of establishing the law and enforcing its provisions you want that court organized in such a way that you are certain of receiving a fair hearing based upon the merits of the controversy whatever it may be. Now, there is a dispute among learned Justices whether the World Court as organized—organized in Europe and holding sessions in Europe—is so organized as to be unprejudiced; whether it would be prejudiced in favor of the majority which come from other nations and not this country.

"I do not express any opinion on this question because it is still a burning question among the greatest statesmen in the country, including the President of the United States himself, and I do not think it proper to express an opinion as an individual while the question is pending."

The meeting was closed with a vote of thanks to Judge Gary, tendered by Mr. Ely.

Road bungalow and one of the men arrested in the raid on the place Wednesday, was held yesterday by Federal Commissioner Hitchcock in $500 bail for examination today on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Prohibition agents reported that last Wednesday, a few hours after the police raid, they found in the Farini home five cases of whisky, twenty gallons of alcohol and two gallons of gin.

Bearing a court order, Deputy Sheriffs Coakley and Cunningham yesterday seized the Diamond Box Company plant for $908 obtained by the Masson Lumber Company. The Deputies found that the factory had been locked for a number of days. They obtained the keys at the East Twenty-second Street Police Station.

TWO GANGSTERS DIE AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Guns and Burglar's Saw Found in Sedan Wrecked at a Long Island Crossing.

A Long Island railroad train, near St. James yesterday, prevented a rum-running expedition or hold-up toward which three men in an automobile were speeding by smashing into the machine as it dashed upon the tracks. One of the men in the car was killed outright. A second died later in the Huntington Hospital. The third, suffering from bruises and shock, was jailed for a few hours and eventually released.

The three men were paroled several weeks ago by Governor Small of Illinois after serving six years for participation in the hold-up of the Washington Park Bank, Chicago, in which the raiders obtained $15,000. The New York police said that parole papers were mailed to the men yesterday by Governor Small's office. Each of the three had been arrested many times.

The man killed outright was Benjamin Fine, 33 years old, of 125 Division Avenue, Brooklyn. He operated under the aliases of "Harry Levine" and "Pinky" Fine. He was a "gunsmith" to the old "Kid Twist" gang of the east side, which specialized in poisoning horses when the stable owners failed to yield financial tribute. Fine's record began in 1905, when he was arrested for grand larceny and received suspended sentence. The following year he was free of a burglary accusation. In 1907 he was sent to a reformatory for grand larceny. He was arrested four times in 1913 for picking pockets, one arrest being in Hartford. He did not receive sentences in any of these cases. He served six months in 1914 for picking pockets. He was arrested in New York, Providence and Chicago in 1915 for picking pockets, receiving a suspended sentence here and being discharged in the other cities for lack of evidence.

A Long Career of Crime.

The man who died in the hospital was Abraham Becherman, 33, of Manhattan, driver of the automobile. He was known to the police also as Cohn, Harry Levine and Joseph Harris. He was arrested twice in this city in 1911 for picking pockets. In 1913 he was arrested here for disorderly conduct, paid a $25 fine in Cleveland for disorderly conduct, was fined $10 on Staten Island for jostling and was freed of a similar accusation in Hartford. Arrested five times in 1914 for grand larceny in picking pockets, he was let off with a $100 fine the first time and was freed on the other occasions. For jostling, in the same year, he was sent to the workhouse for six months. In 1915 he was arrested as a suspicious character and discharged.

The third man, Samuel Kramer, 30, also of 125 Division Avenue, Brooklyn, figured in the investigation of the murder in 1912 of Herman Rosenthal, for which Police Lieutenant Charles Becker and four members of the underworld were executed. Kramer operated under the aliases of Greenbaum, Shansky, Lakansky and Price. He was sent to Elmira in 1908 for attempted grand larceny. On conviction of a charge of picking pockets he was given a suspended sentence in 1909 after being discharged on a similar complaint earlier in the year. In 1910 he was sentenced to a year on conviction in New Haven for picking pockets. In 1912, as Max Kahn, he was sent to the House of Detention as a material witness in the Rosenthal case. He passed Oct. 10, 1912. Later that year he was fined $25 in Pittsburgh for picking pockets and in 1913 in this city was sent to the workhouse on a similar charge. He was arrested in Evansville, Ind., in 1914 as a pickpocket.

With five Chicago men, Fine, Beckerman and Kramer in 1916 held up the Washington Park Bank in Chicago, getting $15,000. They were arrested and each sentenced to prison for from one year to life. The three New Yorkers were paroled Oct. 9 last.

Since then, according to the police, they had engaged in bootlegging. Suffolk County authorities said that the three men were planning yesterday either a holdup or a rum-running expedition. Four loaded pistols and a hacksaw were found in the wrecked sedan. The car belonged to George Brunner, a truckman at 736 Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, by whom Kramer was recently employed as a driver.

Kramer would not say where he and his companions were going. He said he did not know the pistols and hacksaw were in the automobile. When Sheriff Biggs was notified by Inspector John D. Coughlin of the New York Police Department that none of the three men was wanted for any crime in New York, Kramer was released after spending several hours in jail.

Nine twenty three!

Don't worry about "fit." We, too, once said we'd never wear one-piece suits. Now we'd wear no other!

ARCHITECTS TAKE UP PARK ART SITE PLAN

Committee of Chapter That Opposes Encroachments Will Study the Proposal.

MANY PROTESTS ARE MADE

Playgrounds Association Will Call a Meeting Next Week to Act on Project.

The plan to take four and a half acres of Central Park at the south end as a site for a music and art centre, which has resulted in protests from individuals and organization interested in keeping the city parks free from encroachments, will be studied by the Park Committee of the New York Chapter American Society of Landscape Architects, with a view to making recommendations for action by the chapter, Clarence Fowler, Secretary, said yesterday.

Mr. Fowler said that no date for the meeting of the Executive Committee would be set until after the Park Committee had made its report. In the meantime, he said, the chapter would not commit itself with respect to the project, which has been proposed by the Mayor's Advisory Committee, of which City Chamberlain Philip Berolsheimer and Joseph Haag, assistant to the Mayor, are the members.

While he said that he did not speak for the society, Mr. Fowler declared that, in his opinion, the music and art centre proposal emphasized again the need for the existence of some body which would study the Park as a whole, particularly in relation with a city plan.

The New York Chapter a year ago made a study of the administration of the Park Department, and certain recommendations were the outcome, Mr. Fowler said. With respect to threatened encroachments the report said:

The history of the New York City parks is largely made up of attacks on the integrity of the parks, and especially on those of Manhattan. These attacks are made by people who appear to think that no open space can fulfill a really useful function unless it has a building or street on it. If all the attacks on Central Park had been successful, there would be by this time little or no park left, merely a motley collection of structures varying from the merely eccentric to the really useful. But there would be no Central Park such as we still have. Such attacks often take the form of bequests or gifts with embarrassing strings tied to them, whereby the donors obtain the use of priceless park sites for the display of their own generosity.

"There should be some body continuing long enough in office to formulate a general policy of defense, and with sufficient authority to enforce it, so that each attack would be met as a matter of routine by the established policy of the Park Board and without the need of a newly empaign of defense organized by outsiders."

A meeting of the Parks and Playgrounds Association will be held next week to take action on the music and art centre plan. No definite date has been fixed. The association expressed its opposition to the plan to use the park for the centre when the project was first outlined a year ago. Since that time a specific site in the park has been suggested by the Mayor, and the further suggestion has been made that for it thirty-seven acres now comprising the site of the lower reservoir in the park be exchanged.

WANTS FORD RESTRICTED.

Grossbeck May Ask Barring of Nomination on Two Tickets.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 30.—Henry Ford as a candidate for the Presidential nomination was the centre of interest in the Capitol today when two movements in opposition to and one in favor of his political advancement were revealed.

Governor Grossbeck intimated that he may ask the extra session of the Legislature to pass a bill preventing a candidate from being entered in the Michigan Presidential primary next Spring by more than one political party. Such a law would prevent Mr. Ford from being a candidate then on both the Democratic and Republican tickets. In 1918 he was a candidate on both tickets at the primary for United States Senator nominations.

"In my opinion every candidate should declare whether he is a Republican or a Democrat, or a member of some third party, when he is seeking votes at a primary," the Governor said.

Michigan Democrats should make no move toward placing Mr. Ford's name on the Democratic Presidential primary ballot until he reveals where he stands on Democratic principles, Frank A. Picard of Saginaw stated in a letter sent to Edward Frensdorf, who recently stated that he intended to circulate petitions to put the manufacturer's name on the ballot. Both he and Mr. Picard are members of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Some Democratic leaders regard the letter as an indirect appeal to Mr. Ford to reveal his attitude toward foreign entanglements, the League of Nations and other issues. Nevertheless, Mr. Frensdorf will proceed with his plan.

WINS SUIT FOR $11,862.

Jury Gives Verdict to Woman for Mining Stock Claim.

Mrs. Harriett Lyons, wife of Charles J. Lyons of 462 Ninety-eighth Street, Woodhaven, received a verdict of $11,862.60 in the action she brought against Alexander J. McAllister, a promoter, of 5 Nassau Street, Manhattan, by a jury in the Supreme Court, Queens, yesterday. It was during the trial of this action that Mr. Lyons on last Monday testified that as Treasurer of the Belasco Theatre several years ago he had made from $300 to $400 a week extra by selling tickets to agencies.

Mrs. Lyons was the plaintiff in the action because her husband had assigned to her all his claims against McAllister. Lyons claimed he had an interest in a mining stock trading syndicate headed by McAllister, and there was still due to him $4,862.60 as the amount of his investment, plus his profit. He also claimed that McAllister took him to San Salvador, Central America, between October, 1919 and March, 1920, as a secretary, and that McAllister still owed him $5,500 in salary. The jury's verdict was for the full amount sought by Lyons, plus interest.

FORD NOT IN POLITICS.

Secretary So Writes Mayor Furber of Rahway, N. J.

RAHWAY, N. J., Nov. 30.—A letter from Henry Ford to Mayor James R. Furber of this city received here today contains the statement that Ford "is not engaged in any political activities." The letter, bearing the signature of Ford's secretary, was in answer to a letter sent to Ford by the Mayor in which Furber suggested that Ford and Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, running on one ticket, La Follette for President and Ford as Secretary of the Treasury, would be an "unbeatable combination." The Ford letter read:

"Mr. Ford appreciates your sentiments in regard to the coming Presidential campaign. He is not, however, engaged in any political activities whatever and has no connection with any Ford clubs, all of which originated in the initiative of their members."

ONE BROTHER SHORT, TWO LONG OF COTTON

PEABODY & ADAMS PROFITED

Maxwell and Louis Roundtree Directed That Firm in Same Suite of Offices.

Carlisle Roundtree, manager, and said to be real owner of Scott & Norris, a cotton brokerage firm, which lost more than $1,000,000 last month by trading short on a rising market, testified yesterday before Referee in Bankruptcy Harold P. Coffin that he started business with a capital of $250,000. Of this sum $6,000 was in cash and the $244,000 claims arising from a former bankruptcy in which he was involved.

Examined by Tracy S. Voorhees, attorney for the receiver, Roundtree explained that these claims were originally owned by Roundtree Brothers, of which he was the head and which failed in 1918. Roundtree Brothers, he said, had contracts for the delivery of cotton by Texas cotton growers, bought at 30 to 33 cents a pound. Heavy rains made it impossible for the growers to deliver cotton of the quality specified. As a result of the inability to deliver cotton, which Roundtree Brothers had in turn sold for 43 cents a pound, the witness testified, they went into bankruptcy with the claim against the growers listed among the assets.

After various roundabout transactions, Roundtree said, his brother, Louis U. Roundtree, came into possession of the claims which were assigned eventually to Scott & Norris. Roundtree testified that in connection with these claims 110 different suits have been filed, each through a different lawyer.

Roundtree's two brothers, Maxwell and Louis U. Roundtree, had offices in the same suite as Norris & Scott, at 7 Water Street. They traded under the name of Peabody & Adams, and while Scott & Norris, under fictitious names and with false accounts, were short of the market, Peabody & Adams were playing the market the other way.

Attorney Voorhees referred to the fact that the payroll account of Scott & Norris showed outgoings exceeding $2,000 weekly and petty cash of $200 daily.

"How much did your brothers draw from the Scott & Norris payroll?" Mr. Voorhees asked.

The witness replied that Maxwell drew about $40 weekly and Louis about $50. They could also "tap" the petty cash, the witness said, and added that $200 daily was nothing for Scott & Norris to expend in petty cash.

"We used that amount for stamps alone some days," he said. When he was asked about several names appearing on the payroll under initials and figures, Roundtree said that they were fictitious, in order that it might not be known generally what the employes were getting.

It was brought out that five days before the failure receipts totaling $28,000 were entered in the books, but were not shown to have been deposited at their bank.

"Apart from the $65,000 which you have previously testified you gave your brother Louis, what happened to this money?" Mr. Voorhees asked.

"Various sums were paid my attorney and $25,000 was paid my brother Louis the day before the failure."

"Why, then, was the $25,000 entered on the books as payment to Peabody & Adams?" asked Mr Voorhees.

"Well," said the witness, "it was money due to the Peabody & Adams customers who had gone long of the market."

START DISMANTLING SHRINES OF PHARAOH

couches, particularly the Hathor couch with its high horns and long body clearly showed the difficulty of carrying large objects through the passages and doorways, and as the sections of the shrines promised to be just as unwieldy to handle, a close comparison of the interior measurements became an essential preliminary to deciding what portions can be taken out whole and how it is possible to manipulate them and the others within the tomb.

Plan of Action Decided.

The final examination was made on Wednesday, and as all the other essential data have now been collected after the demolition of the wall the work of dismounting the two shrines at present visible will go ahead as quickly as conditions permit.

Meanwhile extensive preparations have been made in the laboratory situated in the tomb of Seti II., where cotton-wool, bandages, instruments, chemicals and other necessary materials have been unpacked ready for dealing promptly with whatever is brought out of King Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb.

Last season the laboratory accommodation was rather cramped, but this year it has been vastly improved so as to make the spot almost unrecognizable. The ground in front and around the laboratory has been levelled and a clear area of the size of a tennis court has been obtained, giving ample space for all operations and affording accommodation for the carpenter's shop, which has been transferred from another tomb lower down, as well as for an open air studio, where the most ingenious contrivances for providing good backgrounds for photographing the more important objects have been installed.

It should be added that in spite of the extraordinary difficulties, the photographing of the contents of the shrine so far disclosed has been most successful.

Heavy Strain on Excavators.

LUXOR, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—This year's work in the tomb of Tutankh-Amen is imposing an immense strain on the excavators, owing to the confined space at their disposal for intricate operations and the intense heat. The lamps being used in the tomb total some 500 candle-power, and the heat rays, beating from the roof upon the excavators' heads, make the task almost unbearable. Mr. Carter and his assistants showed the effects of the strain as they emerged from the tomb for the luncheon interval today.

To illustrate the cramped working conditions, it should be noted that the shrine alone measures 17 by 11 feet and is 9 feet high, with the dimensions of the chamber containing it 21 by 13 feet and 16 feet high. To raise the heavy lid of the sarcophagus which undoubtedly lies within the series of shrines, a differential gear will have to be set up and operated in the limited space. In order to cope with the special lighting conditions for the motion picture record of the excavation, Mr. Carter had to purchase the most rapid moving picture camera obtainable.

The tourist season has not yet fully opened, but most of the visitors are expected to arrive next week. The precincts of the tomb were deserted today save for the excavators and the guards from the Department of Antiquities. On the road up from the Nile only an occasional tourist was encountered.

Profiting by the recent receding of the waters of the Nile, the peasantry is busy plowing up with hump-backed oxen the rich black earth left by the river, while in the irrigation canals men up to their waists in water silently pass nets. The verdant belt between the river and the frowning cliffs of the Valley of the Kings is dotted with herds of shaggy goats and sheep, under the charge of half-naked urchins.

OFFERS PLAN TO END IMMIGRANT FRAUDS

McLaughlin Urges Law to Make Ship and Express Companies Responsible for Agents' Acts.

WILL HELP TO STOP EVILS

State Banking Superintendent Tells Investigators How Swindling Can Be Checked.

Legislation requiring steamship and express companies to do business as principals and to be responsible for the acts of their sub-agents and employes on the premises where the agents do business, was recommended yesterday by George V. McLaughlin, State Banking Superintendent, as a step to curb swindlers who prey upon immigrants. Mr. McLaughlin was a witness before the Legislative Committee investigating exploitation of immigrants.

Mr. McLaughlin said he did not believe that supervision by the State Banking Department "would be of any use" in preventing frauds in money transmission. Infrequent visits by inspectors of the departments, he said, would not be sufficient. On the contrary, such supervision would give the agents a "cloak of respectability," he said, and would relieve the companies of investigating the agents.

Alleged practices of Italian undertakers, as a result of which many families were said to have been left penniless, were described by Dr. Francis Aulets of 322 East 115th Street. "I know of one case," he said, "where a girl 12 years old died. The family had a big funeral with two bands. A week later it was called to attend to another child in the family. They had no money to pay a physician or to buy medicine. They had to appeal to the Red Cross for help. They had paid $1,200—all they had—to the undertaker.

"One of the big costs of Italian funerals is bands. I know of one case where a man was a member of ten different societies and each society wanted to be represented at the funeral with a band. Friends of the family finally persuaded them to get along with four bands."

Commissioner McLaughlin declared that in his opinion the transmission of money was as much a banking business as the receipt of deposits. "I have always been of the opinion and still am that this business, the transmission of which should only be entrusted to corporations and individuals who have financial responsibility, good character and a training adequate to equip them to conduct such a business," he said. The number of private bankers, he explained, had been on the decrease since 1914, while the greatest increase of steamship and express company subagents had been in the same period.

Recommending new legislation, the Commissioner said that the only objection he had heard to his plan, quite apart from the fact that it may put a great many of these agents who had quite recently gone into the business, out of business, is that it would not pay the companies to operate these offices.

"That does not appeal to me like a very good argument," he said. "If it is not profitable to conduct a business which is in fact a banking business, then I say it should not be conducted. But I am inclined to believe that they might, after an experiment, find that it was profitable, if they would follow the example, for instance, set by the railroads and have a central office, all of them paying a share of the rents.

"We are not arguing against supervision of these private bankers because we do not want the responsibility. We will take the responsibility if anybody can show that it will accomplish the result sought for."

Dr. Joseph Boardman of 132 West Fifty-eighth Street declared at the hearing that the testimony of Dr. Antonio Stella before the committee had put the Medical Centre of 318 Lexington Avenue, of which Dr. Boardman is the head, in an unfavorable light and had given the idea that it was "a fake doctors' institution." He said that the Medical Centre is a bona fide institution "doing humanitarian work," and that it was "the only way to fight the faker."

6 LEAP FROM BURNING BOAT.

RAHWAY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Four men and two women, forced to jump overboard from a motor launch which took fire when its store of gasoline exploded a half mile off shore from Sewaren last night, were recovering from exposure at their homes here today.

Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamon, David Smith, Mrs. Sen-Enoch, George Lanning and Edward Haines, all of Rahway, started for a short cruise in Hamon's launch. When off the Sewaren shore an explosion occurred and the launch caught fire, forcing the occupants to jump for their lives.

Frank Lafarr went to the scene in a small rowboat and, guided by the shouts of those in the water, succeeded in rescuing the two women. A crew from a United States Shipping Board vessel rescued three men. Later it was discovered that Haines was missing. Firemen in a motorboat with a powerful searchlight finally found him lying unconscious on the rocks at the base of a channel buoy.

COOLIDGE DECIDES HE CAN PARDON CRAIG

country home at Carmel, N. Y., for Thanksgiving, will not return to his office until Monday. It was said that he had received no information concerning the progress of the effort to get him a pardon, except that contained in the newspapers. Mr. Craig is understood to consider the case completely out of his hands and to regard the action of the United States Supreme Court dismissing the writ of habeas corpus on which he retained his liberty as final, unless the President should chose to intervene with a pardon which Mr. Craig would feel he could accept.

There was some speculation yesterday as to the possibility that the Department of Justice might recommend instead of a pardon a commutation of Mr. Craig's sentence of sixty days in the Essex County Jail to one of possibly one day, which would be merely nominal imprisonment. There was no definite information here that this was being considered in Washington, but some persons who have felt that Judge Mayer's position has been generally misrepresented in the newspapers expressed belief that such a course might solve the difficulty by sustaining the legality of Judge Mayer's action in sentencing Mr. Craig, and at the same time preventing the Controller from passing a night in jail. This possibility has been discussed by Mr. Craig's friends, who said that he would refuse such a commutation of sentence if he could do so.

Another request for a pardon for Mr. Craig was sent to the President by Morris Wahnberg, publisher of The Day, a Jewish daily newspaper.

The Store! A-sparkle with Christmas Festivity

After Thanksgiving the King of Christmas

The King of an Eastern country clapped his hands. "Cover the floors with the richest rugs," he commanded, "and bring out the treasures of my jewel caskets."

"Spread the tables with a royal repast," he said, "and see that there is fine linen for my guests."

"Hang their rooms with broideries of purple and gold," he ordered; "let each one demand his heart's desire, and have nothing lacking."

King Christmas will rule the world during the next four weeks. He is a sort of magician like the Oriental monarch. He spreads Eastern carpets on the bare floors, opens up the jewel caskets, provides fine linens and hangings and anything else that is in his power—if somebody only tells what is wanted.

King Christmas has but to say the word—and the old and shabby furniture that "you have meant to replace" disappears and a new table or dining-room set, or a big comfortable chair stands there.

He waves his scepter, and the empty bookshelves are filled with just the right books, or the sideboard gleams with long-desired silver.

But somebody must tell him!

INDIVIDUAL SHOPS FOR MEN

COURT GIVES HEWITT COOPER UNION POST

Rules That He, Not Peter Cooper Bryce, Present Incumbent, Should Be Trustee.

"OLDEST MALE DESCENDANT"

Decision Says That English Law of Primogeniture, Followed by Trustees, Does Not Hold Here.

A decision as to what Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union, meant when he provided that his "oldest lineal male descendant" should be named a trustee of Cooper Union when any vacancy occurred, was handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday in holding that Peter Cooper Bryce was not legally elected a trustee when the last vacancy occurred and that Edward R. Hewitt, whose claim to election was turned down by the trustees, should have been named.

The present trustees of the Cooper Union are R. Fulton Cutting, J. P. Morgan, Charles W. Gould, Peter Cooper Bryce and Thomas Snell. The action was brought by Mr. Hewitt against Cooper Union to force the other trustees to name him in place of Peter Cooper Bryce. When Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art was organized in 1859, Mr. Cooper had a son Edward, and a daughter, who became the wife of Mayor Abram S. Hewitt. Mayor Hewitt was a trustee and died in 1903. Edward Cooper, who was a trustee, died in 1905, and was succeeded by George L. Rives. Edward Cooper left an only child, Edith, who became Mrs. Bryce and died in 1918, leaving two daughters and a son, Peter Cooper Bryce, born Nov. 28, 1888, and elected a trustee in 1917. Edward R. Hewitt is the second son of Mrs. Sarah E. Hewitt and is now 56 years old.

The Cooper Union trustees contended that the term "oldest lineal male descendant" followed the old English rule of primogeniture, to-wit, the oldest male descendant of the oldest line, the estate passing to a male descendant of a younger line only in case of the failure of a male descendant of the other line.

The decision, written by Justice Martin and in which the eight other justices concurred, said:

"It is very evident that at the time these words were used they had a different meaning in America, where the rule of primogeniture, which the defendant has asked this court to follow in this case was repugnant to the American sense of equality and justice. What the American people thought of that rule may be gleaned from a statement by Thomas Jefferson in his autobiography. He said, 'The abolition of primogeniture, and equal partition of inheritances remove the feudal and unnatural distinctions which made one member of every family rich and all the rest poor, substituting equal partition, the best of all agrarian laws.'

"In looking at the biography of Peter Cooper it will be found that his life and training were so truly American that he could hardly have been supposed to have sought to insert words in the statute creating Cooper Union which should be given the meaning which would then prevail in England alone. We are loath to believe that he could have intended that these words would be given any other meaning than that generally given by American people."

Smith Picks Militia Commissioners.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Adjt. Gen. Westcott, Brig. Gen. Dyer of New York City, commanding the Eighty-seventh Infantry Brigade, and Brig. Gen. Jennings of Auburn, commander of the Fifty-fourth Infantry Brigade, were appointed by Governor Smith today as members of a commission to examine the military laws of the State, the organization and regulations of the militia, the military laws of the United States and the regular army organization and regulations, in order to make the State laws conform to the Federal regulations. Three State Senators and three Assemblymen will be on the commission.

Louis Graveure

FOR the last seven years America has been enjoying to the full one of the most beautiful baritone voices that has ever fallen to the lot of man.

Louis Graveure is the possessor of this exceptional voice, on which, as if it were a rich toned musical instrument, he plays with a feeling and power that is as remarkable as it is rare.

Sonorous, of magnificent volume, liquidly flexible, of splendid range, it lends itself with consummate grace to the greatest operatic arias, the simplest English ballads or the passionate entreaty and faith of religious song.

TOWN HALL

GO hear him and you, too, will acclaim him, as the critics have, "A vocalist so far ahead of other baritones as to seem representative of an altogether different art from theirs."

So enthralling is this renowned artist's singing that, having heard him, you will regret the concert's end. But it need not end for you. You can hear him as often as you wish through Columbia Records because Graveure has made many beautiful recordings of his splendid voice. Ask any Columbia Dealer to play Graveure's records for you.

And, as you listen, the richness of tone, the velvet smoothness of outpouring melody will bring back the singer himself in all his magnetism and charming personality. Graveure makes records exclusively for Columbia.

EPINARD MAY RUN FOUR RACES HERE

Owner Wertheimer, Sailing for New York Today, Will Consider Offers.

WANTS TEN-DAY INTERVALS

Requests That First Match Be at Six Furlongs and Others at Increasing Distances.

PARIS, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, France's champion three-year-old race horse, will leave for New York tomorrow on board the steamer Paris. On his arrival in the United States he will be ready to consider any responsible proposition to send Epinard to the United States next Spring to meet America's best in a match race over any distance up to one mile and a half.

M. Wertheimer would prefer that the race be held in France, but the negotiations which have been in progress since Nov. 3 to arrange an international cup race on the Longchamp course for May 6 next year have been held up by the Vincennes Racetrack Society, to which this date originally was allotted, refusing to yield.

To the Associated Press this evening, M. Wertheimer said he was anxious to prove that he owns the best horse in the world and that he was ready to ship Epinard across the Atlantic for a race or a series of match races. Epinard will be prepared to meet an American sprinter over the six furlong route, then in ten days race another horse for a mile and then at similar intervals arrange contests at a mile and a quarter, and a mile and a half.

"If a responsible racing organization in America is willing to organize such a series of races," said M. Wertheimer, "I am ready for Epinard to meet any four horses they may select."

All hope of organizing a race over the Longchamp course has not yet been abandoned. Under Secretary of State Fate and Minister of Agriculture Cheron today requested the Vincennes Society to relinquish its hold on the May 3 date at Longchamp in return for another date later in the month, which M. Cheron said he was prepared to grant the society. The Board of Directors will meet tomorrow and if they accept M. Cheron's request M. Wertheimer will be informed of this fact by wireless on board the steamer Paris.

No official word has been received here regarding any plans M. Wertheimer may have for his three-year-old colt Epinard, either for races in France or on this side of the water. The statement that he is prepared to send Epinard to the United States is a complete surprise and quite contrary to earlier dispatches, which insisted that any international race should be held in France. Until Wertheimer places his propositions before the Jockey Club or some of the racing associations in this country nothing can be done in the matter. It has been hoped by Jockey Club officials that another race for the International Challenge Cup can be arranged here for next season. It also has been intimated in official circles that other foreign horses are likely to come here eventually in search of the rich purses that are now being offered by various racing organizations.

GIANTS SIGN NEW PITCHER.

Gross, From Blue Grass League, to Report in Spring.

John Gross, a right handed pitcher from the Mt. Sterling (Ky.) club of the Blue Grass League, was signed yesterday by the Giants for Spring delivery. Only sparse information could be obtained concerning John, but it appears that he is 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds and flings a wicked curve. He lives in Hazard, Ky. According to John McGraw, as relayed by Jim Toomey, Gross is a promising young twirler and he will receive an extended trial with the Giants "somewhere in Florida."

McGraw, by the way, has cabled the Giants that he will arrive back in this country on Dec. 8. The next day he will hop aboard the Twentieth Century en route to the league meetings in Chicago, starting on the 10th. McGraw will hardly pause in his journey from Europe to New York to Chicago in quest of ball players to strengthen the Giants in the pitching box, behind the bat, in the infield and probably in the outfield. Beyond that John J. seeks nothing in the Chicago trading mart.

BENDER AND GULOTTA WIN.

Two Amateur Champions Victors in Westchester-Biltmore Bouts.

Two champions were victorious last night in the amateur boxing tournament conducted at the Westchester-Biltmore Club, Rye, N. Y. In the 112-pound class Al Bender of the Union Settlement A. C., national flyweight champion, carried off the decision over Ed Levy of the Williamsburg Y. M. H. A. after three interesting rounds. The other titleholder to triumph was Paul Gulotta, National A. C., the metropolitan featherweight champion. Gulotta won the popular decision in three rounds over Morris Beloff of the Educational Alliance.

The summaries:

RELAY DATES ARE NAMED.

Drake Games Will Be Held April 25 and 26 at Des Moines.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Kenneth L. Wilson, Director of Athletics at Drake University, announced today the Drake relays would be held at Des Moines on April 25 and 26, the same dates as the Penn relays.

Missouri Valley Conference Directors and track coaches here for the meeting of Western Conference athletic representatives, pledged their entries to the Drake relays.

Broke Leg in Race, Finished 4-Mile Run, Then Collapsed

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Nov. 30.—Paul Ellis of Dunlap, Iowa, a student at Morningside College, finished the annual Thanksgiving Day four-mile cross-country run of the North Central Conference with a broken leg. When the runners started on their race, Ellis fell and fractured a bone in his right leg. He finished the race and then collapsed on the field.

WALKING DIRECTORS OVERRULE JUDGES

A decision overruling the judges of the City Hall to Coney Island ten and one-half mile handicap walk and adopting the order to finish as it was originally recorded in the thirteenth annual heel-and-toe event held on Thanksgiving Day afternoon, was reached yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Walkers' Club of America which conducted the race. Announcement to this effect was made by Adolph Arnold of the Pastime A. C., a member of the Board of Directors, who said that the prizes had been ordered awarded on the basis of the order of finish, regardless of the disqualifications recommended by some of the judges along the course.

Under this decision Charles Eschenbach of the Pastime A. C., received first prize; George Bristow, Canadian Y. M. C. A., second prize; Willie Plant, Morningside A. C., first fast time prize; Philip Granville, Canadian Y. M. C. A., second fast time prize; the Canadian Y. M. C. A. team prize; Pastime A. C. second team prize; Long Island City Athletics, third team prize and the Knights of Columbus, Long Island Centre, fourth team prize.

It was a dispute over the disqualification of Eschenbach and the entire Canadian team for alleged unfair walking which precipitated the discussion that prevented the officials from officially adopting an order of finish immediately after the race. Arnold explained yesterday that it had been decided in advance of the race that no disqualifications were to be made without first being subjected to the approval of the Board of Governors.

Arnold announced that six judges officiated at the walk. They were Messrs. Pursy, Parry, Nichol, Jacobs, Jessup and Samuel Schwartz, President of the W. C. A. and Chairman of the organization's Board of Directors. Following the confusion attending the attempt to decide upon an order of finish the officials decided to abandon the task pending the outcome of a meeting of the Board of Governors.

In explaining the decision of the Board of Governors yesterday, Arnold said:

"Perhaps some of the contests did not strictly observe the rules of walking, but this was not to be expected. There were places on the course where it would have been a physical impossibility for any athletes to walk according to competitive standard. The attitude of the Board of Governors was a liberal one under the circumstances. They recognized that the athletes could not be expected to adhere as strictly to the rules as if they were walking on the smooth surface of an indoor board floor or an outdoor track."

The Walkers Club of America gave the Canadian team which made the trip here from Hamilton, Ontario, a farewell dinner last night at the Hotel Yates. The team plans to leave for home today.

JEFFERSON PURSE TO HERMIS KEMBLE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—F. Delatour's four-year-old colt Hermis Kemble, well handled by Jockey I. Parke, this afternoon won the Jefferson Purse at a mile and seventy yards, the principal race on the card for the second day of the meeting at Jefferson Park. The chestnut son of Prince Hermis and Fanny Kemble showed excellent form. He was hustled into the lead with a rush, stood a hard drive and held S. N. Holman's Tender Seth safely in the last sixteenth to win easily by two lengths. Ten lengths back came Make Up, while John Finn brought up the rear of the four-horse field.

J.D. ROCKEFELLER JR. AIDS OLYMPIC FUND

Donates $2,500 to New York Body and Colonel Thompson Gives Same Amount.

WIBORG SUBSCRIBES $1,000

Spalding, Otis Elevator Company, Millrose A. A. and the I. C. A. A. A. Pledge $500 Each.

The drive for the $100,000 specified as New York's quota of the $350,000 fund necessary to send America's team of 350 athletes to the Olympic games in Paris next year has received an encouraging start. This was revealed yesterday with the announcement by Chairman Gustavus T. Kirby of the committee in charge of the local drive of the first major donations received at the office of Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, general director of the campaign fund.

Heading the list of initial subscribers is John D. Rockefeller Jr. with a donation of $2,500. Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the American Olympic Committee, also has donated $2,500. Other donations announced were: F. B. Wiborg, East Hampton, L. I., $1,000; Walter J. Spalding, New York City, $500; Otis Elevator Company of New York City, $500; Millrose Athletic Association of New York, $500; Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, $500.

The initial subscriptions and the acceptance by Mr. Kirby of the position of Chairman of the committee in charge of the local drive were announced simultaneously. Chairman Kirby has long been a prominent figure in athletic affairs. He is Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the I. C. A. A. A. A., First Vice President of the Public Schools Athletic League and Treasurer of the Playground and Recreation Association of America. He was formerly President of the Amateur Athletic Union. In accepting the chairmanship of the New York committee Mr. Kirby said:

"I believe that when the people of this country realise that the American Olympic team is representative of the nation as a whole and not of sport circles alone, they will consider it both a duty and a privilege to support their team with traditional American generosity. The more widespread this support is the better, for every thinking man and woman in the country must look upon the American contestants as his or her personal representatives in the field of international athletic contests. Small contributions as well as large ones will be needed in order to realize our objective, namely, to provide suitable transportation, equipment, entertainment and housing for our team."

NAVY MAY NOT PLAY ON PACIFIC COAST

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30.—The Naval Academy football team may not play at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day, as planned, since the University of California, champion of the Pacific Coast, has declined to be its opponent. It is possible, however, that another opponent may be selected.

The arrangements with the Tournament of Roses Association was that the Naval Academy should play the champion collegiate team of the Pacific Coast. It is by no means certain that the Navy wishes to play any other team while not claiming the Eastern championship, Navy supporters do not see any benefit in the game unless the strongest team of the section is the opponent.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 30.—The tournament of Roses Association today telegraphed the University of Washington football team an invitation to meet Annapolis Naval Academy team in the annual East versus West game on New Year's Day in the Rose bowl here.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 30.—Following receipt of an invitation for the University of Washington to play football with the United States Naval Academy at Pasadena New Year's Day, Darwin M. Meisnest, graduate manager at Washington, announced that this bid and one from the Community Development Association of Los Angeles to meet Syracuse University Christmas Day will be considered by the Faculty Athletic Committee Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

COLGATE TO PLAY W. VA.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 30.—Colgate University will meet West Virginia University in the Dedication Day game for the new stadium here on Nov. 8, 1924, according to an agreement reached between the graduate managers of the two institutions today. The Mountaineers' stadium will be completed in the Summer, according to present plans, and will be used for all the games next season, but the real dedication game will be with Colgate, which takes the place occupied by Penn State on the West Virginia schedule.

MAY DECIDE SCHOOL TITLE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Coaches of the Cedar Rapids (Iowa.) High School and Scott High School of Toledo, Ohio, met here tonight to arrange a post-season game for the national interscholastic football championship. The game, if sanctioned by the Faculties of the schools, will be played in Toledo, Dec. 8.

The Scott High eleven has defeated Spokane, Wash., and Watertown, N. Y., in important intersectional games this season, while Cedar Rapids holds victories over Harrisburg, Pa., and other high school elevens.

FEAR MURCHISON MAY HAVE TO QUIT

A. A. U. Officials Hear Injuries in Auto Accident Might Force Sprinter to Retire.

RUNNER EXPRESSES HOPE

Will Not Compete Indoors, but Expects to Return to Track Next Spring.

Athletic circles were shocked yesterday to learn that Loren Murchison, Newark A. C. athlete who is regarded as one of the foremost sprinters in the country, had received injuries which probably will deprive America of his services in the Eighth Olympic Games in Paris next year and may compel the former St. Louis sprint sensation to retire permanently from track competition.

In an automobile accident in Philadelphia last Monday the national sprint champion and indoor record holder sustained a dislocated vertebra and strained several of the ligaments in his back. In addition, he received lacerations of the face, which, while painful, are not serious. Murchison, it was learned at Amateur Athletic Union headquarters yesterday, has been confined to his bed since the accident. At the Newark A. C. in Newark, N. J., it was said the sprint star was about yesterday, unable to walk erect and walking with a cane.

As far as could be learned Murchison sustained his injuries when an automobile in which he was riding was struck by another auto. He received medical treatment in Philadelphia and then returned to Newark, where he has been under the care of a physician since. He visited this city yesterday to undergo an examination and be treated by a specialist.

Rubien Expresses Regret.

Expressing the feeling of the A. A. U., Secretary Rubien said:

"The absence of Murchison from our Olympic team would be a serious loss. I hope the reports of his injuries are greatly exaggerated. I regard Murchison as the foremost sprinter in the country today. He is being looked upon as an important factor for us in the Olympic Games through his wonderful sprinting ability. If he is unable to make the team we will be deprived of the services of an athlete who is regarded as a sure point winner for America."

Murchison was hopeful last night that he would be able to resume competition next Spring with the object of obtaining a place on the American Olympic team. The sprint star, however, declared he did not expect to compete in any races on the board floor during the indoor season.

"I have been advised that my injuries will require daily treatments and complete rest for an indefinite period," said Murchison. "I have no assurance as to when I will be able to resume competition, but I am hoping I will be back in my running togs next Spring. Right now I don't think I'll compete at all during the indoor season. The doctors who have treated me here and in Philadelphia think that with rest and careful treatment I'll be as well as ever within a few months. I hope their expectations are fulfilled. I certainly hate to have to end my athletic career right now."

Holds Many Records.

His performances as a sprinter have earned Murchison recognition as America's premier sprint runner and one of the greatest sprinters of all time. He holds the national 100-yard and 220-yard outdoor A. A. U. titles and the 60-yard and 300-yard national indoor championships, in addition to the local sprint honors. He also holds the world's record of 8 1-5 seconds for sixty yards, a mark he made last January here, after having twice previously equalled the old record of 6 2-5 seconds.

He was a member of the American Olympic Team which invaded Antwerp in 1920 and qualified as the leading sprinter on the squad through victories over Charley Paddock in the Olympic try-outs at Harvard stadium. In the Olympic games Murchison, regarded as the favorite for the 100-meter title, got off poorly and had to be content with sixth position. This setback affected his running in the 200-meter event, in which he finished fourth.

California Won 33, Tied Two, Made 1,373 Points in 4 Years

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 30.—The University of California football team, champion of the Pacific Coast Conference for four years, has won 32 games during that time, played two tie games and suffered no defeats. California scored a grand total of 1,373 points to its opponents' 88. This is said to be the most impressive record of any college in the country for a like period. Andy Smith, formerly an All-American fullback at the University of Pennsylvania, is coach at California.

GLENLIVET IS FIRST AT HAVANA TRACK

Captures 5½-Furlong Dash at Odds of 5 to 1—Course Is Heavy.

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 30.—Clear skies favored the second of the one-hundred-day race meet at Oriental Park here this afternoon, but the course was heavy. The card consisted of six overnight events, being devoid of any stake features.

The Florida Stable's Glenlivet, which had campaigned on the New York tracks during the Fall, won the fifth race, a five and a half furlong claiming race for three-year-olds. Rapid Stride was second and Momentum third. Glenlivet was at odds of 5 to 1.

J. L. Wade's five-year-old Cabin Creek won the last race, at one mile and seventy yards, defeating Black Watch II. and Flying Prince. Cabin Creek's time was 1:50 2-5, which was fairly good considering the slow going.

Prior to the running of the first race Similkameen Boy, which was carded as a starter, was ordered withdrawn by the stewards on the ground that he was not registered with the Jockey Club. It is understood that the horse was registered with the Canadian Racing Association. Similkameen Boy is a four-year-old colt, son of Tellurium and Third Chance. He is owned by L. Gibson and trained by J. Douglas.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 30.—The eleven-day Autumn meeting of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will come to a close tomorrow afternoon at Prince George Park with a card of seven races. The chief event on the program is the Endurance Handicap at a mile for two-year-olds, with $7,500 in added money. Sixteen are named to go overnight. Place of honor is given to the Rancocas Stable's Stanwix and Mad Play, both of which are asked to take up 122 pounds. The stable evidently will make a big play for the money, as Hildreth also has named Tester, allotted 116 pounds, and Bracadale, at 118 pounds.

The Au Revoir Handicap, for all ages at a mile and seventy yards, with a purse of $1,500, has attracted eight with Exodus at top weight of 115 pounds. The four Rancocas two-year-olds are also named in this race and it is probable that the entry will be split.

FOREST LORE WINS HANDICAP AT BOWIE

SEDGEFIELD DISQUALIFIED

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 30.—R. T. Wilson Jr.'s three-year-old chestnut colt Forest Lore came home a victor this afternoon in the Consolation Handicap for all ages at a mile and a sixteenth, beating four others and running the distance over a muddy track in 1:51 3-5. M. Fator had the mount and it was the boy's only winning effort of the day. The winner was the public choice at 7 to 4 in the betting and earned $1,000 for his owner.

The new starting gate was anything but a success when it was tried in the sixth race at a mile and a sixteenth, for all ages, and the result of that contest, in which the horse first home was disqualified, nearly caused a riot. The decision of the stewards started a demonstration about the stand when E. K. Bryson's Sedgefield, first past the winning post, was set back and the race awarded to T. E. Crist's old black gelding Whalebone, which finished second. The interference came at the stretch turn, where Babin allowed Sedgefield to swerve over and bump Whalebone.

It was a badly mixed up race. The new starting gate was brought into play for a test and trouble began at once. Lad's Love refused to back into his stall. Finally, however, the field was sent away to a poor start, Fitzrue being completely left, while half of the field was considerably out of it.

Whalebone, from his post position on the rail, was one of the few to get away well, and he jumped into the lead at once, showing good speed. He opened out a lead of three lengths. Sedgefield came up on the outside and bumped into Whalebone as he was passing him, but the latter held on gamely after the interference and was only three lengths behind the leader at the finish. Whalebone was eight lengths in front of Flying Devil at the end, the latter moving up to take second money after Sedgefield's disqualification. Zama took the short end of the purse.

Sedgefield, which carried 115 pounds and was giving ten pounds to Whalebone, was the favorite, while Whalebone, as winner, paid $24.70 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. Zama was the rank outsider, being at better than 25 to 1 in the wagering.

An overcoat that a few years ago caused folks to turn and stare now looks conservative!

But even in this day of fancy over-checks the velvet collared oxford has its place.

Too dressy?

Only as dressy as you want it to be. As correct for everyday business wear as it is with evening dress.

Yes, sir, you can buy a good one for $45 and consider it a good long-term investment.

BIG TEN RETAINS GRIFFITH AS HEAD

TO RAISE OFFICIALS' PAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Major John L. Griffith, Commissioner of Athletics of the Western Conference for two years, tonight was reappointed for another two-year term, with an increase in salary, at the annual meeting of the athletic directors of the Big Ten universities. The athletic directors met preliminary to the meeting of the football coaches tomorrow to draft the 1924 gridiron schedules.

The reappointment of Major Griffith, the directors said, was a reward for his efficient administration. The position was created to promote more friendly athletic relations among the universities and also to pass on the numerous eligibility cases.

Major Griffith, the founder of the Drake relays, had been offered the athletic directorship of a Missouri Valley Conference institution, it was reported, and his services were in demand at other schools.

After considering the plea of the football officials, who demanded an increase to $100 each from $50 for officiating, the directors voted to recommend a compromise fee of $75 for each official. The recommendation probably will be favorably acted upon by the Faculty committee of the Big Ten at its session tomorrow. The directors also voted to raise the fee of the basketball referees from $30 to $35.

Take Final Action Today.

The directors, after an all-day session, went into conference with the Faculty representatives tonight to make their recommendations and discuss questions governing athletics for the 1924 season. Passing of a rule to prohibit the protesting of an athlete for the season opens will be among the questions to be considered. The Faculty representatives will meet tomorrow to take final action.

The meeting of the directors and gathering of the football coaches buzzed with excitement today over the prospects of arranging intersectional games for next season. It is practically assured, however, that there will be only a few changes in the gridiron slates of any team.

The prospects for a 1924 battle between Illinois and Michigan, which divided honors this season, appear bright. Coach Yost of the Wolverines asserted he would be glad to arrange a game, provided a satisfactory date could be agreed upon. Yost said Minnesota, Ohio State, Iowa and Wisconsin would be played in 1924, and if his dates could be arranged to accommodate Illinois he would be pleased to do so.

Expects Few Changes.

Coach Stagg of Chicago declared he had no correspondnce with Eastern teams relative to an intersectional game and there probably would be no radical change in the Maroon schedule for next season.

Coach Spaulding of Minnesota is anxious to arrange a game with either Chicago or Illinois, but asserted that Michigan, Wisconsin or Iowa would not be dropped from the Gopher schedule.

Coach Rockne of Notre Dame, a non-conference school, said his 1924 schedule would be limited to nine games, and, if possible, he would arrange a game with Wisconsin. Notre Dame, the conqueror of the Army and Princeton, played ten games this season, losing only to Nebraska.

In addition to the football schedules, the baseball, track, wrestling and swimming coaches will meet tomorrow to arrange their schedules. The conference indoor track and field and swimming championships probably will be awarded to Northwestern, while Ohio State and Minnesota have made overtures for the outdoor track championships.

HOLY CROSS READY FOR BOSTON COLLEGE

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 30.—Braves Field, with its seating capacity of 42,000, may be too small to accommodate the crowd which is expected to turn out for the annual football battle between Holy Cross and Boston College here tomorrow.

Two years ago the Worcester Purple won by a large score, but last Fall the Boston College Eagle had its chance to scream, winning a close game because of Holy Cross's fumbling. This season Boston College is stronger than in 1922, having a better attack and a remarkable kicker in Darling, who is expected to be the most versatile punter and passer in the game tomorrow if he performs according to the form he has shown all year. Holy Cross has no kicker to match Darling, but has a star halfback in Glennon, and is ready for the battle.

The Boston team has been beaten 7 to 6 by Marquette, this standing as the only defeat of the season, and in no other game has the Eagle's goal line been crossed or a field goal kicked. Boston has scored 151 points this season to 26 for Holy Cross. Harvard beat Holy Cross 7 to 0 and Fordham got a touchdown in a match which Holy Cross won 21 to 7. Boston beat Fordham 20 to 0. The Eagle and Purple scored 25 and 32 points, respectively, against Providence College, while Holy Cross beat Vermont 10 to 0 before Boston and Vermont played a 0 to 0 tie.

The line-up:

BOSTON.		HOLY CROSS.

Vanderbilt and W. and L. Have Undefeated Conference Records.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 30.—With the defeat yesterday of Alabama by Florida, Southern sport writers will have to muster all their available statistics to select the champion of the Southern Conference. The selection is to be made by two sport writers form each of the States comprising the Conference, the result to be made made known Sunday morning.

The choice will lie between Vanderbilt and Washington and Lee, both with undefeated conference records. None of their games afford a basis of comparison, but Vanderbilt appears to be slightly favored at this time. The sports writers are to cast votes on first, second and third choice, the eleven receiving the greatest number of points winning the award.

Hawley May Quit Dartmouth Because of Business Duties

(By The Associated Press).

Dartmouth may be without the services of Jesse B. Hawley as football coach next year, it was learned yesterday. Hawley, here with his Big Green eleven for the Thanksgiving Day game with Columbia, admitted that his business duties in Chicago were such that he doubted whether he would be able to obtain the necessary leave of absence for gridiron coaching at Hanover in 1924. The record made by Hawley's team this year, his first in direct charge, stamped it as one of the best Dartmouth has turned out in recent years. Graduates and undergraduates are particularly anxious to have him continue in charge because of the stiff schedule Dartmouth has arranged for next season, when Yale will be added to a list already including Harvard, Cornell and other powerful foes.

COLUMBIA PRAISES WORK OF KOPPISCH

Opinion Is That Injury to Captain Had Much to Do With Defeat by Dartmouth.

The heroism of Captain Walter Koppisch, who played thirteen minutes of the second period against Dartmouth with a fractured elbow, was the chief subject of conversation at Columbia yesterday. Koppisch's exhibition of endurance was one of the few bright spots in the Blue and White's 31—6 defeat at the hands of the Green, and the chief reward for Koppisch's pluckiness is likely to be his election to the football captaincy for the third year in succession, probably setting a football record in this respect.

The injured captain was about the campus yesterday wearing a plaster cast around his right arm. After Thursday's game he was taken to a private hospital, where an X-ray revealed that the humerus bone near the elbow had been cleanly broken. He will have to wear the cast for four weeks or more and keep the arm hanging stiffly down at his side. There is some danger of stiffness in the elbow after the splint has been removed, but Koppisch and the surgeons believed that within six weeks he would be ready to start practice for the indoor track season.

Koppisch was first hurt shortly after the second period began when he plunged into the line on an off-tackle play. His elbow was badly injured at that time, and when a few minutes later Peace tossed a lateral pass at him Koppisch, unable to bend his right arm, fumbled the ball. In the scramble for the horsehide a Dartmouth player fell across his arms and aggravated the injury. Dr. Paul Withington, who came out on the field and examined the elbow, was unable to tell whether it was fractured, and Koppisch stayed in by a game effort. In the dressing room, between the halves, it was found that his arm was broken, but it is not known whether it was fractured on the line buck or on the lateral pass play.

Will Be in Indoor Meets.

Barring possible stiffness in the elbow, Koppisch is expected to be as good as new within six or seven weeks. The injury will delay him in starting preparation for Winter work, but the Columbian, nevertheless, will be in all of the indoor meets that he had planned to be in.

Koppisch, although a senior, is eligible to play next year. The new rule at Columbia forbidding more than three years of varsity competition was passed after he entered the university. Koppisch did not play on the freshman eleven he is entitled to one more year on the varsity. It is considered a certainty that he will return, and almost as much of a certainty that he will be elected captain for the third successive year, which would be something unique. He shattered all Columbia traditions by being chosen captain for his junior year, and another gridiron captaincy, combined with his present track captaincy, would mean that the Buffalo lad had been leader of four Columbia teams in four years.

Coach Percy Haughton, so the story goes, read the riot act to the varsity squad after Thursday's game.

"If Columbia ever tossed a game away, it was the game today," said Haughton as a starter, and, getting warmed up, he launched on a philippic in which no names were mentioned, but in which everybody knew who was being referred to. Any doubts that Haughton was not deeply disappointed by the outcome were speedily removed. The injury to Koppisch was a severe blow to him, but the later showing of the team was even worse, according to Haughton, and he spared no one except Koppisch in his sweeping condemnation of the general play. Eye-witnesses say that most of the squad was in tears when "P. H." finished.

Planning for Next Year.

He ended by saying that the 1923 season was through but that the 1924 season was beginning that same day, Haughton, of course, will be back at Columbia next season, and the signing of a contract is a mere formality. He has already started to plan for next Fall.

Columbia rooters were disappointed by the size of the Dartmouth score and heartbroken by the injury to Koppisch. The general opinion was that, with the captain in for all four periods, the Haughton machine would have held Dartmouth to a close score, with a good chance to have won. The Columbians insist that, with Koppisch clearing out the interference, Pease would have had an unobstructed field for his run following the kick-off at the start of the third period. With the Blue and White ahead after that touchdown, the Columbians refuse to believe that Dartmouth would have scored any of the three touchdowns in the fourth period, especially with Koppisch in there as the backbone of the offense and defense.

OXFORD STRONG IN HOCKEY.

Oxford is being referred to as the wonder hockey team of the season among followers of the sport across the ocean. That Bromley should be such an effective combination in view of its resources is looked upon as only natural, but Oxford's showing, after having been forced to build up a practically new team is considered little short of sensational. Indications point to a duel between Oxford and Bromley for the team championship, although Cambridge has a team that is not considered out of the running.

Oxford already has scored remarkable victories over Burbiton by 10 to 1 over the strong Oxfordshire eleven that includes E. Hartley, considered the best halfback of the season, by 6 to 1 and then over Hempstead, overwhelmed by exactly the same score as was Burbiton. Oxford's scoring feat is all the more striking because of the fact that the Hempstead team included H. H. Bennett, the English captain and the holder of the record number of "caps" for a back. C. A. Wilkinson, an old international; R. G. Lampard-Vaughan, the Welsh international, and W. F. Phillips, the Oxford captain of a few seasons ago.

One of the reasons for this showing on the part of the Oxford team is that the varsities are obtaining a regular succession of skillful players from such great hockey nurseries as Marlborough and St. Lawrence's. Ramsgate and other schools that years ago solely devoted their energies to football. The increased popularity of hockey among the schools is having its inevitable effect on the standard of the game.

JUDGES DISAGREED ON GENARO DECISION

The decision which gave Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, the honors over Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight, in their twelve-round battle at Madison Square Garden last Thursday night, was not unanimous. The vote stood two to one in favor of Genaro, the other ballot being cast fro Tremaine. The lack of unanimity was disclosed yesterday when the voting slips of the judges and referee were opened at the offices of the State Athletic Commission.

It developed that Referee Johnny McAvoy and Judge Tommy Shortell each cast a ballot for Genaro. The vote of Judge Charles Meegan went to Tremaine. In the newspaper accounts critics at the ringside were directly opposed to the judge and referee. By a ratio of better than 2 to 1 the critics disagreed with the decision in a canvass of eighteen papers, three of them Cleveland publications, one a Brooklyn paper and thirteen local papers. Those who thought Tremaine was entitled to the decision numbered eleven. For Genaro there were five writers who supported the verdict. Two critics thought a draw would have been a fair decision.

The result of the contest caused considerable comment in boxing circles yesterday. The Genaro followers praised the decision and said that the little Italian had outboxed and outgeneraled Tremaine. Those who thought Tremaine was entitled to the decision attributed the verdict for Genaro to Tremaine's continual holding and the many little tricks he introduced, evidently, in an effort to swing popular favor his way. One of Tremaine's favorite tricks was to act as if he were being butted whenever he and Genaro came together at close quarters.

At least once Genaro was warned for using his head as a battering ram and on another occasion the little Italian rammed his skull under Tremaine's chin as he sought frantically to unloosen a vise-like grip Tremaine had on his arms. But there were several occasions when Tremaine's protruding chin was raised upward while Genaro's head was four or five inches away.

On the question of holding there was no room for doubt as to the guilty one. Tremaine did all the holding during the bout. This was one of the surprising features of the contest. Spectators left the arena wondering why Tremaine, with every physical advantage, should have affected a timidity which prevented him from ever taking a chance with his cagey little Italian rival. The spectators still are wondering why Tremaine did not consistently follow the dashing aggressiveness he flashed sporadically.

As a consequence of the comparatively dull action of the bout and the divided opinion on the result it is likely that Promoter Tex Rickard will in future avoid matches between boxers of different classes, particularly in the lighter ring divisions. The Garden promoter said as much yesterday in discussing the contest. The match was a disappointment from a financial viewpoint as well as competitively. Rickard said the receipts were slightly in excess of $18,000, an admittedly poor Garden "house." The promoter refused to comment on the decision but said without hesitation that the semi-final bout between Eddie (Cannonball) Martin and Charley (Phil) Rosenberg was a more satisfactory bout, from a competitive standpoint, than the featured contest.

WILLS-FIRPO BOUT MAY BE HELD HERE

Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, and Harry Wills, New Orleans negro, challenger for the world's heavyweight title, may clash in an elimination bout under the promotion of Tex Rickard next May 5, but if such is their intention Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, knows nothing about it, and promoter Rickard declines to commit himself.

The cabled dispatch from Argentina in which Firpo said he would be ready to face Wills on May 5, produced unusual activity in boxing circles yesterday, but nothing definite came out of all the clamor and extensive research for facts.

Rickard reiterated his readiness to conduct a Firpo-Wills bout here or any place else where the match would attract a satisfactory gate, and said that he had talked with Firpo about meeting Wills before the South American left this country for his home. But the promoter said that he had heard nothing definite from Firpo by cable or embassy, and sought to establish a mild mystery about the whole situation by declaring he was not now in a position to announce any details of his plans for big bouts next outdoor season.

Mullins, speaking for Wills, said that the Firpo matter was all news to him and added that he had no intention of matching the Brown Panther of New Orleans against the Wild Bull of the Pampas unless the financial inducements were adequate to compensate Wills and himself in the event that Wills was defeated by Firpo and thus lost a chance at the championship which Jack Dempsey holds.

Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, was not about yesterday. At his office his secretary, Miss Ethel Platt, declared she had neither seen nor heard from Kearns all day.

Promoter Rickard indicated that he was prepared to hold a Firpo-Wills bout as a prelude to a heavyweight championship bout if he could induce Wills to accept the match. Asked if he intended holding a Firpo-Wills bout in the Polo Grounds in the event that he arranged such a match, Rickard said he might, but was not sure. He added that he would build a new arena if he had any guarantee on the length of time boxing would be permitted by law in this State. Any other leading questions drew "I don't want to say anything now. It might hurt my business," as a reply from Rickard.

Mullins, while not wildly enthusiastic over the prospect of Wills facing Firpo before the negro heavyweight had a chance at the world's title, nevertheless asserted he was ready to listen to any proposition Rickard or anybody else had to submit for Wills's services.

"I don't know anything about a Firpo-Wills match beyond the fact that I have received no offer for such a bout," said Mullins. "I can't see, however, why Wills should be compelled to take on Firpo before boxing Dempsey. Firpo had a chance at Dempsey and I certainly think Wills is entitled to as much consideration as Firpo. Wills offered to box Firpo in Summer before Firpo tackled Willard, but, despite statements to the contrary, Firpo declined the issue.

"Now I don't see why Wills should be compelled to box Firpo, and feeling as I do right now, I won't consent to such a match until I am absolutely convinced that it is impossible to obtain for Wills a bout with Dempsey. That's the match we want and the one we are going to keep after until every effort has proved futile. Maybe then I'll consider a Firpo bout if the offer comes up to what I think Wills's services worth."

Police Stop Boxing Matches On Orders of Chicago Mayor

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Seven boxing matches, headed by Jack Hausner of New York and Ernie Gooseman, were stopped by the police tonight on orders of Mayor William E. Dever after Arthur Burrage Farwell of the Chicago Law and Order League had made complaint. This was the first attempt to resume boxing in Chicago since the boxing match between Benny Leonard and Pinky Mitchell several months ago, which broke up in a free-for-all fight.

THIRD ARMY CORPS TO PLAY MARINES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Coolidge appears to have made no engagement to attend the annual service football game between teams representing the Third Army Corps Area and Marine Corps at American League Park tomorrow. If he attends it will be after an eleventh hour decision, and may depend on weather, the forecast for which is fair and cold, after a day of rain.

Thousands of soldiers, marines and sailors will invade Washington for the game, which has brought a gay swirl to the capital in anticipation of one of the biggest football contests ever held in this city. New cement stands, almost doubling the capacity of American League Park, had to be built to accommodate the crowd that will attend tomorrow.

The marines at Quantico gave their team a rousing send-off at noon today. The team is billeted at the New Willard. The Army team will arrive tomorrow morning from Camp Meade, and stay at the Hotel Washington. Four thousand marines will arrive on special trains tomorrow and march under command of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, headed by a 200-piece band, to the ball park.

The army will come in several detachments, 700 men from Camp Meade, 600 from Baltimore, 150 from Edgewood Arsenal and 1,500 from the military district of Washington, and others from Fort Monroe, Langley Field and Fort Eustis. The army also will have a band of 200 pieces.

There will be a gala ball at the New Willard tomorrow night, to which every officer in and around Washington has been invited, and a big ball for the enlisted men and many theatre parties.

PLAYED WITH MIND BLANK.

Dartmouth End Lost Memory During Game With Harvard.

"Red" Dunn, the Marquette captain, who played a whole game with a broken arm, seems to have set a gridiron fashion in heroism. The latest story of stoic endurance comes from Dartmouth, where it is said that "Hookey" Hagenbuckle, right end on the Big Green, has no memory of what happened in the first quarter of the Harvard-Dartmouth contest at Cambridge earlier in the season. Hagenbuckle's loss of memory occurred on the kick-off, when he rushed down the field and tackled Jack Hammond and was knocked out in the process. He insisted on staying in the game, but for the remainder of the quarter he was so groggy that Hatch, the right tackle, had to tell him what to do on each play. It wasn't until the second period that Hagenbuckle discovered that there was a football game under way, although he had been in most of the plays in the first period.

FORDHAM TO MEET GEORGETOWN TODAY

Frank Gargan's Fordham football squad had its final practice of the year yesterday in preparation for the Georgetown game at the Yankee Stadium today. The workout consisted of a light signal drill. The team was outfitted with new mud cleats in case the field should be muddy at game time today.

Three Fordham regulars will play their last college football game for the Maroon. They are Captain Lou Healey, Tommy Meyers and Lyman Walbridge, veterans of four years.

For the first time since the Boston College contest the entire team will be in good shape. The Maroon will present its full strength in its last contest of the season. Brennan, Hewley and Fitzgerald are not slated to start against the Blue and Gray, but will be ready should Gargan call on them. If Howley is unable to start at quarterback position, Zev Graham will take his place as field general.

Tommy Meyers will play left halfback, while Jim McGeogh will be his running mate at the other half. McGeogh is twenty pounds heavier than Woerner, whom he will displace, and his weight will be an asset to the Maroon backfield. Joe Manning will start at fullback and Zacksewski will be ready to step in for him should the Fordham line plunger be taken out.

Despite the fact that Fitzgerald may not start at end, Coach Gargan has a wealth of material for the wing positions. Captain Healey, Dunne, Malone and Marcotte are ready to play.

MORGAN IS PRESSED TO BEAT CRAWFORD

BULL DEFEATS BOMEISLER

Crescent Star Triumphs After Three Fast Games—Fink Also Scores in Third Round.

The round before the semi-finals was reached in the invitation squash tennis tournament at the Princeton Club yesterday. The survivors in the upper half are R. Earl Fink of the Crescent A. C., the national champion; Kingsley Kunhardt of the Columbia Club, Hewitt Morgan of the Harvard Club and Otis Guernsey of the Yale Club. In the lower half are John C. Neely of the Princeton Club, who is running the tournament; F. Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club, former national champion; W. Rand Jr., also of the Crimson forces, and Charles M. Bull Jr. of the Crescent A. C.

In the third round yesterday Fink defeated R. H. George of D. K. E., 15—11, 15—4. Kunhardt eliminated Armin W. Riley of the Princeton Club at 15—9, 15—9. Hewitt Morgan disposed of H. V. Crawford of the Yale Club after a close struggle in the second set at 15—10, 18—16. Guernsey advanced at the expense of F. S. Keeler of the Blue and White, allowing him nine points in the first game and ten in the second.

Neely advanced two rounds. In the second round he defeated G. M. Sidenberg of the Elis at 15—3, 15—11. R. G. Coburn of the Harvard Club fell before him on the third round at 15—13, 15—6. Hyde had little trouble with C. Cooney of the Yale Club in the first game, winning at 15—6, 15—11. Bull played the only three-game match of the day. Douglas Bomeisler, Yale star, carried him to three games before yielding at 15—10, 9—15, 15—8. Bomeisler gained his third round bracket by the default of A. S. Moses of the Columbia Club. Rand advanced by putting out C. W. Dingee of the Crescent A. C., conqueror of Coward, at 15—4, 15—12.

Morgan to Meet Guernsey.

Today, at 3 o'clock, Morgan will play Guernsey. At 3:45 Fink and Kunhardt will met. Rand and Bull come together at 4:30 and at 5:15 Neely will meet Hyde.

Crawford played good squash in carrying Morgan to three games. The Harvard star is looked upon as one of the most formidable candidates for amateur honors as the results of his two victories this season over Fink, the national champion, and the fact that Crawford could extend him to 18—16 in the second game is particularly worthy of praise. The Yale star was never threatened in the opening game, although he was far from outclassed, but in the second chapter his game increased in effectiveness and Morgan was forced to call upon his best to prevent the match going to a third game.

Crawford played in tireless fashion, took the ball off the back wall with nice anticipation and had a lot of steam on his smashes. He was compelled to cover a lot of court to get to his opponent's cleverly placed shots, but he was equal to the task and returned many shots that ordinarily would have been point winners for Morgan. The Crimson representative used his nick shots constantly, but they did not force the error-making that they did in the matches against Fink. Crawford was on the lookout for them and was up to the ball quickly, taking it low and sending it back accurately.

Morgan earned most of his points, so hard fought were the rallies. But he did not work so hard, nevertheless, as did his opponent. While Crawford was putting tremendous speed in his straight wall shots and smashing all the time, the Crimson representative relied more upon his ability to anticipate, worked the angles and changed pace. The Harvard man's service, too, was considerable of an asset.

Crawford Takes Lead.

In the second game it was Morgan's service that enabled him to make a big pull-up. Crawford gained a commanding lead of 11—3 on him. Service aces and unfailing steadiness in rally after rally enabled Morgan to pull up to 11—all and again to tie the score at 13—all after Crawford had led at 12—11. Crawford took the first two points after the game had been set 5 points, but the Harvard man won five of the six next points and brought the game to an end at 18—16 for the match.

Bull was too steady for Bomeisler. The match was evenly played in other respects. Both men hit hard, got all around the court to make splendid recoveries and maintained a fast pace from start to finish. Inability of the Yale player to keep the ball within the confines of the court cost him dearly and he dropped the contest after it had gone to an extra game. Bomeisler won the second game rather easily, adding steam to his strokes and keeping them out of the telltale. He kept on even terms with Bull to 8—all in the third chapter, but after that lapsed in control and did not win another point.

The summaries:

Second Round—John C. Neely, Princeton Club, defeated G. M. Sidenberg, Yale Club, 15—3, 15—11; Douglas Bomeisler, Yale Club, won from A. S. Moses, Columbia Club, by default.

Third Round—R. Earl Fink, Crescent A. C., defeated R. H. George, D. K. E., 15—11, 15—4; Kingsley Kunhardt, Columbia Club, defeated Armin W. Riley, Princeton Club, 15—9, 15—9; Hewitt Morgan, Harvard Club, defeated H. V. Crawford, Yale Club, 15—10, 18—16; Otis Guernsey, Yale Club, defeated F. S. Keeler, Columbia Club, 15—9, 15—10; Neely defeated R. G. Coburn, Harvard Club, 15—13, 15—6; F. Van S. Hyde, Harvard Club, defeated C. Cooney, Yale Club, 15—2, 15—11; W. Rand Jr., Harvard Club, defeated C. W. Dingee, Crescent A. C., 15—4, 15—12; Charles M. Bull Jr., Crescent A. C., defeated Douglas Bomeisler, Yale Club, 15—10, 9—15, 15—8.

France has listed the plungers, men and women, who are to train for the swimming event in Olympic Games which will be held in the Colombes Stadium, just outside of Paris, next year. The coach will be Remy Weil, champion of France. The plungers are: R. Weil, P. Raeth, d'Aulan, Billard, Jacob, R. Vincent, Garreau, Raffner, Duront, E. Lenormand, E. Vincent, Ducos and Cochibal. The women who are asked to report are the Misses Saxollon, Lenormand, Raath, Briollet and Mrs. Delbort. The training will be done in one of the largest pools in the city of Strasbourg, but the final and semi-final trials may be completed in Paris. No official act can be cited in support of this, but Paris publications freely predict that such will be the case. As the training develops the squad will be added to and reduced. Those who no longer show ability will be dropped and others who have been doing well in swimming meets in the provinces as well as in Paris will be asked to join Coach Weil's squad. Critics in Paris are of the opinion that the list will remain unchanged as the swimmers on it have shown marked ability this year and there have not yet come to light in Paris or elsewhere plungers who are the equal of those listed.

165th Infantry Five Wins.

Argentine Amateur Boxers Win South American Tourney

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 30.—The fifth South American amateur boxing tournament, held annually by Argentina, Chile and Uruguay, was concluded here last evening. Argentina won with 23 points, Chile obtaining 14 and Uruguay 11. The titles were distributed as follows: Heavyweight division, Alfredo Porsio, Argentina; light heavyweight, Luis Correa, Chile; middleweight, Emilio Godoy, Chile; welterweight, Hector Mendez, Argentina; lightweight, Alfredo Copello, Argentina; featherweight, Julio Mocoros, Argentina; bantamweight, Aurelio Casella, Uruguay. Honors in the flyweight division were divided between Osvaldo Morel, an Argentine, and Carlos Uzabiaga, a Chilean.

WATSON TO REFEREE AMATEUR TOURNEY

Will Officiate in 18.1 Title Play to Begin Monday—First 4 Matches Arranged.

Boyd Watson of the Pittsburgh Athletic Club has been selected to referee the first national amateur 18.1 balkline billiard championship tournament, which will open at the Newark A. C. on Monday afternoon. Watson's first act was to consult with the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, and at a conference yesterday the schedule for the first four games was arranged. Six players have entered the competition.

Edgar T. Appleby, holder of the international amateur 18.2 title, will open the tourney opposed to Edward W. Gardner of the Montclair Athletic Club. Gardner is a former national class A amateur champion. He won the championship seven times. This match is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. In the evening match John A. Clinton of Pittsburgh, holder of amateur high run and high average records, will meet Jacob Klinger of the Liederkranz Club of New York. Klinger is a former holder of the 18.2 amateur championship of Southern Europe. The night game will start at 8 o'clock. The losers of the first two games will meet in the matinee match on Tuesday. In the night game on Tuesday Francis S. Appleby, donor of the trophy for the 18.1 tournament and the present Eastern 18.2 balkline championship, will face Dr. Richard M. Roscow of Baltimore, the national class B champion.

E. Ray Brundage, Chairman of the Billiard Committee of the Newark Athletic Club, has arranged to have three games played on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in order to have the schedule of fifteen games completed on Saturday night. Two games will be played on the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the first game to start at 1 o'clock.

All the players are expected to be here tomorrow and a conference has been arranged to discuss the rules. The officials of the Amateur Billiard Association, of the Newark A. C. and the players will attend. All the matches will be at 250 points each. The winner of the 18.1 trophy will be subject to challenge.

TOURNEY BEGINS TONIGHT.

Watson and Whittle to Meet in Eastern Pocket Billiard Opener.

The Eastern amateur pocket billiard championship tournament will open tonight at the clubhouse of the Society of Professional Automobile Engineers, 153-159 West Sixty-fourth Street. William J. Watson and Vernon E. Whittle are scheduled to meet in the opening game. J. Howard Shoemaker, holder of the national title for nine years, also has entered.

Others who will play are Carl A. Vaughn, who will represent the Newark A. C.; Humbolt Foss, Morris Wood, Philip Wingert, Edward J. Fagan and Clarence E. Herd. All of the games will be at 100 points each and will be played afternoons and evenings.

FAMOUS HARRIER DIES.

The death is announced of C. H. Ruffell, captain of the Highgate Harriers in England. In the years just before the war Ruffell rose to great heights as an athlete. After winning the steeplechase championship in 1913 he won the national cross-country championship under conditions of weather and going that caused spectators to marvel at his abilities and endurance.

In the war Ruffell contracted malaria while in Palestine and while he was as enthusiastic as ever to resume running, he never was quite the same man. His death was due to pneumonia following influenza. He was 35 years of age.

Zbyszko to Wrestle Schikat.

NEW YORK DEFEATS BOSTON AT HOCKEY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Playing with an effectiveness that was made difficult by mud caused by a rain that lasted throughout the second half of the contest, the New York first team today defeated the Boston first team in the girls' intercity field hockey tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, St. Martins, by 5 goals to 2. The New York second team was beaten by the Etceteras, 6 to 3.

Miss Parker, left inside for the New York first team, was the most consistent scorer for the victors. Twice she charged into a scrimmage at the goal, took possession of the ball and scored. The other New York goals were scored by Mrs. Jessup, Miss Cody and Miss Patterson, the latter an English girl substitute. For Boston Miss Schneider and Miss Viano scored.

The line-up:

Adams	R.W.	Weeden
Mrs. Jessup	R.I.	Schneider
Cody	C.F.	Bushnell
Parker	L.I.	Effenden
Willard	L.W.	Viano
Voorhees	R.H.B.	Rudd
Patterson	C.H.B.	Jacobs
Jurson	L.H.B.	Armstrong
Gay	R.F.B.	Williams
Rice	L.F.B.	Cassidy
Bixler	G.	Corbett

Referees—Burr and Trevelyan. Time of halves—30 minutes.

HOPPE AND HOREMANS TO PLAY EXHIBITION

Will Meet in 18.2 Balkline Match at Amateur Billiard Club Monday Night.

Willie Hoppe and Edouard Horemans of Belgium will meet in a special exhibition 18.2 balkline match at the Amateur Billiard Club on Monday night, it was announced yesterday. This will mark the first time that Hoppe and Horemans ever met in an exhibition of any kind. Twice they have played, each time in championship tournament matches, and twice Hoppe was returned the winner. They will play 400 points.

As Hoppe is scheduled to meet Welker Cochran in the play-off for the world's 18.2 title in Chicago on Dec. 17, 18 and 19, the officials of the Amateur Billiard Club did not believe they would be able to get the match, but the promoters of the championship tournament granted Hoppe permission to meet Horemans. As Horemans is one of the most dangerous players in the country, it was feared that permission would not be granted. Hoppe, however, said he was willing to go through with the match. Horemans also expressed a willingness and the match was clinched.

Horemans gave Hoppe a hard battle in the last tournament and almost eliminated the champion. He took a commanding lead with a run of 241, and only a sensational finish enabled Hoppe to remain in the title race. The present exhibition match had been in the making for the last three weeks, and it was not until yesterday that the necessary permission could be gained.

Hoppe, in addition to meeting Horemans on Monday night, plans to oppose Suganuma in Philadelphia the last three days of next week, then move to Detroit for a few games and to finish his training in Chicago. Horemans, who has been playing exhibitions in this section since the tournament, was anxious to get the exhibition with Hoppe. Horemans never complains, but he insists that as yet he has failed to receive any of the breaks in his big matches. It will be recalled that Horemans made more points in the last tournament than any other player.

The referee has not been selected, but there is a possibility that Albert Cutler, who refereed the last international tournament, will be asked to officiate.

BRUNO POSTS $100 FORFEIT.

Austrian Challenges Suganuma for Junior 18.2 Title.

Tadao Suganuma of Japan, winner of the recent national junior 18.2 balkline tournament, will be called upon to defend his title within sixty days, according to the rules. Yesterday Jean Bruno of Austria, who finished second in the junior tournament, officially challenged Suganuma and posted the required $100 forfeit. Suganuma must accept the challenge between Dec. 15 and Jan. 1 or lose his title.

The match will be for $200 a side, a percentage of the gate receipts and the diamond emblem which was donated by the sponsors of the tournament. The match will be at 1,200 points, in blocks of 400 points each.

Suganuma is due to return to New York today from the West. He will be the guest of members of the Hoppe-Peterson Club at a testimonial reception tonight. He also is scheduled to meet Willie Hoppe in an exhibition match of 300 points.

CYCLISTS TO RACE IN GARDEN TONIGHT

Moeskops, Piani, Goullet, Egg and Other Stars to Compete in Sprint Carnival.

The foremost bicycle riders in the country and a number of European cycling stars are scheduled to compete tonight in Madison Square Garden in the indoor bicycle championships which will serve as an appetizer for the annual six-day race scheduled to begin at one minute past midnight tomorrow night. Of outstanding importance in the customary carnival of sprint races in advance of the week-long grind will be a clash between Pete Moeskops, the Hollander, who holds the title of bicycle champion of the world, and Orlando Piani, Italian sprint star. These two riders are scheduled to compete in a match race to be run in one mile heats, best two in three heats to decide the event.

Another feature of tonight's card will be a three-cornered match race among Alf Goullet, America's premier cyclist; Oscar Egg, Swiss rider, and Pete Van Kempen, Holland cyclist, who is regarded as one of the world's fastest riders in indoor events. This event will be run in mile heats to be decided best two in three heats.

Bobby Walthour Jr. is scheduled to ride a three-quarter-mile match race against Francesco Verri, Italian cyclist. Maurice Brocco, popular Garden cycling favorite, and Willie Coburn will ride a pursuit race against Ernest Koeckler and Percy Lawrence. Two other professional races, a half-mile handicap and a ten-mile open event, will be held. In addition there will be a half-mile handicap and a two-mile open for amateur riders.

It was announced yesterday that Fred Stone will fire the starting gun for the six-day race. The work of transforming the Garden into a bicycle racing centre proceeded rapidly all through yesterday and when night fell the saucer-shaped track was near completion. The track is expected to be ready this afternoon for trial spins to disclose any defections.

Billiard Results.

Charles McDonald and Peter Judice were the winners in the two games played in the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler Brothers' Academy, Brooklyn, last night. McDonald defeated Carl Scheider in the afternoon, 100 to 89, in eighteen frames. His high run was 26, Scheider's 24. McDonald forfeited 45 balls on scratches during the game. In the evening Judice won from Leo Silver in a close game, 100 to 93 in fourteen frames. The winner's high run was 39, the loser's 27. Only one scratch was made in the play. This was the first time Judice has defeated Silver in six years of play. This afternoon at 5 o'clock Frank Quinn will play Walter Townsend.

Philip Meise defeated Bernard Goodman, 125 to 97 in the Tammany Hall amateur 18.2 balkline tournament at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night. Meise got his total in fifty innings and had a high run of 13. Goodman's best run was 6. Meise, Henry Day and Ralph Delrio each have won four games and lost none in the tournament.

In a practice game at the Fourteenth Street Academy last night Irving Rudolph, who is competing in the National Pocket Billiard League championship, made a run of 70 against Jack Savage. Rudolph won the game, 100 to 16 in five innings.

Three games were played in the national Class C 18.2 balkline championship at the Recreation Academy, Brooklyn, last night. In the first game J. F. Blaisdell defeated R. Von During, 150 to 45 in thirty innings. The winner's high run was 16, Von During's 9. Joseph Honsch won the second game from C. J. Davis, 150 to 142, going out in sixty-six innings and making a high run of 30, to Davis's 17. In the third game Edward McGill was the winner over J. H. Clemens, 150 to 79, in thirty-seven innings. McGill had a high run of 18. Clemens's high run was 9.

Louis Leeker defeated William Flanagan last night in the play-off to determine the second man to qualify in section 1 for the final round of the Manhattan three-cushion tournament at the Recreation Academy. The score was 25 to 24. Leeker won out in forty-two innings. Each made a high run of 3. Leeker and Charles Hanf from section 1 and Sidney Van Wart and Frank Deegan from section 2 will begin play Monday night in the round robin series.

William Adams qualified for the final round-robin series in the annual Fall three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night when he defeated George La Rue by the score of 25 to 14 in thirty-nine innings in the final elimination game of the tournament. The winner's high run was 5, the loser's 3. Adams, Victor Mangin, George Barton and Jack Isaacson will begin play in the finals Monday night.

Jack Gardner defeated Morgan Hughes in the New York State amateur three-cushion tournament at Cranfield's 181st Street Academy last night by the score of 35 to 33 in 75 innings. Gardner's high run was 6, Hughes's was 4.

STRENGTHENING THE ENTENTE.

We have been repeatedly told, on the authority of those who admit their own infallibility, that England and France long since came to the parting of the ways. It would go hard if they were not soon at war with each other. But the last few days have brought cumulative evidence that they are, in fact, being drawn closer together than for a long time past. Sir JOHN BRADBURY, the British member of the Reparation Commission, went to Paris yesterday with the statement that he was bringing back from London an olive branch. Nor did the French Government meet his advances with a club. The British have agreed to waive for the present all troublesome questions growing out of the occupation of the Ruhr, and to co-operate with M. POINCARE in his endeavor to have a fresh committee of experts inquire into the ability of Germany to pay reparations. That inquiry, it is certain, will include investigation of the flight of German capital to foreign countries, and of the ways and means of forcing it to go home again and submit to taxation.

Various explanations are given of the suddenly improved relations between France and England. One of them is that the reported accord between Spain and Italy respecting the Mediterranean has led the Governments of England and France to see the need of friendly consultation. It is also intimated that the conciliatory temper now shown by the British Government is partly an index of its anxiety respecting the outcome of the general election. The Entente with France fully restored would close the mouths of some critics of the Baldwin Government. But it is not necessary to seek ulterior or recondite motives. The fact is that in the whole European turmoil France and England must stand together or else they will fall separately. This has doubtless been the main cause of the healing of the passing estrangement between the two nations. The result will be a heavy blow to our young "intellectuals," who want everybody to go to war except themselves, but there it stands and they will have to make the most of it. Unless they suffer a sea-change, they will endeavor, as usual, to make the worst of it.

TRYING TO HURRY HIM.

Some of President COOLIDGE's friends seem to be almost as premature as HIRAM JOHNSON. That patriot, eager to get his message to the country before Mr. COOLIDGE's, uttered his want of thought at Chicago in almost ludicrous circumstances. It almost seemed as if he would have liked to play Miss Muffett to "LEN" SMALL's Spider. Mr. JOHNSON's attempt at repetition of his great Presidential Preference Primary act of 1920 has comic force. People have not forgotten how in some States he was the unconscious tool of astuter politicians, how in Oregon one of his own delegates refused to vote for him and several had been elected as advocates of HOOVER or WOOD. Real progressives are pricking up their ears. Mr. LA FOLLETTE's friends will invade Illinois. Pennsylvania has a Governor, as he often reminds us, who claims to have the only original piece of the Roosevelt mantle and dotes on the farmers of the Middle West.

Apparently, some of Mr. COOLIDGE's advisers are aghast at HIRAM and also the President's deliberation. They urge him to name an early day for the announcement of his candidacy. These uneasy spirits have only to wait till next week. Mr. COOLIDGE's recommendations to Congress will either make or unmake his leadership. If he stands squarely for tax reduction and against the bonus, he will have made the strongest possible appeal to the mass of the Republican Party and to the country. Favorite Sons will then be but his trustees or his futile rivals. There will be a contest for delegates, of course, but it will be largely formal. The matter will be settled in advance.

The Maryland primary will be held on May 5. Under the law, a candidate can't get his name on the ballot unless he personally declares his candidacy. That date is a chronological limit of the impatience of Mr. COOLIDGE's unnecessarily worrying advice-givers. It is to the credit of their friendship that they are eager for the fun to begin. We learn from the Washington correspondence of The Boston Transcript that the Republican "national leaders" at Washington "are certain in their own minds that "WILLIAM M. BUTLER, the probable "Republican candidate for United "States Senator from Massachusetts "next year, will manage the pre-convention campaign to be waged in be-"half of President COOLIDGE." From the same venerable source we hear that Secretary SLEMP will look after any designs of the ingenious Mr. FRANK HITCHCOCK to entice Southern delegates to the camp of the Son of the Golden West.

ANOTHER GERMAN CABINET.

To the casual outsider German politics must look like the world's worst example of lost motion. Especially is this the case when the Reichstag, having discovered a week ago that it couldn't get along with Chancellor STRESEMANN, now discovers that it can't get along without him. The new Ministry, like the late one, is a Clerical-Democrat-People's Party affair; it contains many of the same members; it contains STRESEMANN himself as Minister of Foreign Affairs, with a blameless jurist from Cologne presiding. Like the previous Cabinet, it represents only a minority of the Reichstag. If the Socialists ever vote against it, out it goes; but then somebody might ask the Socialists to take over the Government, and they have discovered by experience that it is more agreeable to stay outside of a Ministry dependent on their favor than to assume the responsibility of governing the country.

Yet this lost motion may be only part of the necessary exercise which accompanies the education of the German people in self-government. STRESEMANN showed more sense of realities than any recent German Chancellor. Because realities in present-day Germany are usually unpleasant, he was put out; but the Reichstag is able to find no substitute for his policies, so back he comes as Foreign Minister under a Chancellor hitherto obscure. It must be added that, so far as the action of the Reichstag last week indicated want of confidence, it was want of confidence in the Reichswehr rather than in the Government. The immediate occasion of STRESEMANN's fall was General VON SEECKT's order for the dissolution of the Communist and Nationalist parties. Considering the failure of the Central Government to make any serious impression on Bavarian reaction, and the undoubted political sympathies of the majority of the Reichswehr, the Left Wing inferred, with some reason, that this order would be enforced against the Communists and not against the Nationalists. Yet, since STRESEMANN fell, there have been no signs of an effort to enforce it anywhere. Dictatorship and Reichswehr Government have often been proposed, but their application would evidently be unpopular just now.

The strength of radical feeling in the Reichstag was shown by the narrow margin by which a Communist motion declaring LUDENDORFF and HITLER outlaws was defeated last week. But it seems to be felt that the country is turning toward the Right. That is one reason the party leaders do not want to dissolve the Reichstag now, and another is the doubt whether free elections could be held in the occupied districts. Expedients for carrying on may be unsatisfactory, but at any rate they carry on. Meanwhile, German inflation in its original form at least has been stopped, and the experiment of the rentenmark will have a trial; the food difficulty, though serious enough, is obviously one of distribution rather than production; and despite all apocalyptic prophecies of the imminence of the last judgment in Germany it was not the German Reich, but the Rhineland Republic, that fell to pieces.

A RECLOUDED ISSUE.

The old saying that fair exchange is no robbery is used to excuse or defend the taking of a few acres at one end of Central Park in exchange for many acres in another part of it. But, in the first place, while the larger acreage, now occupied by the reservoir, belongs to the Water Department of the city, its future should be determined solely by its availability for highest use by the city. Undoubtedly it should go to the Park Department for merging in Central Park, which had to be built around it, since the reservoir was already there and was still needed. The city owns both the thirty-seven acres of the reservoir site and the four acres which it is proposed to take for the Art and Music Centre. If the latter is given to this use, it is not an exchange; it is simply a reduction of the total area for park purposes by the amount of this plot.

The issue should not be beclouded by talk of an exchange. The question of the use of the reservoir site should be settled on its merits. The question of taking four acres or more for the Art and Music Centre should also be considered entirely by itself. There can be no fair exchange, for the one has no relation to the other. The city needs every acre of park that it has and can get, and the people must not be led to imagine that by giving up a small plot of four acres facing Fifty-ninth Street they are adding thirty-three acres to Central Park. The city can far better afford to find a site outside, in some "blighted area," where it can make a new breathing spot and a new centre of beauty, preserving and guarding at the same time the city's most precious physical heritage, her Central Park.

SAVINGS.

More than a billion dollars was added to savings bank deposits in the fiscal year ending last June. Such deposits come chiefly from wage earners. Within the last six months nearly 400 companies have taken equally cheerful dividend action. Many have declared first dividends; others have declared extra or increased dividends. Even eighteen railways have been able to treat their owners better in the way of return on investment.

The Chairman of the Executive Council of the National Civic Federation remarks that this is the first Thanksgiving without strikes. What excuse can there be for them when wages are so high that the savings fund can be increased by 6 per cent.? There might be some grounds for a strike by railway capital! At the same time that other capital and labor are enjoying such prosperity, only twenty-one railways, with 5½ per cent. of the country's total mileage, earned more than 6 per cent. Less than that was earned by 127 roads, 91 per cent. of the total mileage. Railways reporting a deficit were twenty-seven—more than the number which earned profits in excess of the standard set in the Transportation act.

Total savings deposits are reported at $18,373,062,000. That is about five billions less than our interest-bearing national debt. It is double the maximum savings bank deposits in any pre-war year, according to the Statistical Abstract. But the Abstract's total omits some classes of deposits included in the statement by the American Bankers' Association. Of course, savings deposits in national banks and trust companies, and even in savings banks, are not withdrawn from commercial use. They are employed in business in order to earn the interest paid, and could not be withdrawn from such uses without causing distress in many directions. Yet it is interesting to note how nearly the savings of our workers would pay off our national debt and earn larger interest if invested in Government bonds. The average deposit ranges between $405 in New England and $147 in the Eastern Central States. The Southern States report an average of $45, against $18 in 1912. There is a gold dollar to be had on demand for each paper dollar, and there is a billion in gold in circulation, in addition to the reserve in the Federal system. If there is any under-consumption, it is of the sort which prefers to save, and thus provides a surplus above our immediate wants.

A LARGER BIRD REFUGE.

The purchase of the McIlhenny holdings in Louisiana contiguous to the bird reservations made possible by gifts from Mrs. RUSSELL SAGE and the Rockefeller Foundation is now proposed. It would solve a problem that was giving friends of bird conservation concern. The large tracts which Mr. E. A. MCILHENNY owned, or held options on, could not be made a game preserve without danger to birds seeking the sanctuary. It has been pointed out by Dr. HORNADAY that as Louisiana allows bags of twenty-five ducks, eight geese and eight brant, great numbers of these birds would be shot in the open season while flying across such a preserve as Mr. MCILHENNY had in mind. The club was to have a large membership. The hunters could not be expected to spare game making for the reservation. It now appears that Mr. MCILHENNY has been impressed by Dr. HORNADAY's argument. In justice to THEODORE ROOSEVELT's old friend, it should be said that he has never been opposed to conservation; in fact, he has been a champion of it. Mr. T. GILBERT PEARSON, President of the National Association of Audubon Societies, reports Mr. MCILHENNY as saying that the hunting club was "his second choice," and that such a sporting club as he contemplated would afford a measure of protection to the birds of the sanctuary which they would not have if they were left to the mercy of promiscuous hunters. There may be something in his view, but it is welcome news that he is ready to use his influence to have his wild land added to the sanctuary. Mr. PEARSON says:

> If the people of this country can be made sufficiently interested to purchase this and a smaller tract of land, we shall have a continuous wild fowl sanctuary of far greater extent than exists anywhere on this continent.

It does not seem to be settled that the McIlhenny tract, in which others are also interested, can be acquired. Mr. PEARSON is not positive about it, but he makes a plea for co-operation which is irresistible. As a conservationist Mr. MCILHENNY can be counted on. Mr. PEARSON has been in communication with a bird lover who offers to contribute $50,000 toward the purchase price. With such a start there should be no difficulty in raising the sum required.

ANOTHER LEAGUE CASE.

The League of Nations, successful in its treatment of the economic illness of Austria, whom the other international doctors had given up as hopeless, has now been called in to attend the case of Hungary. The diagnosis has been made. The malady is the same as that from which Austria is recovering: primarily a low state of vitality due to the drain of the war and the shock of amputations, which cut away 72 per cent. of her territory and 62 per cent. of her population. Such a weakened condition has left Hungary, as it left Austria, a prey to the bacilli of hate and suspicion, jealousy and despair, floating around Europe.

The system of treatment might be called equilibrial therapy, for it consists primarily in balancing the budget and bringing the currency to a state of permanent equilibrium or stabilization, without which there cannot be economic health. In order to bring this about, loans from without are absolutely necessary, to be administered by a steady and skilled hand, such as Dr. ZIMMERMAN's in the Austrian case. It is estimated that a loan much smaller than the one needed for Austria's resuscitation will suffice; for Hungary is not in so serious a plight as was that of Austria. She has still resources available whose revenues may be pledged as security for the loan.

It is this same sort of treatment that Dr. NANSEN proposes for Germany. He intimated in his recent address here that it would be both easier and harder to effect a cure in Germany's case; easier because Germany has greater and more varied resources, harder because Germany would be a less docile patient than Austria has been and Hungary is likely to be, less willing to follow the doctor's directions and take all the bitter medicines of his prescription. But if Hungary mends under this treatment, the League, which has to its credit the healing of some of the minor hurts of Europe, may hope for a wider practice among the nations.

RELIEF BUT NO CURE.

Senator JOHNSON of California is the latest to show a curious confusion of mind about American duty toward Europe. He abounds in melting charity. With a generous gesture he declares that he would gladly go to every foreign country filled with the children of misfortune, and feed the hungry, and clothe the naked, in the name of American humanity. But as for doing anything to pull European nations out of the political and economic slough, he puts all that away from him with an air of horror. That would be the dreaded and forbidden "entanglement." Errands of mercy are the only ones which are safe for us to go upon.

It need hardly be remarked that this is an out-of-date conception of charity. It is wholly out of keeping with the modern idea of scientific charitable work. All enlightened people today dislike efforts that strike only at symptoms or results and do not touch causes. Of course, misery and undeserved suffering carry their own appeal, and always have a claim to early relief. But thoughtful philanthropy desires to supplement relief by cure. It is not merely a question of temporarily helping the unfortunate. We seek to get at the origin of their troubles, and to remove it, if possible. It is not enough to give doles to men out of work; we must if we can try to make sure that they get work in the future, and become self-supporting. Otherwise we are in for a dreary round of rescuing the same needy individuals, year after year, with no permanent betterment in their condition.

The application of this to those in need in Europe is palpable. We can, if we so determine, go on raising funds to feed starving children, without getting anywhere except to the certainty that the demand upon our generosity will be continually renewed. Or we can, while responding to the urgent and irresistible cry, take measures to prevent its rising to our ears time after time. If we could effectively contribute to political and industrial and financial stability in Europe, we should do more for its calamitous people than we possibly could by letting the stream of our undiscriminating charity flow toward them incessantly. The case is really one of getting away as speedily as possible from methods of relief that are now felt to be obsolete at home, and which are equally so abroad.

The air of superior virtue with which Senator JOHNSON and his kind state their position will only provoke a smile from those who are scientifically-minded as well as charitably-minded. The pose is in reality very like that of the old-time giver of alms without blinking, who never stopped to think what he could do to make the asking of alms unnecessary. The latter is the true task laid upon the United States with respect to larger and longer plans for European relief. The sort of thing about which Senator JOHNSON makes his magnificent flourish is only a proposal to potter and fumble with the problem. The most clear-eyed charity will insist upon getting at the root of the trouble. Till we do that, plunging ourselves upon our noble impulses merely exposes us to ridicule.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Klanism Means Just That.

It was entirely characteristic of Ku Klux Klan ideas, methods and principles that, by the attempted intrusion by members of that organization at the unveiling of a soldiers' monument down on Long Island Thursday afternoon, an occasion in which but for them Americans of every creed and race would have joined in perfect harmony was turned into a scene of bitter contention.

Their presence, as was proper and indeed inevitable, was especially resented by the men who had been in the great war comrades of those whose heroic memory the carved stone was to perpetuate. Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, had gathered at Cedarhurst without a thought of their blood and creed differences—they only remembered that they all were Americans, as were those who had died in battle. The Klansmen introduced a new and abhorrent element. They are the preachers of division, of prejudice, of discrimination along lines impossible to draw without violating the fundamental ideas on which American institutions and ideals are based.

It is no wonder, therefore, that there was indignant refusal to have a wreath marked "K. K. K." placed on the monument, or that the members of the American Legion who were present forgot the solemnities of the ceremony and used the only effective argument, force, to prevent what they felt to be a desecration. There was nothing else to do. Argument cannot be used with men destitute of reason, as seems to be every member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Not much force, fortunately, was required. No yearning for martyrdom was shown by any of the Klansmen, and their defeat was a sorry spectacle for their deluded admirers.

Children Who Learn to Be Beggars.

On many streets of the city, Thursday, there were to be seen groups of children in garments more or less grotesque and with blackened faces who were using the day as an excuse for committing what on any other day would have been treated by the police as a misdemeanor, or at least as an evidence of juvenile delinquency. The children, that is, had turned beggars, and from every passer-by solicited pennies.

An occupation more demoralizing for them it would be impossible to imagine, for it revealed to them how easily money can be secured by appeals to unthinking generosity, and there can hardly be any doubt that from the boys and girls thus trained will come not a few of the professional mendicants of the future. They will be the writers of begging letters filled with lies, and it is not unlikely that from among them, too, the ranks of the blackmailing fraternity will be recruited.

Of course, parents alone are responsible for the participation of children in this wretched form of mendicancy, and not a few of them presumably appropriated its proceeds. Of real "charity" there is not a trace in such giving and taking. People who handed over their pennies and nickels did wrong, not good; and while the policemen who looked another way hardly can be blamed for ignoring a customary and long permitted evil to go on, it is much to be regretted that their superiors have not seen before now what their duty in the matter is. They should give orders to stop the thing peremptorily.

Don't Give Her Too Much of Sympathy.

Atlanta is likely to be much derided and more than a little scolded because GERALDINE FARRAR found the doors of its churches closed to her when she proposed to give a concert in one of them. It would be well, however, to consider the case with some care before joining in the derision.

In the first place, the church people had an indubitable right to do what they did if they chose to do it. In the second place, the fact that New York has found no cause for protest against even the most venturesome of Miss FARRAR's efforts at realistic expression does not make either ridiculous or reprehensible the holding in other parts of the country of different notions.

In the South, more than here, people are more easily shocked by such acting as this singer's in her portrayal of a loose-living heroine, and it should not be forgotten that even in France the novel "Zaza" received not a little adverse criticism from the guardians of Gallic morals.

That Miss FARRAR ignored Southerners' sensitiveness says a good deal more for her courage than for her judgment, and she must accept the consequences. They were not very serious—were far from amounting to persecution. She was not forbidden to sing in Atlanta by anybody; she simply was told that her singing would have to be done somewhere else than in church.

They Seem to Have No Rights.

Protests have been made in Paris against the sending out from the Government radio station there of too many political speeches in the Chamber of Deputies by members eager to get larger audiences than their unassisted voices can reach. This raises several questions likely sooner or later to demand answers everywhere. The most important of them is, "What rights, if any, have the owners of receiving sets in the direction of deciding what they shall get out of the air?"

It would be hard to prove them more than privileged to take what is offered. If they do not want it, there is no need for them to listen in. No binding promises have been made by the sellers of their instruments to give them any service at all, and still less to give them one forever in exact accord with their likes and dislikes.

It is even conceivable that, when the "point of saturation" has been reached—when everybody who is willing or able to buy a radio set has one—all free sending will be stopped. What would the "fans" do then? Seemingly, their only recourse would be to organize and maintain sending stations of their own. Even that would not determine easily what should be broadcast, for tastes differ widely, and he who wants a stock market report will think his money wasted when there comes to him the music of a jass band.

What is pretty nearly certain is that the present state of affairs will not continue forever. Somehow or other a method of collecting money for service rendered must be found, or else the whole thing will simmer down into the distribution of matter in the interest of advertisers and propagandists.

SULGRAVE MANOR FUND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I make a plea through the columns of your paper for contributions to the Endowment Fund for Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home of George Washington's family in England?

The National Society of Colonial Dames of America has assumed the responsibility of raising $100,000 to be established as an endowment fund, the income of which will be used for the upkeep of the old Washington home. The society believes that after English men and women have purchased and restored it and have maintained it for nearly ten years—in the days of their financial stress—it is time to relieve them of this self-appointed task. It may surprise many to know that the Sulgrave Manor has no regular maintenance fund whatever, and that no financial provision at all has yet been made for securing its future upkeep and the regular costs of its administration.

An appeal which was issued about a year ago stated that $130,000 has been spent—of which $30,000, approximately, has been given by patriotic Americans. A recent appeal has come from the Board of Governors of Sulgrave Manor: "We are sure our American friends will help us generously when they are acquainted with the need that exists and the great purpose that inspires the work at Sulgrave Manor."

Americans are not wanting in national pride or in a sense of moral obligation, and certainly not in their appreciation of those places endeared to them by their connections with the early history of their country.

In January, 1914, as part of the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent—which marked one hundred years of peace between English-speaking nations—a number of public-spirited English men and women bought the old Manor House and ten acres of the original Manor for about $50,000 and presented it to the people of the United States and England as a memorial to their common inheritance.

Sulgrave Manor was bought from the Crown in 1539 by Lawrence Washington, a lineal ancestor of our first President, and remained in the Washington family until 1610. The oldest part of the Manor House was built by Washington's ancestor. Over the doorway of what is called the "Garden Porch" are carved the arms of the Washington family with its three stars and three bars, which furnished the inspiration and the design for our flag with its thirteen stripes and forty-eight stars. Washington's ancestors were living at Sulgrave when the first shipload of colonists landed at Jamestown in 1607. John Washington, Washington's great-great-grandfather, was born at Sulgrave Manor and came to America in 1656. It was to him that Lord Culpepper granted the tract of land upon which Mount Vernon was built in 1743. It is but a step from Sulgrave to Mount Vernon.

Sulgrave Manor is in the vicinity of Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon, and, except for the American Embassy, is the only spot in England where the American flag flies.

The National Society of Colonial Dames of America began in 1914 to contribute toward the restoration of the Manor, but was interrupted by the World War. They have now determined to raise funds necessary for the upkeep of the Manor, relieving the English committee, which has maintained it since its purchase. The object of the Colonial Dames is not only to honor George Washington, but to perpetuate a spirit of good-will among the people of one language, and through them to all mankind.

Contributions of one dollar or more are being asked from loyal Americans, every penny of which will go to the fund. The name of every donor will be enrolled in a volume to be preserved at Sulgrave Manor. Please make checks payable to the Sulgrave Manor Endowment Fund and send to Miss Alice Lounsbury, Treasurer, 24 East Sixty-third Street. EMILY E. HEPBURN,
(Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn),

Real Saving for Every Family.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As explained by newspapers generally, Secretary Mellon proposes to reduce taxes $225,000,000. It is quite true that such act will be of general benefit. Industry is suffering seriously from heavy taxation. Purchasing power of consumers is badly crippled. Our industrial troubles undoubtedly originate in our revenue system (or lack of system). But $225,000,000 amounts to $3 for each individual, or $15 for a family of five persons. Fifteen dollars added to the budget of the average family is unquestionably of benefit. A nickel is properly subject to the same comment. Meanwhile, may we fairly hail this proposal as promising great results? Carlyle once said: "The owner of sixpence is master of the world—to the extent of sixpence." JOHN E. WHITE.

HER GRACE.

He is gone out, my liege, my lord.
The castle gates, with bolt and bar,
Are closed, secure, against a world
Where toil and tears and tumult are.

He is gone out, my liege, my lord.
His kiss burns still upon my throat.
"Venture not forth, my Sweet," he said,
And raised the bridge across the moat.

He thinks me fair, my liege, my lord,
And I love none save him alone.
But always he possesses me—
And, for today, I am my own!

Oh, let me seek my castle tower—
Climb up the little winding stair,
Lay by this coronet of gems,
And plat my strands of nut-brown hair.

Let me put off my silver shoon
And go in rosy dancing feet!
Put off these regal vestitures
That to my dear lord's eyes seem meet.

I know how I will cover me—
One flowing garment, white and cool.
I know a place that calls my name—
A blue and silver woodland pool.

I am my own! So I will run
All down my little winding stair,
And laugh, and sing a song I know,
And twine a hedge rose in my hair!

Ah . . . the swift wind upon my face!
Ah . . . the cool fingers of the grass
That reach to touch my flying feet
With early blessing as I pass!

Ah . . . the deep heaven of the wood—
And freedom . . . I—alone—alone!
I love my lord and only him—
But, for today—I am my own!

He will come back . . . my liege, my lord,
And I will don my silver shoon,
My robes, and coronet and gems . . .
And be Her Grace, again . . . too soon!

HIRAM JOHNSON IN 1916.

Was It His Fault That California Rejected Mr. Hughes?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I feel impelled to make reply to what I consider a most unjustified attack upon the character, integrity and motives of America's foremost champion, Hiram Johnson of California. I refer to the letter of your correspondent, Mr. Samuel Colcord, printed in yesterday's columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

I consider myself sufficiently well versed about the several matters contained in Mr. Colcord's letter by reason of a ten year residence in the State of California and, through my interest in public affairs, learned something of the political events which took place in that State and of the growth of Hiram Johnson, and of his services to his State and country. I do not believe that it would be of any avail to discuss in these columns the affairs which are purely local to California, but I can state most emphatically that the defeat of Charles Evans Hughes in 1916 cannot in any way, either directly or indirectly, be laid at the door of Senator Johnson.

It is true that during the campaign which was unsuccessfully waged by Mr. Hughes for his election to the Presidency a factional row was running its course in California. Both factions to that dispute for the ascendency of power in that State were represented by strong men, and it was the height of folly for the managers of Mr. Hughes's illiteracy to have risked the chance of casting their sympathy to either side by permitting the standard bearer of the Republican Party to enter upon that scene of political strife. Mr. Hughes was bound to get hurt by either contingency. Unfortunately, his appearance under the auspices of the minority contingency was to his disadvantage, but assuredly the failure of Mr. Hughes to light up the enthusiasm and imagination of the electorate of California, so that it would reflect favorably in his direction, was not in an iota due to anything that Hiram Johnson said or did.

Mr. Colcord certainly does not understand the kind of voting intelligence that speaks its mind in the far Western State when he throws the blame for Mr. Hughes's defeat directly over to Senator Johnson. Neither Senator Johnson nor any other powerful influence can deliver the vote in California unless the tenets upon which the appeal for its support and the support of the candidate is based are constructive, ameliorating and forward looking. The truth of the matter is that the carriage of Mr. Hughes, his lack of warmth, his kind of punch and his vague straddling platform of those days, as well as what seemed to be an intention on his part to take sides in a purely local dispute, failed to impress the voters of California. On the other hand, the appeal that Woodrow Wilson was making to the country in his swing around the land was more personal, more warmly delivered and more in sympathy with the "yearnings of the people" in their desire to be kept from the danger zone of Europe's contentions; and for a State that theretofore was normally Republican the populace responded to the standard of Woodrow Wilson generously.

The writer remembers distinctly that during those days the Republicans in California who had assembled themselves under the banner of the Woodrow Wilson Independent League were loud in their criticism of Hiram Johnson for not following true to his Progressive program by aligning himself with their Independent League. Nevertheless, the strong hold that Mr. Johnson so deservedly had upon the constituency of that State was able to attract the overwhelming vote that sent him to the United States Senate. . . .

The Republican Party, and particularly its leaders, would do well to remember that several generations have grown up since they assumed the control of the party machinery, and it would be the better part of wisdom for them to wake up to the fact that the progressive and radical policies of their first days are the conservative policies of today, and that a liberal policy in governmental affairs would be more certain of success than a policy of stand-pattism.

Senator Johnson, through his espousal of most of the policies of Government which were considered in the early years of his political life as dangerous and radical, has proved his keen power of discernment, his capacity for Government, his statesmanship, and that executive ability which makes for the successful administration of the Presidential office. To my mind he is the only candidate who combines all the qualities that should commend him to the choice of the Republican people in 1924. JOSEPH M. BERNSTEIN.

Japan Relief Posters Wanted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The sympathy extended to us—suffering from one of the greatest catastrophes that has ever occurred by the American people has been received by the Japanese nation with heartfelt gratitude. Mr. Woods, the American Ambassador in Tokio, who realized instantly the grave consequences of the disaster, at once called on the American Asiatic Fleet for assistance. It came promptly, and American relief contingents were speedily and effectively organized on a large scale. This American large-heartedness and efficiency alike have elicited our hearty admiration. No less struck are we by the wonderful energy with which the great relief fund was subscribed for us in the United States.

This outburst of fellow feeling for us, in the time of our great calamity has revealed to us American friendship as never before. We wish to preserve and foster this intimacy, and make it a lasting bond between the two peoples.

The Japan Magazine wishes to do its part in this. One way we think is to publish special evidence of how the Americans stimulated public sympathy to subscribe to the Japanese relief fund. Among other means, we wish, with the aid of your and other organizations, to collect copies of the posters, circulars, &c., used in the relief-fund campaign. We wish to publish facsimiles of them, to show our Japanese readers how active the expression of American sympathy was.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The bootleggers and the Government having come to a point where they know where they respectively stand, do you not think that it is time that some sort of a working basis, or modus bibendi, as I think I have seen it wittily expressed in your columns, should be arranged? We citizens have some rights, and if the Government is not going to keep the bootleggers away, it ought at least to exercise some supervision over the quality of the goods which we are obliged to purchase. There are good bootleggers and bad bootleggers, and we've got to take a chance; but it is too much to expect a man to chase all over town sampling liquor until he finds a dealer on whose statements he can rely.

What I propose is that the Government establish inspection stations. Let the Government and the bootleggers play, as it were, a game of "prisoner's base." If the bootlegger succeeds in landing his cargo, then let him have the privilege of taking it to one of these inspection stations and have it passed on by the Government—say the War Chemical Department or one of these departments whose members don't care what becomes of them. If the goods pass inspection, then the bootlegger should have the privilege of disposing of them in the market. If not, he should be regularly released on bail, so he can go out and get another line. I apprehend that some of your readers might formulate a method even more practicable and more timely than the foregoing.

MUSSOLINI FAVORS RECOGNIZING SOVIET

GETS COMMUNIST APPLAUSE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Lively incidents occurred in the Chamber of Deputies in the course of today's discussion of the Government's proposals for an economic treaty with Russia. Premier Mussolini himself taking a hand in wrangling with the Communists. This debate elicited the following startling statement from a Communist Deputy, Signor Bombacci, who has hitherto been a rabid opponent of Fascismo: "Italy's wonderful revolution and Russia's wonderful revolution can best be accomplished by an alliance between the two peoples," and the no less startling reply by Mussolini: "The understanding between Italy and Russia is excellent. During the Corfu incident the Russian press was the only press of the whole world which was sympathetic toward Italy. The Italian Government has no objection to recognizing the present Russian Government de jure."

The early part of the discussion was chiefly taken up by a long dispute between Signor Mussolini and several Communist Deputies as to the relative merits of the Italian and Russian revolutions. It was started by the Communist Deputy Lazzari, who said that the Russian proletariat had carried out a great revolution, better than and superior in every way to the Italian revolution.

"That is not true," shouted Mussolini.

"You cannot bluff Italy with that hocuspocus."

When Lazzari repeated his assertion Mussolini said: "I fear that you do not even read your own newspapers, because they don't appear to be so certain that everything is going well in Russia."

Several other Fascists and Communist Deputies intervened in the discussion at the same time at this point, raising such a pandemonium that the President of the Chamber, Signor Democris, was obliged to threaten to suspend the sitting.

When comparative order had been restored a Communist Deputy took the floor and strongly urged the Government to sign a commercial treaty with Russia. Russia, he said, produced enough mineral oils to flood the whole of Europe and suffered from overproduction of coal and grain. Unless Italy acted quickly she would find that America and England had forestalled her.

Premier Mussolini was the last to take the floor to speak on the proposal to conclude a commercial treaty with Russia.

"Negotiations with Russia," he said, "are progressing favorably. I will not discuss the social changes which have occurred there, as that is an internal Russian affair into which we cannot enter. But I will say that I infinitely prefer to have to discuss affairs with an Ambassador to doing so with a commercial representative, of whom one never knows whether he is more a business man or a political personality. For this reason, if for no other, I would be willing to see proper relations reestablished between Italy and Russia.

"The Italian Government therefore has no objections to recognizing the present Russian Government de jure. We must look at the subject in the cold light of national utility. Would it be useful for Italy to recognize the Russian Government? I think it would. I would say to Russia: 'The Italian Government recognize your power, but you in return must do even more; you must give us a good commercial treaty; you must furnish us with raw materials.'

"As soon as our differences with Yugoslavia have been settled we shall be free to turn our attention to the East. As soon as we have a commercial treaty with Russia the door of the Slav country will be open for us. In that direction lie the supreme interests of our country."

It would be idle to pretend that the attitude of Mussolini toward Russia has not amazed many in Italy. It was inevitable, in fact, that many members of the Right parties declared themselves completely opposed to any agreement with Russia on the ground that it might strengthen the Russian régime in the eyes of the world.

No less extraordinary is the attitude of the Communists, whose spokesman, Deputy Bombacci, made a speech which by contrast with his former utterances might be considered almost patriotic. Indeed, after Mussolini had spoken all the Communists gave signs of approbation, and one even declared that Fascisti in applauding his words.

Discussion on the treaty with Russia will be continued tomorrow, when by all present indications it will be approved by a large majority.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Five hundred Fascisti attacked ex-Premier Nitti's residence last night and destroyed a considerable part of the furniture, but did not harm Signor Nitti or any members of his family, all of whom were at home and witnessed the destruction.

The official version of the incident is that the Fascisti went to the Nitti residence with the purpose of staging from the outside a demonstration against the ex-Premier on account of his forthcoming book on the general conditions of Europe five years after the armistice, in which he has described economic and political conditions as disastrous everywhere, including Italy. But once in front of the residence excitement was such, it is said, that they broke into the house.

The truth of the matter probably is that the Fascisti insist Signor

IRENE CASTLE WEDS MAJ. F. M'LAUGHLIN

Dancer, Divorced From R. E. Treman in Paris, Marries Rich Chicago Coffee Merchant.

QUIETLY LEAVE FOR JAPAN

Chicago Society Startled by Marriage of Clubman and Sportsman, 45, Who Served in War.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Chicago society was startled today when it became known that Major Frederic McLaughlin, clubman, sportsman and millionaire coffee merchant, on Thanksgiving Eve, in his bachelor apartments at 333 Michigan Avenue, married Mrs. Irene Castle Treman, divorcee, and internationally known as a dancer.

The couple slipped quietly into the County Clerk's office at 5:30 on Wednesday afternoon and obtained a license. They were married later in the evening and tonight were on their way to the Pacific Coast, where they will board a boat for a honeymoon in the Philippines, Japan and China. They will return to Chicago in about two months.

Society particularly was startled by the news, for it had been believed that since his first short-lived and ill-starred adventure in matrimony the master of the hounds at the Onwentsia Club had become a confirmed celibate, devoted to his sports, his polo and his horsemanship, his hounds, his bachelor apartment and his clubs.

Friends Ignorant of Romance.

Even most of his very intimate friends confessed today their surprise. They professed utter ignorance that the romance between Major McLaughlin and the dancer was under way. Eames MacVeagh, Joseph T. Ryerson and Francis Johnson, all known to be very close friends of Major McLaughlin, smiled at the news of the Major's marriage and expressed themselves as most surprised.

New York and Chicago both knew that there was a friendship between Major McLaughlin and Miss Castle, as she has always been known on the stage, for McLaughlin in late years has been often seen in theatrical circles and is known to be friendly with a number of prominent actors and actresses.

But not even the theatrical friends of the pair appeared to have had any knowledge of the romance. They also seemed genuinely surprised. "Well, who would have thought it," was a common expression among them.

News of the wedding had become known at the opera on Thursday evening and it caused a considerable stir. Matrons and débutantes asked one another if they heard the news and gossiped about the friends of Major McLaughlin shook their heads. They didn't believe it, they said.

Nevertheless news of the rumors reached the newspaper offices and reporters went out early in the evening to verify it. They stormed the Michigan Avenue apartment. Major McLaughlin and his bride were there, but men servants barred the way and held the scribes and photographers at bay until 2 o'clock this morning.

Slip Out to a Train.

Then suddenly it was learned that Major McLaughlin and his bride had slipped out some way and that they had taken a train for the Pacific Coast sometime before midnight. The reporters and camera men made a rush for the railway stations, but found they were too late.

So it was not until today that the news officially came out when it could be withheld no longer. Then members of the family, Miss Minnie McLaughlin, who lives in the old mansion of the late W. F. McLaughlin, the Major's father, known as the "coffee king," at 4 Rush Street, and the Major's brother, George, reluctantly gave out their statements.

"They are married and they've gone West," said George McLaughlin; then "good-bye," and he clicked up the telephone receiver.

And Miss Minnie McLaughlin, to whom both brothers are said to have been very much devoted, tonight gave out the news that she had gone to Colorado and would not be interviewed.

Still the other members of the McLaughlin family, according to friends, are not so ill-pleased with the Major's match. The Major's friends say that the family has gracefully accepted the chance. "She was introduced to them all at a meeting of the family at the old McLaughlin home in Rush Street," said one friend. "They are pleased with the match and have accepted Miss Castle into the family."

Miss Castle has been very well known in Chicago society. When she was here last year she was invited to many functions and was a frequent guest at the homes of the society leaders. At that time she is said also to have attended several parties given by Major McLaughlin, chaperoned by friends at whose home she was living; and it was then that the dancer's romance with Chicago's well-known sportsman began.

Divorced From His First Wife.

Major McLaughlin was divorced from his first wife in 1910. She was Helen Kennear Wylie McLaughlin, a Baltimore society girl, whom he met here at the "Streets of Paris" fete at the Coliseum during the Winter of 1908.

The Major met his first wife at the home of Mrs. Walter W. Keith, where she was a guest. They were married a few months later in Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons performing the ceremony and Clive Runnels acting as the best man.

For a few months the Major and his bride lived in apparent happiness at the Onwentsia Club, but soon the word got away, and in December, 1910, Major McLaughlin charged she had deserted him and obtained a divorce in record time.

Major McLaughlin won his title in the World War. He entered an officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan and was an officer of machine gun troops. In the application for a marriage license he gave his age as 45, and Miss Castle gave hers as 29.

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 30.—Several years after her divorce from Frederic McLaughlin, Helen Kinnear Wylie, who had resumed her maiden name, was married to Captain Robert Young Conrad of this place, who was killed while leading his company in a charge against the Germans on the western front in France in October, 1918. Captain Conrad was a son of the late Colonel Holmes Conrad, United States Solicitor General in the administration of President Cleveland.

Considerable mystery of late has surrounded the matrimonial affairs of Irene Castle, credited with having introduced the bobbed head and many intricate dance steps to America.

On July 30, after dispatches from abroad told of the French divorce the dancer had obtained from Robert E. Treman, the dancer arrived on the ship before the Ithaca manufacturer and vigorously denied she had obtained a Paris decree.

"I have not a divorce and I have not instituted proceedings for one," declared the dancer, who said she intended to meet Mr. Treman at the pier when he arrived. She did not, however, keep the appointment. Cable dispatches previously had reported that after instituting divorce proceedings she had spent a week-end at Deauville with Treman, and that friendly relations had been restored.

"I don't see why the public should be interested in my affairs," the dancer said petulantly on her return to this country. "They should be disgusted rather than encouraged about following my matrimonial matters. I don't give a damn what the people think. They can pass on quibbling for a month if they like as to whether I am married or not."

The dancer for long has been one of Broadway's most dashing figures and her fads in clothes and footwear have been closely followed.

She was married to Treman, a Cornell graduate and a captain in the A. E. F. in the Little Church around the Corner on May 4, 1918, following a romance which both denied that they previously had been secretly wed shortly after Captain Vernon Castle, the dancer's first husband with whom she appeared for years on the stage, had been killed in an airplane accident in Fort Worth, Texas, while serving in the Royal Flying Corps.

Although Miss Castle made her stage début in a charity production in her home town—New Rochelle, N. Y.—and later studied fancy Spanish dancing in Mexico, she did not achieve fame until she and her husband accepted an invitation to dance in the Café de Paris. They instantly became the fad and soon brought the tango, maxixe and other steps to the United States.

DEBUTANTES' PARTIES BRING OUT THE YOUNG

Misses Barbara Trowbridge, Carolyn Prentice and Elizabeth Tomkins Introduced.

There were a number of entertainments yesterday for débutantes, including luncheons, receptions and dancing.

The largest party was given by Mrs. Edmund Q. Trowbridge to introduce her débutante daughter, Miss Barbara Trowbridge, at a reception and dance at the Colony Club for more than 500 of the older friends of Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge and the younger set, many dinners preceding it.

The reception was held at 9 o'clock and Mrs. Trowbridge and the débutante received. It was for the older guests and a buffet supper was served. The débutantes and others came in later, and for them a seated supper was served at 1 o'clock.

LORD LOREBURN DIES IN ENGLAND AT 77

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Ex-Lord Chancellor, Lord Loreburn, died today at Deal.

When Lord Loreburn visited Canada in September, 1907, he became the first Lord Chancellor to set foot on the Western Hemisphere and the first to leave England since Cardinal Wolsey accompanied Henry VIII. to the Field of the Cloth of Gold in France. He set another precedent in December of the same year when his second marriage was celebrated in St. Stephen's Chapel, in the crypt of Westminster. It was the first time that a marriage had been performed within the precincts of the House of Parliament.

Lord Loreburn was born in 1846, the second son of Sir James John Reid of Mousewald Place, Dumfries. He was created a baron in 1906 and an earl in 1911. He was a famous athlete at Oxford, representing the university at cricket and racquets. A brilliant career in athletics awaited him, but he dropped sports entirely to devote himself to the law. Although never in the first flight as an advocate he gained a reputation at the bar and in Parliament for shrewdness and independence, and when the Liberals came in under Campbell-Bannerman the ambition of his life was satisfied.

MRS. MINNIE D. WALD DEAD.

Mrs. Minnie D. Wald, widow of Max Wald, died yesterday morning at the Henry Street Settlement, where she has been living for the last few years with Miss Lillian D. Wald, her daughter, who is head of the Settlement. Mrs. Wald, who was 81 years old, had been ill only a few days. In addition to Miss Wald, she is survived by Mrs. Frank Cordley a daughter, who lives in Washington D. C., and Gustavus Wald, a son, who makes his home in this city.

Mrs. Wald was described by Mrs. Max Morgenthau Jr. as a woman of rare intellectual power and outstanding quality, was an unselfishness that won many friends in all walks of life. Mrs. Wald was especially popular among the children of the neighborhood who came to the Settlement house to chat with her. A short funeral service was held that evening at the Settlement. The body will be taken to Rochester, N. Y., this morning for burial.

INSURANCE DECISION AFFECTS $52,000,000

STATE OFFICIAL IS UPHELD

Deposits and trusteed funds of foreign insurance companies are safe from attachments and should be returned to the home offices or liquidators of such companies when they are no longer required to protect United States creditors, according to a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, handed down yesterday in two cases concerning the Equitable Fire Insurance Company, Ltd., of London, England. The decisions sustained the position of Francis R. Stoddard Jr., State Superintendent of Insurance.

One decision reversed an order of Supreme Court Justice Tierney, which granted Carpinter & Baker leave to sue the Equitable Fire Insurance Company and to attach surplus assets remaining in the possession of the State Superintendent of Insurance after all United States creditors were paid. The other decision reversed an order of Justice Bijur denying the motion of Superintendent Stoddard and the British liquidator to vacate Justice Tierney's order. The opinions in both cases were written by Justice Edward R. Finch and the decision of the Appellate Court was unanimous.

The decisions were said by the State Insurance Department to lay down new law and to be of far-reaching importance. The claim of Carpenter & Baker was for $160,000. Twenty-two similar motions for leave to sue and attach for claims aggregating over $1,000,000 are affected. The State Superintendent holds deposits aggregating $52,000,000, a large part of which is deposited by foreign insurance companies authorized to do business in this country.

Orders similar to that dismissed have been granted in the case of the Norske Lloyd Insurance Company, Ltd., another foreign insurance company, which is also in possession of the State Superintendent of Insurance for liquidation and in which twenty-four motions seeking to attach a surplus of approximately $750,000 were held awaiting the decisions in the Equitable Fire Insurance Company case.

SMITH CALLS MEETING OF HOME RULE BODY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—The Home Rule Commission created by the Legislature will hold its first meeting in New York City Hall on Monday, Dec. 3, Governor Smith announced tonight. Terence Farley, counsel for the Governor, will act as temporary Chairman.

"At the last session of the Legislature," Governor Smith said in a statement issued tonight to members of the commission, "I recommended the creation of a special Home Rule Commission to work out the necessary general laws to make the Home Rule amendment effective and this suggestion was adopted.

"The purpose was to have this commission begin its work immediately after the session, in anticipation of the adoption of the Home Rule amendment by the people. Recently the remaining ten members of the commission were appointed.

"In the meantime the Home Rule amendment has been adopted by the people by an overwhelming vote. There still remains time during the coming months for the commission to meet and to make the most essential plans for the operation of the Home Rule amendment.

"As you know, the amendment is not self-executing. It puts a prohibition on the passage of local legislation except in an emergency. It is necessary that general laws be passed to give the cities powers of charter revision and local legislation which they do not now possess and also to define clearly the scope of the amendment and its effect upon general State laws. This presents a very complicated problem which will require careful and long consideration to solve. It is not to be expected that the entire problem can be worked out in the course of a month or even six months, but it ought to be possible to have in readiness for action by the next Legislature the essential outlines of the general laws which the amendment itself calls for."

Majority Leader James J. Walker is still to name several Senators, but the other members of the commission have been selected.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—A letter expressing approval by the Chicago Association of Commerce of the tax-reduction programme of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was sent today to President Coolidge by Judson F. Stone, President of the association. Mr. Stone wrote that he is advising Secretary Mellon of the action, which will also be made known to the Illinois Senators and Representatives. The text of the resolution quoted in the letter follows, in part:

"We believe a reduction in the income tax rate most advisable as a most important contribution to continuance of our national prosperity. Such a program would hold out the possibility of increased revenue to the Government, since the removal of the burdens of excessive taxation should result in greater industrial activity, larger individual earnings and a greater volume of taxable income.

"The program of Secretary Mellon should bring capital back into commercial channels and thereby promote the prosperity of all our citizens.

"The Chicago Association of Commerce believes that Secretary Mellon offers a plan of tax reduction which is constructive, sound and farseeing. We heartily approve the program and urge Congress to make effective the recommendations."

CUTS LEGAL FEES $40,000.

Court Reduces Lawyer's Charges in $315,000 Levy Will Contest.

The Appellate Division yesterday cut the fees allowed in the Surrogate's Court to law firms in the litigation over the estate of Marshal P. Levy, cotton merchant, which was settled out of court.

Fees of Stanchfield & Levy were cut from $50,000 to $25,000, and of Remsen & Parsons from $25,000 to $10,000.

Regarding the Stanchfield fee, in which ex-Governor Miller appeared for the lawyers, the Court ruled that while the executors agreed to pay John E. Stanchfield $50,000 for trying the contest, the agreement was vitiated by Mr. Stanchfield's death and the settlement out of court.

The sum involved in the dispute was $315,000 and a settlement for $146,000 was effected.

Justice Dowling dissented on the ground that the fees asked were reasonable.

Most every one who realizes how effective Kellogg's Bran is for the permanent relief of constipation has their own particular way of serving this wonderful cereal. Most families eat it as a cereal with milk or cream. Others sprinkle it on their favorite hot or cold cereal. Every one enjoys its nut-like flavor!

If you are cooking a hot cereal try this method:—Measure off two tablespoonfuls for each member of the family. Mix it with the cereal and cook as you always cook the cereal.

Kellogg's Bran is scientifically prepared and ready to eat, but its regulatory powers are in no way impaired if you cook it with other cereals.

Kellogg's Bran has won the friendly recommendation of physicians because it does give prompt and permanent relief from mild or chronic constipation and because it can be eaten without forming a habit. Again, Kellogg's Bran will free you from drastic, dangerous cathartics.

When constipation conditions exist in your system or when you are threatened, do not take half-way measures. Foods with a partial bran content cannot free you! What you must have is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Go the limit; get relief!

Every member of your family will delight in eating Bran raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every package.

Start eating Bran to-day! Get well—keep well—keep disease out of your home! First-class hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

COURT UPHOLDS CURB ON TICKET BROKERS

STATE LAW FOUND VALID

SEES EVIDENCE OF ABUSE

Justice Martin's Opinion Declares Practice Is an Evil That Should Be Remedied.

Finding that theatrical managers and ticket speculators had combined tending to a monopoly that prevented the public from seeing performances at reasonable prices, the Appellate Division yesterday upheld the constitutionality of the theatre ticket speculating law passed at Albany in 1922. It found that the Legislature acted wholly within its rights in requiring ticket speculators to take out State licenses and in limiting their charge to 50 cents more than the box office price.

These findings were made in affirming the conviction in the Court of Special Sessions last February of Reuben Weller, a speculator arrested in front of the Palace Theatre on the charge of selling a $2.20 ticket for $3.30 without a license. Louis Marshall of 120 Broadway, who defended Weller, announced yesterday afternoon that he would take the case to the Court of Appeals. If the decision goes against him there, Mr. Marshall is expected to try to have the issue decided by the United States Supreme Court. He has contended throughout that the law is unconstitutional.

District Attorney Banton, whose detectives arrested Weller last October, issued a statement yesterday afternoon calling on all patrons who are overcharged to file complaints with him. He promised to enforce the law with vigorous prosecutions of speculators guilty under the law.

Alfred Thomas, President of the Producing Managers' Association, and John McBride, head of the McBride ticket agency, both of whom urged the passage of the law at Albany, expressed themselves as delighted with the result of the Appellate Division ruling. In view of their strenuous efforts to have the law adopted, they said, they were especially anxious to see it enforced vigorously.

Upholds City Ordinance Also.

The Appellate Division yesterday also upheld the right of the Board of Aldermen to pass the municipal ordinance against theatre ticket speculating, which prohibits a charge of more than 50 cents in excess of the box office price, but for technical reasons sustained the Court of General Sessions in reversing the conviction of Leo Newman and Louis Cohen in a Magistrate's Court on the charge of violating the ordinance. Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions had declared the ordinance invalid.

In the case, involving the State law, the decision of the Appellate Division was three to two. Justice Francis Martin wrote the opinion, which was concurred in by Justices Walter Lloyd Smith and John V. McAvoy. Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke and Justice Edward R. Finch dissented.

Justice Martin, in his opinion, said in part:

"That there is ample justification for licensing those engaged in reselling theatre tickets appears to be beyond question. Usually tickets are not resold at the theatre. One purchasing them from a speculator must rely upon him in many respects. If the speculator is dishonest he may sell tickets which will not be honored at the theatre, or tickets for which there is no production to be seen.

"The overwhelming evidence shows an abuse. It is the duty, therefore, of governmental agencies to meet the conditions and find a remedy. It is idle to say that the State and city are powerless to prevent fraud and extortion in the resale of theatre tickets. The evils of ticket speculating are undisputed. The street speculator in particular has become a nuisance. His purpose is to prey on the people by selling his tickets at an extortionate price.

"It appears from the record in this case that the control of admission tickets to theatres and other places of public amusement is largely in the hands of a comparatively small number of the so-called ticket speculators or brokers. They constitute, in a large measure, the distributers of theatre tickets to the general public. Millions of tickets are sold annually to the public by the speculators, and frequently their purchase is the most desirable part of the house for the whole season.

Must Protect the Public.

"In the face of the overwhelming and undisputed evidence of an abuse, we are told that the sole remedy must come from the producing managers of the theatre. To concede that there is no cure for the evil excepting through a remedy initiated by the managers of theatres, would be to admit that, on account of constitutional restrictions, the State in this instance is without power to promote the general welfare of the people by legislating to meet the evil, to accomplish a plain governmental purpose. * * *

"The situation in relation to the statute now under review is in many respects similar to that of the act passed to prevent fraudulent sales in bulk, which law was known as the 'Sales in Bulk law.' The sole purpose of that law was to remedy an admittedly widespread evil, and prevent fraud. When the statute first came before the Court of Appeals it was held unconstitutional. Thereafter courts in many of the States of the Union, the Federal courts and the United States Supreme Court held similar statutes constitutional.

"The Court of Appeals of this State, in the case of Klein v. Maravales, supra, then held a sales-in-bulk law constitutional. * * *

"In the case now before the court, the evil having been proved beyond all question, the Legislature properly found a remedy. * * * In a case such as is now before the court the police power should be exerted to protect the public.

"The construction of a statute similar to the one before the court, which had for its sole object the prevention of frauds and abuses which were generally known, was upheld by the United States Supreme Court, although that statute interfered with the freedom of contract.

"Citing further precedents, Justice Martin said:

"The State in this case is not prohibiting the carrying on of any business, nor is it discriminating against particular persons or a particular class. Any person wishing to do so may engage in the business of reselling tickets, but only after obtaining a license in conformity with the regulations imposed by law, one of the conditions being that he must file a bond to guarantee the fulfillment of the obligations prescribed by statute.

A Community of Interest.

"The method now pursued in the disposal or resale of tickets was described at the trial. It is interesting in that it shows a community of interest between the theatre managers and the brokers who sell to the public, or an underwriting of the attraction by the speculator, for which the public must pay. The hope or expectation that the abuses or evils in theatre ticket speculation may be remedied by the producing managers is dispelled by the testimony in this case.

"David Marks testified that he was in the business of selling tickets for thirty years and was well acquainted with the ticket brokerage business; that it had been carried on for over sixty years, and that the pioneer in the business was George Tyson. He further testified that the general way in which the business is carried on is that we have charge accounts with various people in the City of New York and outside of New York, and we also do a cash business. A charge of 50 cents is maintained in the large offices in the City of New York. We are compelled to buy merchandise months in advance, and if the show is a poor show the loss is ours.

"We look upon these tickets as merchandise. We get the tickets from the theatre managers. We buy them in blocks. Each office is allowed so many seats. The theatre managers put on a production. They say to the ticket brokers that they will allow them to have a certain number of tickets for that production. That arrangement is made before the show is cast, and before we know anything about who is in the show we are sent for and told how many tickets we are to get and each office has to pay, is compelled to buy. We are sent for by the managers of the various productions, and the theatre-owners also and they say we are going to produce a show four weeks from next Monday night and it is going to open at a certain theatre, and they say, how many seats do you want for that show for eight weeks in advance. We have asked for time to see how many we could use for that particular theatre, but in many cases we are not given time and we must purchase the number of tickets, buying and paying for them eight weeks in advance, when ye don't know the name of the show or the cast, and we are compelled to buy them at $4 and $5 apiece, plus the war tax, and compelled to pay for them, and pay for them at that rate for eight weeks in advance, running into an investment of $50,000 or $60,000. In other words, we finance the theatrical performance and we have to pay in advance. It takes hundreds of thousands of dollars. If the play is not successful the tickets are left on our hands. We have a return privilege of twenty-five, sometimes fifteen and sometimes ten per cent. They (speaking of theatre managers or owners) allocate to the several ticket brokers of the city the number of tickets that they may have and the number that they are required to take if they want any tickets. We have no private telephone to the theatre. We deliver tickets to the theatre or send them to your home or leave them at your downtown office, or you stop for them on your way home. If a customer insists upon two tickets or four tickets, a certain attraction and we have not got them, and the customer requests or suggests that we go out and purchase them outside, we do that, and in that case we pay the market price and still add 50 cents for our service.

"This testimony gives an idea of the theatre ticket business which is carried on by the brokers, and how intimately connected it is with that of the theatre and theatre owners and managers.

Act Is Not Confiscatory.

"By the terms of the statute in question the ticket speculator is permitted to carry on his business and is permitted to make a reasonable profit. The act is therefore not confiscatory. It is not attacked upon the ground that it is confiscatory or that it prevents a fair profit. * * *

"It is true that the testimony is that on a resale of a theatre ticket bought from another agency the speculator still adds fifty cents for his services. This does not make it unreasonable to limit the speculator who handles the tickets to a service charge of fifty cents per ticket; for were it to be justified, the process of rehandling the tickets and adding additional charges could go on indefinitely, to the defeat of all regulation of this kind.

"This combination of theatre owner or manager with speculator or broker by which the attraction is financed or underwritten by the ticket-broker or speculator tends to a monopoly which prevents the public from seeing the performance on any reasonable terms. Under the circumstances disclosed the regulation of the business of reselling tickets, it would seem not only necessary but also a proper means of meeting the evils sought to be remedied."

The opinion in the Newman and Cohen cases were also written by Justice Martin. In these cases his reasoning as to the validity of the ordinance was concurred in by Justices Smith and McAvoy, and his judgment in upholding the Court of General Sessions was concurred in by the entire court.

KLAW AND ERLANGER LOSE.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that Marc Klaw and Abraham L. Erlanger are not entitled to 1,250 shares of stock in the Famous Players Company which they obtained under an agreement with the late Alf Hayman in the settlement of the estate of Charles Frohman. The Court ruled that Klaw and Erlanger had forced Hayman to give them the stock without the knowledge of the other creditors of the Charles Frohman estate.

The Appellate Division reversed a decision of the lower court holding that Klaw and Erlanger, as partners, were entitled to the Famous Players' stock, which is half the stock given to Mr. Hayman by the Frohman estate, "in consideration of his connection with the Frohman enterprises and the value of his services." Mr. Hayman got stock in the Frohman enterprises, which he exchanged later for Famous Players stock, but his estate declined to turn over half the stock to Klaw and Erlanger on their claim.

Justice McAvoy, who wrote the opinion, stated that the agreement between Hayman and Klaw and Erlanger was "utterly repugnant to the letter and spirit of the creditors' agreement to which they were parties."

The opinion shows that after Mr. Frohman's death on the Lusitania his affairs were in such shape that the estate's had been settled immediately his next of kin would have received nothing. Negotiations were then instituted with the creditors and a plan was effected whereby the corporation of Charles Frohman, Inc., was organized to carry on all the theatrical enterprises and to hold such other assets as could be found. The preferred stock of the corporation went to the unsecured creditors and the common stock was divided equally between Mr. Hayman and the Frohman next of kin.

Exhibition and Sale to Help French.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Walter B. James, the Comtesse de Bremond d'Ars is putting on exhibition and sale at 7 East Seventieth Street, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 4 and 5, from 11 to 5 o'clock, articles made by the French people who have been deprived of their means of support through the war. PARIS, Nov. 30.—At the same minute this afternoon, Jean Francois Pennel and his wife, Marie, died at their home near Lille. M. Pennel was 68 years old and his wife was 67. Both had been suffering only a short time, each with a different illness. They were in adjoining rooms and neither had been told that the other's condition was serious.

DOCTORS TO FIGHT CONNECTICUT BAN

HOUSE LEADER'S AID ASKED

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—Plans for a court fight to test the legality of medical license revocations by the State Department of Health and the constitutionality of the session of the Extraordinary Grand Jury convened here to investigate fake diplomas, were made today in behalf of the eighteen doctors whose right to practice in this State has been annulled by the Eclectic Examining Board.

John Buckley, leader of the lower house of that Legislature which passed the medical practice bills vetoed by Governor Templeton, declared tonight that he had been approached and asked to act in the interests of the doctors ordered deposed. He said he advised the eclectics who called on him that he would not represent them until he knew more of their alleged troubles.

Dr. Isadore Yocheiman of Bridgeport, one of the eighteen doctors facing loss of practice, said they would "fight this thing to a finish."

"We have not yet had our licenses revoked, and they will not be revoked," Dr. Yocheiman asserted. "Nobody has the power to revoke them."

He declined to outline the course of action that the eighteen doctors will follow.

"We have already taken actoin," he declared, "and more drastic action will follow tomorrow."

Dr. Yocheiman insisted that he and the other seventeen doctors would continue to practice, paying no attention to Health Commissioner's Osborn's advising them of the action taken by the Eclectic Board.

Many doctors throughout Connecticut favor the calling of a special session of the Legislature to bring about the immediate revision of the medical practice laws of this State, according to a statement by Dr. Charles W. Comfort, Secretary of the Connecticut Medical Society.

Dr. Comfort said that many of the doctors have been trying for a number of years to bring about such a revision, but have been ignored by the legislators, who thought that jealousy of osteolectics, chiropractics and natureopaths was their sole motive. In reality, the doctors were simply trying to safeguard the public health, Dr. Comfort said.

"The medical laws of this State are disgraceful," Dr. Comfort said, "and under them any amount of quackery can be practiced. We need a medical practice act that is of some effect in protecting the public from being exploited by quacks, I think a special session of the Legislature should be called to draw up a new medical practice act."

The State Attorney's office was concerned today with the identity of Dr. John R. Brinkley of Stratford, who cannot now be located. He was licensed by the Eclectic Board was his wife, Minnie Tolitha Brinkley, but the license to the latter was later withdrawn.

Dr. Brinkley, according to the records, was originally at Milford, Kan., where he had a private hospital and a "goat farm." Later he was in Del Rio, Tex., but did not stay as he failed to get an Illinois license. He claimed to have been licensed to practice in Arkansas, Tennessee and Texas, and in the record he filed here his home town was given as Beta, N. C.

It was made known today that next week's activities of the Grand Jury will be centred upon the alleged $37,000 "slush fund" raised by the eclectics last Spring.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—If Dr. Mathias Nicoll Jr., State Commissioner of Health, has his way the next Legislature may be called upon to amend the Medical Practice act to prevent bogus doctors from practicing in this State. He would have the State Board of Regents empowered to collect evidence against these doctors and bring the matter to the attention of District Attorneys for prosecution.

Dr. Nicoll would also have a law requiring physicians to register annually with the State Department of Health. There is now no department in the State that has any record of physicians.

Dr. Nicoll pointed out today that the licensing of physicians is not by law a function of the department, yet he declared it was a subject in which the department was much interested.

"I am of the opinion that there are a number of persons illegally practicing medicine in the State," he said. "It is not necessary for one to prescribe medicine or give drugs in order to practice medicine.

"Any one who holds himself out as being able to make diagnosis of physical ailments and to cure the same, unless he holds a license to practice medicine that has been issued by the Board of Regents, is violating the law. And all such violators, regardless of their method of eclectics, chiropractics and natureopaths was their sole motive. In reality, the doctors were simply trying to safeguard the public health, Dr. Comfort said.

"The medical laws of this State are disgraceful," Dr. Comfort said, "and under them any amount of quackery can be practiced. We need a medical practice act that is of some effect in protecting the public from being exploited by quacks, I think a special session of the Legislature should be called to draw up a new medical practice act."

CLEARS BAY STATE DOCTORS

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 30.—Dr. Charles E. Prior, Secretary of the Massachusetts State Board of Registration in Medicine, said today that he does not suspect any doctor in Massachusetts of having obtained his registration in medicine by fraudulent methods or that there are any "diploma mill products" in practice here.

Dr. Stanley Osborn, Health Commissioner of Connecticut, said Dr. Prior came up here some time ago with a list of all the men who had passed the Eclectic Board of his State and wanted to know how many of them were on record in the files of the Massachusetts Board. A careful search of the files at the State House failed to disclose any.

Certain things have come to light regarding the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, Dr. Prior said, that cause him to doubt whether the Massachusetts Board has the right to accept its graduates as candidates for registration, but he has been unable to verify the facts. He is going to white to the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association, he said, at Chicago, for definite information.

CHANGES ON NEW HAVEN.

H. C. Oviatt, Mechanical Engineer, Will Go With Another Road.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 30.—H. C. Oviatt, mechanical engineer of the New Haven Road, who has been connected with the line for the last thirty years, has resigned to go with another railway, according to an announcement by General Manager C. L. Bardo, which will be made public in an official letter tomorrow.

Several other changes will be announced. Dudley J. Backes will succeed Mr. Oviatt with the title of assistant to the General Manager. Mr. Backes will make his headquarters in this city. L. M. Reed will take the post of mechanical engineer, with W. L. Bean as assistant.

Under the date of Nov. 27, the New Haven Road today issued a special statement announcing that Arthur P. Russell, Vice President, will have jurisdiction over a new bureau to be known as that of "Public Relations and Publicity." The statement was signed by E. J. Pearson, President of the road. Mr. Russell will have headquarters both in Boston and New Haven.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30.—Believed to have become mentally unbalanced from worry during the preparation of a 26-inch lens for the Yale Observatory, a task requiring extreme nicety of measurements, Dr. James R. McDowell, 63 years old, son-in-law and business partner of the late John A. Brashear, a noted astronomer, ended his life by swallowing sodium cyanide in his laboratory workshop, 1,954 Perrysville Avenue. His body was found yesterday by his wife.

Mrs. McDowell, anxious because her husband had not been at home for some time, went to the workshop and found the door locked. She managed to enter, however, and found her husband apparently asleep, lying on a couch. A moment later, noticing his appearance, she found that he was dead.

Dr. Joseph B. Gold was summoned and said that Dr. McDowell probably had been dead for four or five hours. On a table beside the couch was a glass containing a mixture of the cyanide with milk and crackers, which the scientist evidently had swallowed. The poison was used in the shop in connection with photographic work.

The big lens which Dr. McDowell was finishing for the Yale Observatory was to be his masterpiece. He had devoted almost his entire time to grinding and polishing the lens, and often would sleep in the workshop, so intent was he in making the work a success.

According to friends of Dr. McDowell he had recently showed evidence of distraction.

Dr. McDowell was the last of the three members of the John A. Brashear Company. His wife, Mrs. Effie A. McDowell, was the adopted daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Brashear. He was a glass worker when he became associated with Dr. Brashear, when the latter began the manufacture of lenses in a small, poorly equipped shop on the South Side.

He became the sole owner of the Brashear plant after the deaths of Dr. Brashear and John Alfred McDowell, which occurred within a few weeks of each other. Dr. McDowell and Dr. Brashear had been associated for years with Dr. Charles S. Hastings of Yale University and Dr. J. S. Plaskett of the Dominion Observatory, authorities on optics.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 30.—The twenty-six-inch lens for the telescope which the Yale Observatory is eventually to send to the Southern Hemisphere was completed in August by the James B. McDowell Company of Pittsburgh, it was stated at the office of the university Secretary today. The mechanical part of the telescope will be completed during the Winter and the lens will be tried in the Spring at the university.

PLANNED A NETWORK OF BUCKETING WIRES

CHIEF OPERATOR TESTIFIES

Letter From Head Office to Chicago Manager Illuminates Brokerage Methods.

S. S. Ruskay & Co., the brokerage firm which failed in February, 1922, for $19,000,000, paid more than $60,000 a year for their private leased wire system throughout the United States, according to Louis J. Gordon, their chief telegraph operator, who testified yesterday at a hearing before Harold P. Coffin, referee in bankruptcy, 217 Broadway. The wires ran to Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Bridgeport, and Gordon said that the firm's plan to extend its wire service to every city in America with a population of 100,000 or more was upset by the failure.

Attorney S. Marshall Kronheimer for the trustee introduced into the records a letter which Eugene Greenhut of the Ruskay firm wrote in July, 1921, to Leonard Sherman, the Chicago branch manager of S. S. Ruskay & Co. The letter said:

"Gordon is beginning to work along our way of doing business and is getting the proper viewpoint."

"What does that sentence mean?" asked Mr. Kronheimer.

"That means," said the witness, "that there is a controversy between myself and an insurbordinate telegraph operator in Chicago."

"Nothing to do with bucketing orders?"

"Positively, nothing."

The letter, which tells of the demand made by President Silkworth of the Consolidated Exchange that an employe named Corey be discharged, which fact already has been published, continues: "In the meantime I have had a man from the American Telephone & Telegraph Company listening in on our wires, who reports that nothing serious is happening at the moment.

"With the gallery of stars you have working in the Chicago office, striving diligently to obtain business, it should not be difficult to get greater business than we have been receiving. However, I realize that Summer conditions are a great deal against you as many men are on their vacations and there are about 544 other reasons why things should not be better than they are.

"On the other hand, I invite your attention to the fact that our overhead expenses are large, and we must do business, Crain. 'What regards what conditions are.' Bloomfield is now in town and we have been showing him a jolly good time in the line of entertaining him. I wish he would not force his love affairs on us. How are all the boys getting along? Send them all good regards.

"From now on till the end of the year should be a very serious period in the history of S. S. Ruskay & Co. and their branch office managers. It depends largely on what we do with our time and how diligently we apply ourselves between now and then as to whether we will all have a Merry Christmas."

Testimony previously given indicated that the firm did have a Merry Christmas. Five months after this letter was written the Ruskay partners, although it was shown the firm was insolvent, gave a Christmas party at Delmonico's, at which it was said that more than $100,000 was split among the employes as a cash bonus.

CUVILLIER UPHELD IN LIBEL PLEA HERE

Justice Cohalan Rules That Crime, If Any, Charged by Enright, Occurred in Albany.

DECISION ENDS LOCAL CASE

Will Press Civil Suit Against Corrigan and Assemblyman, Says Commissioner's Counsel.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier was freed yesterday of the charge of criminal libel made by Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, on which he had been held for the Grand Jury by Judge Thomas C. T. Crain. Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, in the Supreme Court, held that the crime, if any, was committed in Albany County, where Mr. Cuvillier on April 22 filed the telegram to Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in which the statements complained of as criminally libelous appeared.

Justice Cohalan's action was the result of habeas corpus proceedings brought by Martin Conboy, Mr. Cuvillier's counsel, as an appeal from Judge Crain's action. Justice Cohalan sustained the writ and ordered Assemblyman Cuvillier released from custody and his bond of $500 discharged.

The decision was not based on the merits of the case, but merely on the technical question of whether Mr. Cuvillier was responsible in New York County for the results of sending the telegram in Albany. The case may still be taken up in Albany County on its merits, but statements by both District Attorney Banton and Harry A. Gordon, personal counsel for Commissioner Enright, indicated that there would be no further criminal action.

Mr. Gordon, at the same time, made it clear that he would proceed at once with the civil libel action for $150,000 against Mr. Cuvillier and Magistrate Corrigan, who was discharged by Judge Crain when the Assemblyman was held. Commissioner Enright is in Bermuda on his vacation.

"Commissioner Enright was primarily interested in a vindication of his record as Police Commissioner," said Mr. Gordon. "He was completely vindicated by Judge Crain's decision. The criminal action is ended so far as Commissioner Enright is concerned."

District Attorney Banton said that his exact course would not be determined until he had conferred on Monday with Judge Crain. "The first question to be decided," he said, "is whether an appeal will be taken from Judge Cohalan's decision. So far as the District Attorney's office here is concerned no steps will be taken to present the matter to the District Attorney of Albany. That is a matter for the complainant."

In his decision, Justice Cohalan said: "At best there is a grave doubt whether a charge of criminal libel can be predicated on the developed fact in Albany County. It is the duty of the Court to resolve the doubt in favor in a way that there be no futile prosecution. The people are interested in prosecution of crime and not in anything that may savor of persecution of an alleged criminal.

"It is admitted both by the people and the relator that if the sending of the telegram of April 21 by the relator to Judge Corrigan constituted criminal libel that that crime was committed in Albany County."

Justice Cohalan read his decision while sitting in ex parte term in his chambers. Assemblyman Cuvillier was present with his counsel, George Z. Medalie. Mr. Cuvillier received the congratulations of his counsel and others present. He reiterated his determination to ask the Legislature to make "a sweeping investigation of the Police Department."

The telegram on which the libel charge was based contained a reference to "Enright and his graft collectors" in connection with criticism of the police in bootleg cases. Commissioner Enright demanded an investigation and signed a formal complaint before Judge Crain, as a committing Magistrate in General Sessions. Hearings started in May and ended Nov. 8.

DROPS ANTI-POLICE SUIT.

Announcement of the withdrawal of the injunction suit brought by Stewart Browne to restrain city officials from complying with the policemen and firemen salary referendum was made yesterday in telegrams to the benevolent associations of the two departments, sent by President Joseph P. Moran of the patrolmen and Albert E. Guinness of the firemen.

Bernard S. Deutsch, attorney for Mr. Browne, said his client had decided to withdraw the suit after Delegates from the two departments, in conference with members of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, had convinced the latter that a rise in salary was necessary.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 30.—The worst fog along the Southern New Jersey coast for many years is enveloping the Delaware Capes tonight. The fog drifted in from sea in great clouds, which for a time was thought to be smoke.

LATTER TO BE WITNESS

Senate Committee Invites Him to Appear at Hearing on Teapot Dome Oil Lease.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—After Carl C. Magee of New Mexico had testified under questioning by Senator Walsh, Montana, regarding the personal financial status of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, the Senate Public Lands Committee decided today to invite Mr. Fall to appear before it in its inquiry into the leasing of the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve to the Sinclair oil interests.

The invitation, sent by Chairman Smoot, summarized the testimony given today and informed Mr. Fall of the committee's opinion that he should have an opportunity to be heard.

Besides Mr. Magee, who is editor of The New Mexico State Tribune of Albuquerque, the committee heard testimony by G. V. Clayton, former Treasurer of Otero County, in which Mr. Fall's ranch is located, and Willard Harris, owner of adjoining property purchased about two years ago by the former Secretary.

Mr. Magee said Mr. Fall had told him in 1920 that he was "completely broke." By 1923, however, he continued, "great changes" had been made in improvement of the Fall ranch at Three Rivers. N. M. Harris testified that some of the improvements referred to had been made, to his personal knowledge, several years before.

Mr. Clayton told the committee that Mr. Fall was on the delinquent tax list in 1919, but had assured county officials that the $9,000 due would be paid promptly when errors in assessments had been corrected. Senator Walsh then submitted an affidavit from the present County Treasurer saying that Mr. Fall had paid in June, 1922, all his delinquent taxes, running back as far as 1912.

Reports Alleged Fall Statement.

Throughout the session examination of the witnesses was conducted almost wholly by Senator Walsh. The story thus brought out from Mr. Magee was that he negotiated in 1920 with Mr. Fall for purchase of The Albuquerque State Tribune; that Fall declared he was completely broke, and was unable to keep up his ranch and pay his taxes, and intended to resign from the Senate to recoup his private fortune was verified by the condition of the ranch and its equipment.

Questioned further, Mr. Magee said that in August, 1923, he again saw the Fall property and was "struck by the great changes," which had been made. In reply to questions from Chairman Smoot and Senator Norris the witness said he had not visited the ranch itself since 1920 but had viewed the approach to it from the railroad station at Three Rivers.

Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin then developed that there had been bitter political differences between Magee and Fall, which, the witness said, had grown out of an attack by him on the operation of the land office in New Mexico. He declared Fall threatened "to put me on a rack and break me," if the attacks did not cease. He added that Senator Bursum of New Mexico had warned him that a note given in part payment for The Albuquerque Morning Journal would not be renewed.

Harris testified that Fall paid $91,500 for the property bought from him, paying $10,000 down when the purchase contract was signed in 1919, and the balance a few months later by check.

W. T. Johnson, foreman of the Tres Ricos Land and Cattle Company of Three Rivers, of which Mr. Fall is President, testified that expenditures on improvements at the ranch had been less during the past three years than in the five years preceding.

Tells of Sinclair Visit.

Mr. Johnson described a visit of Harry F. Sinclair to Three Rivers in December, 1921. The oil magnate stayed on his private car at the station, he said, but visited the Secretary's house several times between hunting trips.

"Were there any festivities?" asked Senator Walsh.

The witness said that soon after that time several batches of blooded stock were added to the herd, including registered Hereford and Holstein cattle, Duroc Jersey hogs and a former race horse. The last, he said, was a gift from Mr. Sinclair.

Proposed transfer of naval oil reserves to the supervision of the Interior Department was submitted by Secretary Denby to the Navy Department Council and unanimously approved, Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, Chief of Engineering, declared to the committee. Secretary Denby had testified previously that he did not consult the departmental bureau heads on the transfer.

Admiral Robison read minutes of a council meeting held May 25, 1921, to show that the matter was discussed and formally approved. The minutes also quoted Mr. Denby as saying he had submitted the question to the Cabinet. The witness said he had recalled the matter to Mr. Denby recently and the Secretary expressed regret that he had "forgotten it."

Robison Calls Transfer "Sound."

Approached by some officers of the separate bureau who asked his aid in blocking the transfer to the Interior Department, Admiral Robison said, he refused flatly to co-operate with them. "both because I doubted the propriety and because I believed the transfer sound." Later, he added, bureau chiefs with whom he discussed the proposal agreed with him that it was a wise step.

The witness defended the provisions of the Sinclair lease which provided for construction of pipe line and storage facilities as part of the compensation to be received by the Government. The law authorized him to "use, exchange or store," Admiral Robison said, and it would be impossible to store the oil royalty without "containers."

ANOTHER SAFE CARRIED OFF

It Is Found Empty, $1,000 Having Been Stolen—Two Arrests Made.

Burglars early yesterday entered the branch bakery of H. B. Cushman & Co., at 230 East Fordham Road, the Bronx, and carried away a small safe containing $1,000 in cash and several hundred dollars in checks. Later in the day the police arrested two men as they were placing the safe in a truck in front of a tenement building at 610 East Thirteenth Street.

The prisoners, charged with acting in concert with two other robbers, whom the police expect to seize soon, said they were Max Beanstalk, 45 years old, of 268 Delancey Street, a helper, and Max Kader, 36 years old, a truckman, living at the same address.

The men told of being hired by a man, unknown to them, to haul the safe to the East Twenty-third Street ferry. The door had been ripped off and the contents removed.

SMALL CROWD FOR FARRAR.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 30.—Denied the use of the auditoriums of the Baptist Tabernacle and the Wesley Methodist Church, Miss Geraldine Farrar was heard in concert here tonight at the City Auditorium.

About half of the space in the dress circle and the orchestra was occupied. Three couples were in the gallery.

Candy Man Who Led Children To Gamble Sent to Workhouse

Arthur Casulli, 40 years old, proprietor of a candy store at 76 Forsyth Street which was patronized by hundreds of children from near-by schools was sentenced yesterday to fifteen days in the workhouse when he pleaded guilty in Special Sessions to selling punch boards, a gambling device, to children. He was the first man sent to prison in the campaign the police recently began against persons corrupting the morals of children by inducing them to spend their pennies in gambling schemes.

Probation Officer Thomas McNulty told Justices McInerney, Kernochan and O'Keefe that the punch board was not the only form of juvenile gambling in Casulli's place. When he visited the store a few days ago he found several children gambling in a "pink and white" grab-bag game, which was fixed so that the house couldn't lose the so-called "capital prize."

SHIP LIQUOR HINTS ANNOY WASHINGTON

White House Intimates That Unofficial London Comment Cannot Aid Negotiations.

CANNOT PLEDGE COURT VIEW

Officials See No Way Yet to Meet Reported British Proposals.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—What was regarded as a gentle reminder to the British Government that if it had any communication to make with regard to the negotiations for the so-called twelve-mile limit liquor treaty, the American Government preferred to receive it officially instead of through unofficial press dispatches, was conveyed at the White House today.

There was, of course, no formal statement, but the sentiments of the President with respect to the matter were nevertheless definitely and authoritatively revealed when newspaper correspondents propounded inquiries based on newspaper dispatches from London purporting to voice the concern of the British Government over certain aspects of the negotiations.

These dispatches were considered by President Coolidge to "be rather strange," the reexamined spokesman for the President today asserted, in view of the fact that no counter-proposition had been officially received, and since the British Government had not yet submitted to this Government its final reply in regard to the proposed treaty.

According to the London dispatches, the British Foreign Office desires to obtain from Secretary Hughes "more definite assurances" that the Supreme Court will not set at nought the treaty privilege of British ships to bring liquor stores into American waters, and Secretary Hughes is declared to have informed Lord Curzon that he believes the treaty would be in no danger of invalidation by the Court, though without advancing specific facts or argument in support of his opinion.

Whatever the concern of the British Government over this important aspect of the treaty, it is not viewed here how Lord Curzon can seek from the American State Department any guarantee that the Supreme Court would not invalidate the treaty. The Supreme Court, under the Constitution, is supreme and independent within its own jurisdiction, and no Administration would undertake to influence its free and independent judgment, as Mr. Hughes himself, a former member of that Court, might be held to do if he should undertake to furnish the British Government with a reasoned argument in support of his opinion that the Court would not invalidate part of this particular or any other treaty.

About as far as the State Department could be expected to go in such a matter would be to state its own view that it regarded the proposed treaty as valid. Secretary Hughes has always considered it valid under the Constitution, and it is not to be assumed he would have suggested the negotiations if he himself felt that it would not run the gauntlet of the Supreme Court.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The London Times says it is understood that in the negotiations for the conclusion of an Anglo-American treaty on the application of the prohibition laws in American territorial waters it is considered likely that in order to avoid ambiguity as to the limit of those territorial waters three miles—some arrangement may be made whereby American revenue officers shall be allowed to search suspected smugglers other than an extension of the limit to twelve miles for this purpose.

It might, for instance, be possible to allow them to pursue contraband ships which were actually seen by them transferring liquor just outside territorial waters.

There is considered to be still a slight chance that the negotiations may be completed in Washington before Congress assembles next week.

LIQUOR PARLEY ENDS; OTTAWA KEEPS SILENCE

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—American delegates to the international anti-liquor smuggling conference were speeding back to Washington tonight, after the parley ended this afternoon with the same secrecy that marked its start.

Whether the representatives of the United States Government succeeded in getting the Canadian conferees to recommend to the Dominion Cabinet all the anti-smuggling measures urged by Washington remained unknown, but indications were that some at any rate had been approved.

Assistant Secretary Moss of the American Treasury, who headed the American delegation, declined to discuss the proposals made, but he did express belief that conditions along the border would be improved from the point of view of the United States.

Canadian delegates were equally reticent. Indications were given that no statement would come from them until the Cabinet, now in session at Ottawa, on whatever communications have been received from the conference.

The conference began last Tuesday, heralded by reports from Washington that proposals advanced by the United States would include international agreement for clearance of ships destined for United States ports with liquor cargoes be prohibited by Canada; that search and seizure of vessels engaged in smuggling on the Great Lakes be authorized, and that a treaty arrangement be made for extradition of persons accused of violating the liquor laws.

In official Canadian circles hints were given during the progress of the parley that probably not all the American proposals would be approved, as they might entail conflict between Dominion and provincial laws and put an added burden on Canadians by necessitating additions to the customs staffs at border points.

OVATION FOR DUSE AS ENGAGEMENT ENDS

An ovation paralleling that which greeted Mme. Duse's first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House a few weeks ago was extended to her upon the conclusion of her New York engagement yesterday afternoon with the performance of "La Citta Morta" at the Century Theatre. Mme. Duse was required to respond to twenty-seven curtain calls from the enthusiastic and cheering audience, and there was a large group of admirers who waited in the rain for a sight of her as she entered her automobile upon leaving the theatre.

At the conclusion of the play President Pedrazzo of the Dante-Alleghieri Society delivered a short address, in which he thanked Mme. Duse on behalf of his compatriots for her service to the cause of Italian art in America. Morris Gest, who is directing her American tour, presented the tragedienne with a box of flowers, and in a few words expressed the gratitude of American theatre folk for the opportunity they had had of studying Mme. Duse and her art. Mme. Duse in response said that his achievements in her behalf and his evident emotion were an indication to her of the sincerity and intensity of his appreciation. Kisses were then exchanged between the Italian star and her American manager.

The theatre was completely sold out for this final performance and only a small proportion of the many who commenced to stand in line as early as 10 o'clock in the morning were able to secure admission tickets. Max Reinhardt and John Barrymore were observed in the audience, which was made up to a large extent of prominent people of the theatre. Elsie Ferguson and Zoe Akins accepted gallery seats, when no further tickets in the orchestra were available, as their mark of tribute to the Italian actress.

Mme. Duse will leave today for Boston.

Upheld in Refusing to Pay for Transit Commission Movie.

Controller Craig was upheld yesterday by the Appellate Division in his refusal to pay $6,000 on the order of the Transit Commission to Baumer Films, Inc., which made a moving picture called "Standing Room Only," showing crowded conditions in the subway, for the Transit Commission. The lower court granted a mandamus against the Controller for the payment of the money. In its opinion the Appellate Division said:

"While the Controller may not thwart the efforts of the Transit Commission in its efforts to properly function, at the same time the commission may not compel the Controller to pay claims which have been made improperly or which are in payment for work done under a contract which was not for a public purpose."

The Court finds that since there is a controversy over the payment of the money the right of the film company to collect the $6,000 should be heard by a jury.

Martin E. Pew of Wading River, L. I., obtained a verdict against the International News Service for $49,500 in the Queens Supreme Court before Justice Leander B. Faber yesterday. On a motion of attorneys for the defendants, the court set Monday for argument on the question of a reduction of the amount.

On May 2, 1921, Pew entered into a five-year contract with the news service whereby he was to receive $200 a week for the first year, $300 a week for the second year, $350 a week for the third year, $400 a week for the fourth year and $450 a week for the fifth year.

Pew alleged that he was to be editor and manager. He said there was a misunderstanding in January, 1922, and on Jan. 5, 1922, Pew was advised to take a sixty days' vacation. He did not return to work.

Jumps to Death From Window.

An unidentified man jumped yesterday from a window of the building at 2 Rector Street and landed in the rear courtyard. Detectives under Lieutenant Dittman could find no one in the building who had seen him jump. The man was apparently about 35 years old, and wore a gray suit, tan shoes, and a brown soft hat. His clothing bore the tag of Wooley & Co., Long Branch, N. J.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

50c. for service

McBRIDE'S have been making gradual but certain progress for two generations, in stabilizing the theatre ticket business. By establishing firmly the policy that 50c. above box-office price is the proper charge for the best theatre ticket service, we have made it increasingly difficult for speculators to gouge the public.

The very foundation of our business is a reputation for squareness and service that is more valuable and lasting than extra premiums.

MUSIC

Bronislaw Huberman's Recital.

By H. C. COLLES.

Bronislaw Huberman offered an abundant program of violin music at Carnegie Hall last night to an audience which fully appreciated the abundance of his powers. Beethoven's Kreutzer sonata with Siegfried Schultze playing the piano came first, then Mendelssohn's concerto with Siegfried Schultze representing an orchestra, then some Bach without accompaniment and finally that miscellaneous group which is the reward of those of the audience who tolerate the classics for the sake of the virtuoso.

Those who take the opposite view, who find the virtuoso admirable for the sake of the music, had much to be thankful for in the first part of the program where Mr. Huberman's finished playing was devoted to great music. One might differ from him about certain features in the Beethoven sonata, notably the variations of the middle movement made too restless by his ingenuities of bowing, but it was undoubtedly a performance full of vigorous life. In the Mendelssohn he certainly laid too much stress on mere speed and though he rarely if ever had to sacrifice clearness to get it, and his tone always retained its pure and liquid quality, he did sacrifice or at any rate failed to discover some of its beauty of feeling.

It was delightful to hear him march steadily through to the end of the slow movement without ever giving way to the sentimental relentando, but the finale can have just as much vitality and considerably more of grace by being taken at a more moderate speed. The modern tendency is to treat tempo like the spinning of a top—to set the thing going and let it run. The greatest players have always kept it like everything else within their control, with something to spare.

Though the same fetish of speed rather limited his Bach, which consisted of the Praeludium, Gavotte and Menuett from the sonata in E, this was perhaps the most enjoyable part of Mr. Huberman's program, because of the decisive rhythm, the purity of tone and the firmness of the chord passages. It was altogether a most stimulating performance.

Ruth Draper's Matinee.

Miss Ruth Draper had the co-operation of her brother, Paul Draper, in the delightful matinee which she gave at the Selwyn Theatre yesterday. To her inimitable character sketches were added two groups of old English songs and folksongs sung by him. They made a happy combination. Not that her art requires any contrast to set it off; as she assumes one character after another, from the German governess with a cold in her head to the simple heroine of a Western railroad station, she gives such infinite variety, brings so many kinds of laughter, and sometimes a hint of tears, that her audiences have learned to want her all the time, and as much as she will give them.

Still, even Miss Draper must pause for breath sometimes, and then what more delightful than to hear these simple tunes, ranging from "Passing By" to "Barbara Ellen" and "The Banks of Green Willows," sung with the sympathy and earnestness which Paul Draper brings to them? Their performance was enjoyed by a large audience.

Sentenced for Robbing Poor Box.

Found guilty of stealing $22 from the poor box of the Church of the Holy Name, Ninety-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, Louis McCauley, 22 years old, who said he was unemployed, was sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse by Magistrate Silbermann in the West Side Court yesterday afternoon.

CHALIAPIN IN ROLE OF MEPHISTOPHELES

"Faust" was sung for the first time this season at the Metropolitan last evening to an audience that taxed the capacity of the Golden Horseshoe, the "Faustspielhaus" of a former century. A principal reason for the thronged welcome appeared early on the scene. Mr. Chaliapin was the Mephistopheles that sprang out of the walls of Dr. Faust's study as nimbly as he had last Monday emerged from the clouds in "Mefistofele." Mr. Martinelli was Faust, a rôle he has chiefly held of late years, and Mme. Alda sang the French Marguerite, as she also had the Italian Margherita. As Valentin appeared Lawrence Tibbett, in his first "visible" rôle and as Wagner, James Wolf. Mmes. Delossy and Howard were familiar as Siebel and Martha, and Mr. Hasselmans conducted.

Mr. Chaliapin was applauded at his entrance and again after the Calf of Gold air in the kirmess, which the audience got him to repeat, despite present day "no encore" rules. He paid the traditions of the theatre a significant compliment, however, by dressing the devil in red, whereas in Moscow the prince of darkness always wears black, and has so been represented even in New York by Chaliapin and by his compatriot, Bakianoff. There were many who might have fancied last night's gay, gallant figure a Mephisto of the 90's come to life. The singer also added some changes by his associates, playing the third act wholly outside the church, in one continuous street scene.

As an American artist, Mr. Tibbett's Valentine had two moments in the spotlight. His French words were clear, his baritone voice of fine, fresh quality, though he may yet project it better into the far Metropolitan spaces. He looked a tall, spare figure of youth and modest demeanor.

The restoration of "Faust" again owed much to Urban's pictures and more to Setti's chorus, which gave back tone for tone to Chaliapin in mingled impreecations and sonorities. The stage details were Agnini's and Siedle's, and the ballets were delightfully timed to a Gallis baton.

SMALLER FAIR IS URGED.

Philadelphia Meeting Votes 403 to 43 to Limit Scope.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Sentiment expressed at a public meeting today in the Mayor's office to discuss the scope of the proposed Sesqui-Centennial Exposition here in 1926 was overwhelmingly opposed to an exhibition of international proportions as proposed by the Exhibition Association. The vote against such a proposition was 403 to 43.

Most of those present, however, favored some sort of a celebration, and voted almost unanimously that the fair should be held exclusively under the auspices of the city. No representatives of the Sesqui-Centennial Association were present.

Opposition to the international project was led by E. T. Stotesbury, head of the banking house of Drexel & Co., and Samuel M. Vauclain, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. Mr. Stotesbury declared that European participation and assistance was impossible, while Mr. Vauclain characterized the bonds being issued by the Sesqui-Centennial Association as "straw bonds," and asserted that the fair would hurt business.

QUICK REPLY BY LONDON TO AMERICAN RADIO

MEDFORD HILLSIDE, Mass., Nov. 30.—Two-way radio telephone communication across the Atlantic was achieved tonight by the radio broadcasting station here, according to an announcement by officials of the American Radio and Research Corporation.

The statement said that distinct messages were received from Station 2-LO, London, England, in response to an address by H. J. Power, broadcast in connection with transatlantic experiments.

Five minutes after the conclusion of the address, it was announced, the messages were heard. They were:

FORD SPEAKS TO ENGLAND,

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 30.—Henry Ford made an effort to communicate with England tonight from the studio of his radio station in Dearborn, using a wave length of 317 meters.

Mr. Ford spoke for fifteen minutes on the internationalism of the English language which made possible the experiment because the two countries spoke the same tongue. Not until the nations of the world spoke a universal language could there be a possibility of universal peace, he added.

Mr. Ford spoke very distinctly, but some parts of the city reported that the station could not be heard, as other stations were broadcasting at the same time. It is thought, however, that at a greater distance the message was audible.

COOLIDGE ADDRESS BY RADIO

President's Message to Incoming Congress to Be Broadcast.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company announce that arrangements have been completed to broadcast the President's message to the sixty-eighth session of the Congress, which will be convened at noon on Monday. Microphones have been installed in the House of Representatives and special circuits are being set up for the purpose. President Coolidge will read his message in person on Dec. 4 or 5 and it will be made available to a vast radio audience through six high-power broadcasting stations.

These are WEAF, New York; WCAP, Washington, D. C.; WJAR, Providence, R. I.; WDAF, Kansas City, Mo.; KSD St. Louis, Mo., and WFAA, Dallas, Texas.

It is also announced that on Dec. 10 President Coolidge will make a special address before microphones installed at the White House in behalf of the Harding Memorial Association at 8:30 P. M. This will be broadcast by stations WEAF, New York; WCAP, Washington, D. C., and WJAR, Providence, R. I., and it is possible that other stations also will be linked up in the system of special long-distance circuits which will be used on the occasion.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The uncertainty and irregularity, which became visible on the Stock Exchange early in the week, were emphasized on yesterday's market. Prices drifted in opposite directions; even the same stocks moved in opposite directions at different parts of the day. In the end, net advances and net declines were pretty evenly distributed, and in each the day's movement varied from trifling fractions to a point or more. It was a market wholly in the hands of professional manipulators.

Needless to say, the stock market paid no attention to anything in the day's news. This was not equally true of foreign exchange; in which market the further decline of sterling, simultaneously with a moderate recovery in francs, may have had some connection with the yielding of England to the French position in the matter of investigating German capacity to pay. It was assumed in financial quarters that this acquiescence chiefly indicated unwillingness to mix a foreign controversy with the home electoral campaign into which the British Ministry had plunged. Possibly yesterday's lowering of the sterling rate was based on the possibilities of that election. It is not easy, without reading the English newspapers received by mail, for any one here to understand the state of mind at London regarding this election, the "capital levy" threat, and the loose talk of "inflation" in the longer background.

The outstanding change shown in yesterday's Federal Reserve statement is the substantial decrease in the gold reserve; necessarily reflecting the paying-out of gold certificates by the Reserve banks for use as ordinary pocket-money. The past week's reduction of such holdings was no less than $22,980,000. It occurred inspite of the week's gold imports of more than $6,000,000. At the present figure, this gold reserve is not quite $63,000,000 above the year's low point of Jan. 6, although the country's gold imports in the intervening period have been $275,000,000 and our home gold production not far from $50,000,000.

There is no mystery about the matter; it is a systematic effort by the Reserve banks to prevent such mounting-up of gold reserve and reserve percentage as might conceivably prove irresistible to member banks with speculative clients. This week's reserve ratio, as a result of paying out gold and increasing rediscounts for the month-end settlements, declined from 77¼ to 76⅝ per cent. If all the gold imported or produced in the United States this year had been kept in the Federal Reserve, the ratio between the total reserve and the present note and deposit liabilities would now be 83 per cent.; much the highest since we entered the European war. On the other hand, however, it must be remembered that the gold certificates paid out have mostly taken the place of that much of reserve notes. Had the gold been kept intact in the system's vaults, note circulation would have increased as it has not done, so that liabilities would have risen with reserves.

No light whatever on the immediate trade future can be obtained from the week-end mercantile reviews, which are it anything less indicative of expanding business than they have been in other recent weeks. That "general feeling seems more cheerful" could have been learned from Wall Street as well as from the mercantile markets. The visible situation is described as a "heavy daily turnover of merchandise," yet with "evidence of resistance to advances in prices at retail"; "increased holiday purchasing" which, however, follows "a slight reduction in November from the conditions ruling in October." Tentative forecasts of revival are now directed to "the first quarter or half of 1924."

MONEY.

FRIDAY, NOV. 30, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was decidedly firm, and for the first time since Oct. 8 rate got up to 5½ per cent. Renewals and first trades were reported at 4½, followed by a charge of 5 around midday, then 5½, with a decline to 5 just before close. Heavy calling of loans accounted for stiffness of rate. Time money was quiet and unchanged at 5@5¼ per cent. Both business credit markets were steady and without variation in discount.

Gold bullion 3d higher at 94s 11d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 111⅝ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 114, on Nov. 19. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest 102¼, on Feb. 21, 1923. Highest price last year, 136, on Jan. 3.

CREDITORS REPORT ON LONG COMPANIES

Affairs of Three Concerns Turned Over to Industrial Engineers.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—A temporary creditors' committee reported to creditors today that the R. H. Long Company, the R. H. Long Motor Company and the R. H. Long Shoe Company had turned over their affairs to Caswell & Woods Associates, industrial engineers, as a result of lack of liquid working capital. The report says that substantially all the stock in the R. H. Long Company, the parent concern, is owned by Richard H. Long of Framingham, former Democratic candidate for Governor, and members of his family. Caswell & Woods, the report adds, estimate the assets of the three companies at about $1,875,000, direct liabilities about $1,200,000 and contingent liabilities about $800,000.

The committee, with Wilbur W. Higgins of the Old Colony Trust Company of this city as Chairman, was appointed at a creditors' meeting called by Mr. Long on Nov. 16. Its report says the engineers have expressed the opinion that, "with the advance of the company's relatively small amount of cash necessary to finance the liquidation of the companies' inventories, creditors may more reasonably expect to receive substantially full payment of their claims" than if a receiver were appointed and the assets converted into cash at a forced sale.

The principal business of the companies at present, the report adds, is the manufacture of automobiles, with factories in Framingham and Worcester, the shoe company having discontinued operation in September last and having substantially liquidated its inventory. The estimated assets and liabilities do not include claims of the R. H. Long Company against the Government on account of war contracts, or claims of the Government against the company for additional income and war profits taxes, of which the report says, even a rough estimate cannot be made without further study.

The temporary committee has been dissolved and in its place has been named a committee of secured creditors, with Mr. Higgins as Chairman, and a committee of unsecured creditors headed by T. M. Ragan of the American Credit Indemnity Company of Boston.

$5,000 for Coffee Exchange Seat.

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange membership of the W. W. Birdsall estate was sold yesterday to L. W. Minford for $5,000. The last previous seat sold on this exchange brought $5,500.

QUITS EXCHANGE BOARD.

Herbert T. B. Jacquelin Had Been One of Governors Since 1912.

The resignation of Herbert T. B. Jacquelin as a member of the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange was announced yesterday. Mr. Jacqueline has been a member of the Exchange since May 12, 1894, and a member of the Board of Governors since May, 1912. He is a member of the odd-lot firm of Jacquelin & DeCoppet, organized in 1879, the pioneer in its line in the financial district.

Mr. Jacquelin was a member of the Committee of Arrangements for more than ten years and served also on the Committee on Securities. He was to a considerable extent the projector of the enlarged building which the Exchange now occupies.

NOTE ACCELERATION IN RETAIL BUSINESS

HOLIDAY TRADE PICKS UP

Forward Buying Shows a Spurt in the Iron, Steel and Cotton Goods Industries.

Accelerated retail distribution, with some slackened demand in primary channels, but with generally cheerful signs for the first quarter of 1924, is emphasized in the current summaries of business conditions issued by Dun and Bradstreet. The Bradstreet review says:

"Trade and industrial reports indicate very much the same variety of cross-currents and irregularities hitherto noted, but while November will probably show a slight reduction from the, good conditions on the whole, ruling in October, general feeling as to the near-by future, say the first quarter or half of 1924, seems more cheerful.

"It is certain that in the iron and steel trade, and to a lesser extent in cotton goods, forward buying has picked up, while increased holiday purchasing tends partly to offset the quieting effect that mild weather and heavy rains in wide areas have had upon current transactions. Activity in industries catering to holiday trade is reported marked. Collections hold the slight advantage previously noted, but are still relatively below par."

Dun's Review says:

"Next to the last month of the year ended with an accelerated retail distribution in certain sections, but with a slackened demand in some primary channels. It is inventory time in various wholesale markets and aggressive buying there is not to be expected at this period.

"While holiday requirements are becoming more of a factor in consuming circles, the weather has not been conducive to the best results in the movement of goods in that quarter. Low temperatures, with snow in some places, have stimulated purchasing of heavy-weight apparel, but these conditions have not been general and there is considerable irregularity in reports from the leading centres.

"The daily turnover of merchandise is heavy, yet there is evidence of resistance to advances in prices at retail, and the possibility of a restriction of cotton goods consumption, because of the high price of the raw materials, is not being disregarded. Curtailment of production at New England textile plants has recently increased, but resumption of operations at English mills which have been running on short time is announced, conditions there having shown improvement.

"Domestic business, however, continues uneven, and a conservative sentiment still governs most commitments. It is not the season to look for decisive changes in business, but the underlying situation is considered sound and the recent proposals for reduction of taxes have occasioned much favorable comment."

ECUADOREAN OIL FLOWING.

But Production Is Handicapped by Lack of Transportation.

Substantial progress is being made in the development of the oil fields of Ecuador, according to the annual report of Anglo-Ecuadorean Oilfields, Ltd. James Rennie, Secretary of the company, outlines the progress in the report of the Board of Directors, to be submitted to the stockholders at the annual meeting to be held in London Dec. 3, but he says that "until the railway (which is being built by the company) is completed it is not practical to proceed rapidly with the production of oil, nor would it be possible to transport the oil to a market until the pipeline and tanks are finished." The company is also building a pipeline under the sea for loading steamers.

"The directors are glad to inform shareholders," says the report, "that while the period of full development of the above-ground equipment for the company's future needs is necessarily slow in so remote a country and with inefficient labor, the wells which have been completed have all shown a satisfactory production of high quality oil."

National Department Stores Sales.

The National Department Stores, Inc., for the eight months ended Sept. 30, reports sales of $25,740,019 and operating profits of $1,624,773. After payment of taxes and dividends on the first and second preferred stock, there was left a surplus of $1,116,066, or $3.72 a share earned on the 300,000 shares of capital common stock of no par value.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 30.—Details of a $60,830,000 five-year improvement program planned by the Great Northern Railway were given out today by George R. Martin, Vice President of the road, at the grain rate hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission here today. This program, Mr. Martin said, was determined on before the present movement for freight rate reduction began. Reduction of rates would be a serious blow, he said, and would prevent the improvements.

Net returns now are far below the 5½ per cent. fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a fair return, the witness aid.

PROBLEM UP TO CONGRESS

Five Bills Have Been Recommended to the President Providing Indirect Aid to Shipping.

The possibility of a complete revision of the Shipping Board's plans for the merchant marine became apparent yesterday when it became known that the Lasker-Farley plan for a consolidation of the five United Kingdom services of the United States Shipping Board into one service, to be operated directly by the Shipping Board, virtually had been abandoned.

When Chairman Edward P. Farley of the Shipping Board sailed for Europe about two months ago he announced that the plan would be put into operation "immediately." Now Mr. Farley has returned and the plan has still to be effected. That it will never be effected as it now stands appears fairly definite from the fact that since his trip abroad considerable opposition has arisen to it, both in official and unofficial quarters.

Mr. Farley was named Chairman of the Shipping Board by President Harding on the recommendation of the retiring chairman, Albert D. Lasker, but the appointment has not been confirmed by the Senate. Commissioners Haney and Thompson are two members of the board who are understood to have objected to the carrying out of the United Kingdom plan which eventually was to serve as a basis for operating all other Government-held trade routes of the Shipping Board in the event of its success.

Both the United States Ship Operators' Association and the American Steamship Owners' Association have registered protests against the plan as originally announced by Chairman Farley. In this connection these interests are much interested in plans now being laid for new merchant marine legislation in the next Congress. Representative George W. Edmonds, ranking member of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, who led the fight for the Harding ship subsidy bill in the House last session, has recommended to President Coolidge five bills pertaining to merchant marine problems, it was reported yesterday, the one of most immediate concern to private ship interests being that which provides for six indirect aids to shipping.

First, co-ordination between the Shipping Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission; second, application of import and export rail rates only to American flag ships; third, 50 per cent. immigration for American ships; fourth, Government transport work to be done by merchant vessels; fifth permission to use the construction fund for Diesel installations; and sixth, export and import rail rates to be applied to materials used in ship construction.

SEEK RAIL LOAN RATE CUT.

Executives Plan to Ask Congress to Reduce Interest to 4½%.

Railroad executives are giving consideration to a proposal suggested during the last few days that Congress be asked to reduce the interest rates on loans it has made to the railroads. The rate is 6 per cent. and the suggestion has been made that it be reduced to at least 5 per cent., and if possible to 4½ per cent.

These loans were taken from the $300,000,000 fund created under provision of the Transportation act of 1920. The argument is advanced by those behind the proposal that the Government would be assisting the weaker roads by reducing this interest rate and that in doing so the Government will be taking no loss because it can borrow money at 4½ per cent.

Estimates made in the financial district indicate that a reduction of interest to 4½ per cent. would save $1,200,000 for the New Haven, and $825,000 annually for the St. Paul. Among the other railroads that have borrowed from the Government, and the amounts still due, are the Chesapeake & Ohio, $3,000,000; Boston & Maine, $10,700,000; Rock Island, $9,863,000; Erie, $11,574,000; Missouri Pacific, $5,500,000 and the Seaboard, $14,700,000.

Increases Capital to $250,000,000.

DOVER, Del., Nov. 30.—A certificate of increase in capital was filed here at State Department today, for the Lago Petroleum Corporation, from $12,600,000 to $250,000,000. The charter was filed April 13. The State tax paid with the filing was $11,970.

WEEK'S BOND ISSUE TOTALS $45,482,500

ST. PAUL DEPOT A START

$12,500,000 of Financing Is Being Done by Strong Syndicate—Land Bank in Market.

New bond offerings brought out during the week ended yesterday totaled $45,482,500, against $48,353,000 the previous week. Industrial offerings comprised the largest single group. While the last two weeks have been described by investment bankers as relatively active, prospects for next week indicate that the $50,000,000 mark will be exceeded substantially. As a start in this direction is the offering of $12,500,000 of St. Paul Union Depot bonds. They will be marketed by a strong syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., who yesterday described the terms.

	This Week.	Last Week.
Farm loan	11,000,000	3,000,000
Railroad	8,982,000
State and municipal	4,864,500	5,423,000
Public utility	1,336,000	26,800,000
Totals	$45,482,500	$48,353,000

The St. Paul Union Depot bond issue, which will be offered publicly on Monday, will be first refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, dated Jan. 1, 1922, and maturing on Jan. 1, 1972. They will be sold at 94½ to yield the investor 5.30 per cent. Security will consist of a first lien on practically all the property, being second only to two small underlying mortgages totaling $500,000.

Nine railroads will back the issue through a joint participation in the use of the depot, which is the central depot of St. Paul, Minn. They include the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Chicago Great Western, the Chicago, Minneapolis & Sault Ste. Marie (Soo Line); the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific.

The underwriting group consists of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City Company and Dillon, Read & Co.

An offering set for today is composed of $500,000 Lincoln Joint Stock Land Bank 5 per cent. bonds and an additional block of Burlington Joint Stock Land Bank 5 per cent. bonds, this offering being made by Halsey, Stuart & Co., the Harris Trust & Savings Bank and theh Wallace R. Compton Company. The Lincoln Joint Stock Land Bank bonds are priced at 101½ to yield more than 4.80 per cent. to the optional date, July 1, 1933, and 5 per cent. thereafter to maturity in 1953. The Burlington Joint Stock Land Bank bonds are offered at 102 to yield approximately 4.75 per cent. to the optional date, which is Dec. 1, 1933, and 5 per cent. thereafter to maturity in 1953.

DENY CUBAN REVOLT RUMOR

Refining Company Charges Report Was Sponsored by "Bull Pool."

Reports in the financial district of an impending revolution in Cuba are declared by the Federal Sugar Refining Company to have been circulated by the "bull pool." The sugar company lays the recent advance in sugar prices squarely at the door of this pool. The corporation announced yesterday that it had directed an inquiry to the State Department at Washington and in reply had received a message from Secretary of State Hughes to the effect that the "department's report indicates the situation in Cuba is quiet and the department has no information to confirm the report referred to."

The Cuban rumors that events would reach a climax in a few days greatly excited the markets both here and abroad, according to the Federal Company. A sudden advance in prices developed on the Sugar Exchange followed by demand for refined sugar, which forced retailers to enter the raw market at rapidly advancing values, compelling them in turn to raise the prices of refined sugar. The company ends its announcement with the statement: "What the bull pool will resort to next in an effort to affect values is difficult to comprehend."

BANKS SEE BRIGHT BUSINESS OUTLOOK

TRADE INCREASE PREDICTED

Revival of Building Is Expected to Aid Prosperity in 1924—Banking Conditions Sound.

December reviews of New York banks reflect more encouragement with respect to business conditions, and one of the premises on which cheerful forecasts are made is the Mellon tax reduction plan. The difference between good times and bad times, it is pointed out, can be measured in terms of money available for construction work, and with taxes lowered there is offered a better chance for men of means to spend money than is the case under high tax rates.

The National City Bank's Review of Economic Conditions says:

"Secretary Mellon has offered a feasible plan of tax reduction, the effects of which, if adopted, are certain to be seen in a new impetus to industry and business of all kinds. The country is in need of such an impetus at this time. Business is in an uncertain state and would be greatly helped by action that would revive general confidence. The prospect for a settlement of European troubles is not hopeful, and this country must continue to look mainly to its own industrial activities and its own industrial leadership for the employment of its workers and the consumption of the products of its farms, mines and factories.

"The general business situation has continued good in November, with a rather more confident sentiment prevailing in industrial and financial centres than in several months immediately preceding. Only one month of the year remains, and that promises a record-breaking trade.

"The revival of building operations is the symptom which carries the most encouragement as to probable business conditions in 1924. The year 1923 will seem to record much above that of any previous one in the value of construction work.

"The banking condition is sound, judging from figures supplied in The Monthly Review published by the Federal Reserve Bank of this district, which states: 'Total loans and investments of reporting member banks in this district show little net change between the middle of October and the middle of November. There was a decrease of slightly over $50,000,000 in loans made largely for commercial and agricultural purposes, but this was offset by increases in loans on stocks and bonds and in security investments. Total deposits showed a gradual upward tendency, and on Nov. 14 were the highest since the first part of July.'

"The American Exchange National Bank, after lauding the Mellon plan, says:

"'Important changes for the better in the positions of some of the industries that have been struggling with special problems contributed greatly during November to the growth of confidence in the immediate and remote future of business. These changes for the better were manifested in various ways, generally in the more or less definite 'turns' in the curves.'

"Estimates of $8,000,000,000 as the country's requirements in new buildings were taken to show that 'the expenditures will make extraordinary demands upon the savings of the country and the appearance of the estimates at this time gives particular point to the recommendations for tax reductions made by Secretary Mellon.'"

NOVEMBER TRANSACTIONS.

Transactions in stocks on the New York Stock Exchange for the month of November aggregated 22,573,082 shares, an increase of 6,754,304 shares, as compared with the previous month, but a decrease of 308,780 shares, as compared to the corresponding month last year. The heaviest day's trading was 1,541,100 shares on the 22d, and in all there were ten days on which the total was a million shares or more. The smallest full day's trading was 659,083 shares on the 24th. For the Saturday two-hour half holidays, the maximum total was 545,-000 shares on the 3d and the minimum 378,857 shares on the 17th.

Nov. 1 Total a Gain Over Month Before and 10 Per Cent. Over Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Federal Reserve Board announced today that statistics furnished by 885 banks distributed throughout the United States indicate that savings deposits were 0.4 per cent. greater on Nov. 1 than on Oct. 1, and nearly 10 per cent. greater than on Nov. 1, 1922.

The total deposits reported amounted to $6,744,762,000 on Nov. 1, as compared with $6,717,113,000 on Oct. 1 and $6,136,-210,000 on Nov. 1 a year ago. Decreases occurred during the month only in the New York and Minneapolis districts, and the largest increase, of 1.3 per cent., took place in the Cleveland district.

New York	20	1,871,844,000
Philadelphia	79	461,535,000
Richmond	91	290,783,000
Chicago	206	875,805,000
St. Louis	33	131,741,000
Minneapolis	15	90,043,000
Kansas City	57	97,982,000
Dallas	117	91,084,000
San Francisco	74	955,447,000

CHANGES ANNOUNCED BY WALL STREET FIRMS

New Partners Are Taken by Some and Others Report Revision of Personnel.

A number of changes, the naming of new partners and plans for revision or expansion of their organizations were announced yesterday by financial houses.

The Irving Savings Bank, following the naming of Walter J. Reeves as Vice President, announced that it would enlarge its system of deposits on Dec. 15, when Mr. Reeves will become associated with the bank. The new system will be under the supervision of Mr. Reeves, who has been associated with savings banks for the last fifteen years. Recently he was General Secretary of the Savings Bank Association of the State.

Following the dissolution of the investment banking house of Stacy & Braun, it was announced that Charles L. Stacy will go to Stevenson Brothers & Perry, Inc. That firm's name will be changed, effective today, to Stevenson, Perry, Stacy & Co. Offices will be in Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and St. Louis.

W. M. Braun, E. P. Bosworth, F. A. Bargmann, J. A. Moore and J. B. Taylor, also of the old firm of Stacy & Braun, today will open offices, under the firm name of Braun, Bosworth & Co. in Cincinnati, Toledo and Detroit. Another partner, Warren J. Hoystradt, who will join the Detroit company, which is the investment banking department of the Detroit Trust Company, will have charge of that company's first New York office, which will open today at 14 Wall Street.

Fisher A. Buell, manager of Prince & Whitely's bond trading department, announced yesterday that he had resigned. It is understood he intends to go into the bond business for himself.

Auto Production Increases.

Production of automobiles in the United States during the first ten days of November was 8 to 10 per cent. higher than in the same period in October, according to the latest trade returns from all companies except the Ford. The Ford schedules, according to Automotive Industries, call for a possible aggregate output of 165,000 cars in November against 185,000 in October. Truck production is continuing on steady levels, with the expectations that the month will go beyond the 30,141 reported in October.

Park City Mining Dividend

Directors of the Park City Mining and Smelting Company have declared a dividend of 15 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 8. The three previous quarterly dividends amounted to 12½ cents a share.

White Oil Earnings.

The White Oil Corporation for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1923, reports gross income of $2,662,014 and net operating earnings of $338,863 after expenses, taxes and interest, but before depreciation, depletion and adjustments.

3 CUBAN RAILWAYS DISCUSSING MERGER

Two Other Companies May Join in Consolidation Under Auspices of Colonel Tarafa.

NO CHANGES IN OPERATION

Exchange of Common Stock for That of Holding Concern Only Financial Feature.

Preliminary negotiations for the consolidation of the Cuba Railroad Company, the Camaguey & Nuevitas and the Cuban Northern Railways, under the provisions of the Tarafa bill, have begun, it was learned yesterday. While it is expected that a number of conferences will be required before the consolidation is completed, it has already been agreed that the capital structure of the three railroads and their operating systems will remain practically as they are at present, with the exception of the common stock.

Under the plans for consolidation under consideration by Colonel J. M. Tarafa, owner of Cuban Northern Railways, and representatives of the Cuba Company, which owns the other two railroads, the common stock of these companies will be exchanged for the common stock of a new holding company to be organized shortly. The ratio of the exchange of these shares has not been decided upon.

Tentative requests to be included in the consolidation have also been made by the United Railways of the Havana & Regla Warehouses, Ltd. This is one of the largest railroads in Cuba, with a capital stock of approximately $30,000,-000 and controlling 1,210 miles of railroad. According to authentic information, officials of this company made the suggestion that Colonel Tarafa and representatives of the Cuba Company visit them in London to confer on plans for a consolidation that would include the United Railways.

Colonel Tarafa refused this suggestion, but offered to confer with representatives of the English company if they would come to the United States. It is understood, though, that if the United Railways Company is included in the consolidation, the majority of the stock of the new consolidated company will be controlled jointly by the Cuba Railroad Company and the Cuba Northern Railways with Colonel Tarafa as the probable President of the new company. Whether or not the English company will be willing to accept this proposition will not be known until further conferences are held.

Little change will be made in the holdings of the Cuba Company, which is owner of all of the common stock of the Cuba Railroad Company and of the Camaguey & Nuevitas. The holdings of the common stock of these companies will be exchanged for the common stock of the new holding company, and then returned to the treasury of the Cuba Company.

Certain advantages accrue to the railroads which consolidate under the Tarafa bill. They provide that no additional competition will be added to the railroads already in operation and that no new private ports be established in Cuba.

Cuban railroad officials believe that the plan will assist them in improving the present service by a more thorough co-operation between the existing lines. The managements of each of the present railroads will remain unchanged. After the payment of the fixed charges, though, the profits will be pooled and divided according to the holding of common stock.

Division of the common stock of the new holding company will be made on a basis of present earning capacity rather than on the capitalization of the property or the amount of stock outstanding, it was stated yesterday by a representative of one of the railroads very closely connected in the negotiations.

First Austrian Coupons Due Today.

The first coupon on the Austrian Government guaranteed loan will fall due today and the money to take care of the payment is reported on hand. In connection with this payment, Dr. Zimmerman, who is representing the international group that underwrote the loan, reports that receipts from customs and tobacco levies, placed as security for the loan, have amounted in the six-month period to much more than the amount actually necessary.

Iron Products Corporation Report.

Report of the earnings of the Iron Products Corporation, for the first six months of 1923 shows a total of $6.84 a share on the 140,854 shares of common stock outstanding. The corporation says it is booked solidly through the first quarter of 1924 on orders for pipe.

Women's Klan Incorporated.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 30.—Articles of incorporation were filed here today with the Secretary of State by the "Kamelia," which is understood to be the women's auxiliary of the Ku Klux Klan. Its headquarters were given as 708 Powell Street, Gloucester City, Camden County.

Federal Reserve's Earning Assets All Increase; Note Circulation Higher

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Increases in all classes of earning assets, including $48,200,000 in discounted bills, $4,500,000 in acceptances purchased in open market and $11,100,000 in United States Government securities, together with an increase of $23,200,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and a decline of $15,-600,000 in cash reserves, are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve Banks as at close of business on Nov. 28.

The reserve ratio declined from 77.1 to 76.4 per cent., the latter ratio being identical with that reported a year earlier.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reports the largest increase in holdings of discounted bills—$21,800,000; Boston reports an increase of $19,500,000; New York of $6,200,000, and Philadelphia, Atlanta and San Francisco each of $4,400,000.

Declines of $3,700,000 are shown for Richmond, $3,600,000 for St. Louis, $3,500,000 for Minneapolis, and an aggregate decline of $1,200,000 for Cleveland, Kansas City and Dallas.

Holdings of paper secured by United States Government obligations increased by $41,000,000 and on Nov. 28 aggregated $382,600,000. Of this amount $248,900,000 was secured by Liberty and other United States bonds, $118,500,000 by Treasury notes and $15,200,000 by certificates of indebtedness.

The largest increase in Federal Reserve note circulation—by $9,900,000—is reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia; Cleveland reports an increase of $7,900,000, Boston of $4,100,-000, and Chicago of $3,200,000, while St. Louis, Richmond and Kansas City show smaller increases totaling $4,600,000.

Decreases of $3,300,000 and $1,800,000 respectively are shown for New York and San Francisco and a total decrease of $1,300,000 for the three remaining banks.

Gold reserves declined by $23,000,000 during the week. Decreases of $26,-100,000, $16,200,000 and $11,300,000 are reported by New York, Chicago, and Boston, respectively, while Cleveland shows an increase of $11,000,000, Richmond of $10,500,000, and Philadelphia and St. Louis each of $9,200,000. Reserves other than gold increased by $7,400,000, and non-reserve cash declined by $13,100,000.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the Reserve Banks, as compared with a week and a year ago, follows:

Recessions in Those Cash Staples Which Have Recently Enjoyed Substantial Rise.

Natural reactions occurred in yesterday's cash markets in those staples which recently had been climbing steadily higher, spot cotton and lard both sustaining good sized declines. On the other hand, butter and eggs assumed positions of strength at improved levels, while wheat and corn also showed a better tone. Metals as a group were steady and without change.

Production of crude oil in the United States registered another drop in the week ended Nov. 24, according to the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production last week, it is stated, was 2,198,350 barrels, the smallest in several months and a drop of 26,050 barrels from the daily average in the previous week. Virtually every field in the country except Oklahoma, Gulf Coast and Wyoming and Montana, reported reductions. Central Texas, the home of the Powell field, which has attracted attention since California production started to decline, reports a falling off of 10,300 barrels in the daily output, and a further sharp drop is expected in the current week. California output dropped 7,700 barrels. The reduction in other fields was small.

In the California fields, Santa Fe Springs declined 15,000 barrels, Long Beach 3,000 and Huntington Beach 1,000, but these were offset in part by an increase of 10,400 barrels in the new Torrance field.

Receipts of California crude oil at Atlantic and Gulf ports last week totaled 1,633,000 barrels, or a daily average of 233,571 against 1,527,000 barrels, or a daily average of 175,286 the week before. The country's imports of crude oil last week approximated 1,007,000 barrels against 1,802,000 barrels in the previous week.

GOOD WEEK IN DRY GOODS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was somewhat in excess of a week ago, but did not reach the volume of last year for the same week.

"Road sales showed an increase over the week previous, although falling slightly to equal the total of last year during the corresponding week.

"There were fewer customers in market than in 1922 for the same period.

BOAT BUILDERS EXPAND.

New interests have become associated with the Great Lakes Boat Building Corporation of Milwaukee, and the company's working capital is reported to have been increased to $1,000,000 for carrying out a program of expansion, including a new plant at Chicago.

Fifth National Increases Surplus.

The Fifth National Bank yesterday, for the third time this year, increased its surplus $100,000. In ten years, at the present address, Twenty-third Street and Lexington Avenue, the bank's deposits have grown from $3,839,500 to $18,874,500 and resources from $5,000,000 to more than $35,000,000.

FINDS STEADY GAIN IN STEEL INDUSTRY

EXPECTS BIG RAIL BUYING

Demands From Motor Plants, Builders and Foreign Needs Indicate Good Trade, He Says.

The tide has turned for the better in the iron and steel industry of the country, according to Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, at least so far as the business of his company is concerned. The low point in buying, he said, occurred a few months ago, and the volume of business has been gradually increasing since.

"A great many signs," said Mr. Grace, "indicate that 1924 will be a repetition of 1923 and that business conditions in the two years will prove similar." He pointed out that during the current year steel buying was heaviest in the spring, and he expects that a large demand for steel products would again be witnessed next spring.

In regard to the expected demand for steel products from the railroads, Mr. Grace said:

"We face about the same railroad buying program for equipment and maintenance, particularly track materials and cars. The railroads have made good money in 1923 and seem assured of another good year. Next year is going to be one of the biggest rail years we have ever had.

"The automotive industry is anything but pessimistic. Motor car makers anticipate that their output in 1924 will be about the same as in 1923. Building construction has held up and indications are it will continue to hold up. The farmer has never been so prosperous as he has had in many years. His equipment is depleted and obsolete and he must buy soon. Canning and allied industries are scheduled for 100 per cent. operations.

"Foreign demand is gradually increasing. Conditions in Cuba, I understand, point to a bumper year for that island. And it will require steel for plantation operations, sugar mills, &c.

"Conditions in Mexico appear to be improving all the time—and Mexico is an important market potentially. Finally, public sentiment is generally better than it was a year or so ago.

"Altogether, while I do not look for a boom in 1924, I think it will be a fair average business year."

FOREIGN SUGAR YIELD OFF.

The European beet sugar crop for the 1923-24 season is now estimated at 4,622,000 tons, according to figures received by Willet & Gray sugar statisticians. This is a reduction of more than 600,000 tons from the previous estimate. The production last year was 4,861,000 tons.

It had generally been expected that foreign countries would increase their yields this season because of the high prices prevailing in this country. Germany is likely to produce 200,000 tons less than originally estimated. Holland's estimate was cut 105,000 tons, while reductions of 75,000 tons each are estimated for Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Directors of the Auto-Lite Company yesterday declared a dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

FEAR OF CONGRESS HAMPERS RAILWAYS

AIMED AT EARNING POWER

Further improvements in railroad facilities and service are seriously threatened by the promised attacks on the railroads by Western Senators at the next session of Congress, according to Robert S. Binkerd, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Public Relations of the Eastern Railroads. He directed the attention of the members of the Chamber of Commerce of Newark, N. J., in an address before them last night, to the fact that the vast majority of the proposals of this "radical" group of Senators was aimed at the earning power of the railroads.

Some seek to reduce the valuation of the railroads at least one-third, he said. Others are to restore to State commissions the power to make State rates lower than are necessary to meet present operating costs. Still others want to repeal the Transportation act as a whole, in the hope that rates will be reduced, without giving adequate concern for the results on railroad service.

"If the Interstate Commerce Commission's valuation of the railroads," he continued, "should be reduced one-third, it would save only 5 cents out of every dollar now expended by the shipper. This would make possible only a 5 per cent reduction in rates.

"But such a reduction could be accomplished only by confiscating billions of dollars of property, robbed and disarmed by a Government commission, and by taking away from railway management the one big tool with which it can create operating economies and ultimately bring about lower rates—good will is credit. Credit depends upon earning power."

American Rolling Mill Report.

The American Rolling Mill Company, for the nine months to Sept. 30, reports net profits of $3,008,460. After payment of all other charges and dividends on the preferred and deventure stocks, there was reported a balance of $1,007,256 for the common stock, equal to $3.48 a share on the $19,985,225 stock of $25 a share par value outstanding.

To Discuss Rail Damage Claims.

Plans for making still further reductions in the damage claims paid by the railroads will be discussed at the Eastern Claims Conference in Boston, Dec. 4 to 6.

COTTON IN REACTION AFTER INITIAL RISE

After making new high records for the year above 37 cents, a reactionary tone developed in cotton yesterday. From the opening the market came under selling pressure both from commission house and Southern sources, over 50,000 sales being sold by a few brokers. The pace had become so rapid after an advance of over 10 cents a pound since Oct. 10, attended with only one reaction of a cent and a half two weeks ago, that buying power was not sufficient to absorb sales without some readjustment. December was subjected to persistent pressure throughout the session. Stop-loss orders were executed the last hour, which broke prices rapidly. Just before the close a sharp recovery of half a cent took place, with final prices showing a loss of 37 to 52 points. Southern spot markets lost quarter to half a cent, but sales aggregated over 50,000 bales for the day.

During the holiday Liverpool continued its violent advance, which brought prices to highest levels of the year. January sold within a few points of 22d on the foreign Exchange, which represented so wide a spread between Liverpool and New York that heavy arbitrage purchases were made during early trading. Strength abroad started December nearly 70 points up, rushing all months into new high territory. Four active positions sold at 37 cents and above, while October, representing the crop of 1924, touched 30 cents on the call. As the advance yesterday followed a rise of a full cent before the Exchange closed on Wednesday, it was hardly surprising that heaviest selling operations at some time began immediately following the opening and the quantity of contracts thrown into the ring increased as the day wore on.

There seemed to be an extensive amount of December contracts for sale and persistent selling pressure on that position became the outstanding feature of the day's trading. With December in New York about 37½ cents, this represented a level two cents or more above middling quotations at several Southern spot markets, a relation that indicated December had again gotten out of line with actual cotton. Within an hour following the call it was estimated that a few brokers had distributed fully 50,000 bales of various positions. Other brokers had December for sale at steadily declining quotations and before midday December had lost nearly a cent from high figures of the session.

The combined influence of a steady increase in the amount of cotton in New York and the very rapidity of the advance in contracts compared with spot cotton served to produce a situation where a reactionary tone developed. Large interests took advantage of this condition to supply the market with contracts on a large scale and the selling movement assumed such proportions during the afternoon that stop-loss orders were uncovered. More and more contracts appeared until both January and March crashed through 36 cents, a loss of about a cent and a quarter from early high figures. For a time it became difficult to find buyers and quotations slipped off 5 and 10 points at a time, with May around 35 cents a few moments before the close. Then a rush of covering occurred that found almost no cotton for sale. A scramble got under way in closing trading during which a running recovery of about half a cent took place. Larger spinners' taking than a year and an increased volume of trade calling on the decline, with heavy sales of spot cotton in the South, steadied the market.

Spinners' takings amounted to 372,000 bales against 325,000 for the week making 2,349,000 for the season compared with 2,990,000 for the year. The amount in sight for the week aggregated 504,000, against 480,000 last year, making 4,673,000 so far this season, compared with 7,839,000 last year. This brought about an increase in the visible supply of 122,000, against 125,000 last year, making the total supply of American cotton 3,291,000, against 4,068,000 a year ago.

Large Hosiery Orders Placed.

Orders for 45,000 dozen assorted hose were placed yesterday for Spring delivery by the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., which has its executive and buying offices at 370 Seventh Avenue. The largest single order called for 12,000 dozen women's cotton stockings. Earlier in the week the company placed a single order for 25,000 dozen women's silk hose, also for Spring delivery. The amounts Liveyed were not given out. The goods will be sold in the 475 stores which the company now operates in various parts of the country.

Silk Underwear Demand Large.

Silk underwear is in greater favor just now than it has been at any similar time in several years, according to a report emanating from the United Underwear League of America. In response to the demand for garments that are at once practical and luxurious, the manufacturers have evolved a number of negligee models pretty enough to be worn as tea gowns used to be worn, as well as nightgowns that are suitable for negligee wear and pajamas elaborate enough to serve as smoking suits. A feature of the present showings is the amount of attention given to black underwear, which is in vogue in Paris and promises to "catch on" here as well.

Coal Prices Are Easing Off.

Conditions in the anthracite trade are steadily changing in favor of the buyer, Seward's Journal will say today. Some of the independent operators are still quoting in the neighborhood of $12 at the mines for stove and nut, but the tonnage moving at that level is becoming smaller every day. There are very few dealers left, in this section, at least, who are willing to pay a $3 premium, even for the two most popular domestic sizes. Retail demand is not nearly so brisk as it was, and stocks are beginning to accumulate. Such improvement as has occurred in the bituminous trade is chiefly the result of limiting the supply to what the market can absorb.

Buying of Yarn-Dyed Silks.

A slightly better call for taffetas and messalines is reported by silk manufacturers here. The trend is being watched with considerable interest by sellers to learn if it is only the normal buying of these yarn-dyed fabrics at this time of the year, or whether it is significant of a real style swing toward them. The manufacturers would greet the latter with enthusiasm, as it has been many months since there has been a vigorous demand for the weaves in question. Many mills have given up their production, so that this places the market in a much better position than last year. There are no dyestuffs or stocks available, and any reviving of the demand would be felt at once by the mills.

The wholesale demand for women's handbags is spotty. Some manufacturers report orders up to now as very satisfactory, while others complain strongly of the lack of activity. Certain of the novelties are having a fairly good run for the holiday trade, but the demand is of a scattered nature. In leather bags the under-arm kind is meeting with favor, and retailers are said to have placed reorders for the attractively priced ones. Beaded bags to retail at from $1 to $2 are being featured by many stores. The larger portion of them is imported. The drawstring type in the volume seller, although good results are reported with those having fancy metal filigree frames.

Gray Goods Prices Higher.

Gray goods prices went still higher in this market yesterday and several contructions sold in the morning at figures that were refused after the lunch hour. This was true of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths, which brought 11¾ cents for December shipment early in the day and of 60-48s in that width, which had sold for similar shipment at 9¾ cents. In the morning business was also done in the 64-60s for early 1924 delivery at 11½ cents, but later prices could not be taken in the afternoon. December deliveries of 39-inch 72-76s were sold at 14 cents, with 12⅞ cents paid for similar shipments of 68-72s. In the day's sheetings business were sales of 87-inch 48-squares at 13 cents for December shipment and 13¼ cents for shipment in January. December lots of 36-inch 6.15-yard sheetings sold at 8¾ cents.

Leading Percale Lines Withdrawn.

Most all of the leading lines of percales in this market, if not actually all, are now practically withdrawn from sale. The goods sold through M. C. D. Borden & Sons were withdrawn on the eve of the holiday and some of the other leading printers were refusing yesterday to book advance business at the prevailing figures. In one such instance the statement was further made that a good deal would depend on who the buyer was whether any of the limited goods in stock would be let out. In another quarter there was an apparent willingness to sell the few goods still held, but no advance business would be taken. The withdrawal of the Borden lines came as a surprise to many in the trade, despite the knowledge that these goods, as well as those of the other leading printers, were being sold well below present cotton costs. New prices are looked for early next week.

Good Spring Business Reported.

Although there is no excess amount of optimism current in the garment trade over the Spring outlook, some firms are doing a business that is described as surprising. One of these is a leading style house making tailored dresses. Its lines for Spring were presented a short while ago and orders that total several hundred thousand dollars are said to have already been placed. The position of this concern, however, it is pointed out, is somewhat different, and this accounts for the substantial amount of early business placed in generally quiet conditions. The firm concentrates its production usually on comparatively few lines. It has been found to work with a remarkable certainty and correctness in its styles and this has built up in the buyer's mind a large amount of confidence which hastens early orders.

Foreign Buying on Large Scale.

Despite the unsettled conditions abroad, particularly in Central Europe, the foreign buying subsidiary of the Alfred Fanti resident buying organization was able to deliver 95 per cent. of importations for its clients within the specified date limits. This was stated yesterday by John W. Thorne, Vice President of the concern, who leaves today on the Olympic for the foreign markets. He added that he was optimistic concerning deliveries of merchandise for the 1924 season. Up to date present contracts have been placed with ninety-eight stores, having an annual retail volume of $400,000,000, which will do all their foreign purchasing through the Fanti concern. Mr. Thorne will remain abroad until the latter part of January, gathering merchandise in preparation for the next showing of samples that will be held in the Hotel Pennsylvania from Feb. 10 to April 10. The entire roof of the hotel will be used for the display, of more than 100,000 separate articles of foreign origin.

New Silk Association Formed.

To combat certain evils in the silk trade a new association, known as the Associated Silk Industries of America, is being organized. The members will include broad silk manufacturers and their factors only, and the new body, it was said yesterday by J. L. Wolf of the Ferty Fort Silk Company, its spokesman, hopes to gain the approval of the Silk Association of America and to work in harmony with that organization. Many manufacturers, both large and small, he said, have signified their intention of joining. Chief among the evils to be fought in that of unjust returns of merchandise on flimsy pretexts. Steps will also be taken to have all orders for goods over $50 written on standard order blanks in place of the large present percentage of verbal ones. It is also planned to station an agent in the Far East to advise raw silk market conditions. Later on a co-operative system of buying will be organized. A style service will be created by which manufacturers will be advised of the latest tendencies affecting manufacture and when danger of overproduction exists. An organization meeting will be held at the Hotel Astor on Dec. 20. Harry Levy of the Luvan Silk Company is temporary Chairman.

SEES POLITICS IN TRANSIT.

Dahl Says City-Run Bridge Cars May Prove Costly Experiment.

The charge that the City Administration was playing politics with the operation of municipal cars across Williamsburg Bridge was made yesterday by Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation. Operation of fifty municipal bridge cars under the direction of Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, began today at 2 A. M., and was marked by the simultaneous withdrawal of through surface car service across the bridge by the B. M. T. and the Brooklyn City Railroad Company.

Mr. Dahl quoted a report to the Board of Aldermen on which the board predicated its resolution authorizing the operation of the city bridge cars in 1920. This report said operation of the cars would "prepare those in charge the better to grapple with the problem of municipal operation which confronts the city in its larger aspects."

"Therefore," Mr. Dahl said, "as the operation of city cars on Williamsburg Bridge is an experiment in municipal operation to enable city officials to learn how to 'grapple' with transit problems, it is only fair that the people should know that all the costly delays, inconveniences to the traveling public, discomforts and expenses, not to mention extra fares, is the price which the people have to pay in order that the city may play politics with transit."

"If operation of city cars on Williamsburg bridge results in public inconvenience; if the merchants of Brooklyn and Manhattan suffer business losses because of the changes in the service, and if some 40,000 passengers, twice each day, have to pay an extra fare to the city, the city is responsible and not the B. M. T."

Mr. Dahl replied to Mr. Whalen's assertion that the B. M. T. was nothing but the old B. R. T. under a new name. "The B. M. T. is not 'masquerading,' to use the Commissioner's unfortunate word, for the old B. R. T. or for any other interest or corporation," Mr. Dahl declared. "Ever since the complete reorganization last June the directors of the B. M. T. have endeavored to consider all problems affecting transit as business questions in which the public is interested, rather than as poltical problems. They have but one aim, better metropolitan transit, which means adequate service and sufficient revenue to maintain that service. This necessarily involves fair treatment from the city authorities."

Mr. Whalen yesterday repeated his assertion that the B. M. T. was the old B. R. T. under another name. He said Mr. Dail had been added to the organization as "window dressing."

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Dun's list of minimum wholesale commodities prices not only showed more advances this week than for a very long time, but the upturns showed a substantial excess over the declines. The excess, however, was supplied by the numerous advances shown in domestic wool. Despite the general upturn of the list, the foodstuffs sections showed nearly twice as many declines as advances. Some important declines in the dairy products were shown.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

†Nominal.

Ten of the sixteen changes in the foodstuffs this week were downward. Spring patent flour dropped 10 cents a barrel in the local provisions list, but Winter soft straight flour did not change. Middle Western lard and bacon were also cheaper here, but there was no change in hams. At Chicago the only decline for the week in provisions was in live hogs. Live beef and sheep, as well as mess pork and sheep, showed no change either way.

The feature of the week in the local dairy list was the break of 7 cents a dozen that took place in near-by fancy eggs. The decline brought them 7 cents a dozen under the comparative prices of last year. Fresh-gathered "firsts," which dropped 2 cents a dozen, are also 7 cents under the corresponding 1922 price. The best butters in the list advanced half a cent and a cent a pound.

Neither the fresh nor the dried fruits in the list showed change either way this week, while in the vegetables the only rise was in cabbage, which went up 50 cents a barrel. The declines were confined to choice pea and choice red kidney beans. The beverage list also was bare of changes, while in the spices the revisions were confined to a rise in Cochin ginger and a decline in Mombasa red pepper. Both fine granulated and 96-test raw sugar advanced.

The metals markets showed more advances than this week's list of one time. Not only were four of the five listed grades of pig iron higher, but advances were noted also in furnace and foundry coke. Copper, spelter, lead and tin were all higher. No declines were seen. The only change in the lumber list was a drop in plain red gum lumber.

In the hides the only changes were declines in Colorado stocks and in Chicago City calfskins. Leathers continued to show no change. The revision in the grains were all downward. They took place in wheat, corn, rye, hay and straw.

In the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils eight of the twelve changes were downward. None of them was of particular importance. No changes were listed in the naval stores. Both the best Brazilian and the best plantation crude rubbers were lower, but the only changes in the paper list were declines. They occurred in chip boards and in No. 1 old paper mixture pulp. In the miscellaneous changes were a rise in common Hudson River brick and a decline in hops.

No marked changes in the textiles were seen this week. Most of them took place in unfinished cotton goods, which were higher in several instances. Leading lines of percales were withdrawn for the time being. Changes in the burlaps were unimportant, but the general tone of the market here was weaker.

BUSINESS RECORDS

FAILURES OF THE WEEK.

BRADSTREET'S reports 287 failures for the week in the United States, as compared with 406 for the previous week and 409, 407, 296, 92 for the corresponding weeks 1922 to 1919. The New England States had 21; Middle, 66; Western, 56; Northwestern, 48; Southern, 50; Far Western, 48. Canada had 51, against 51. In the United States about 65.5 per cent. of the concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less and 19.1 per cent. had $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

Corporation Buys Six-Story Audubon Hall Apartment on Heights Corner.

Audubon Hall, a six-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Broadway and 167th Street, valued at $525,000, has been sold by A. L. Silverstein to the Raynes Realty Corporation. The building occupies a plot 174 feet by 100 and contains forty-two apartments with eight stores.

The building yields an annual rental of $70,000, and was purchased by the seller from the builder in 1912. Louis Canter & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

The nine-story apartment at 35 and 39 West Eighty-second Street on a plot 98 by 102.2 feet has been sold by the A. H. Levy Realty Company to the Archibald Realty Company. It accommodates 27 families and has a rent roll of $27,000.

Solomon Ginsberg, operator, sold 554-556-558 West 181st Street, three apartment houses near St. Nicholas Avenue. The plot is 125 by 120. These buildings were bought for an investment. L. Willis and Sol Friedman were the brokers.

A. D. Rockwell, Jr., sold for Mrs. Catherine Loughran the five-story apartment house at 66 East 121st Street to a buyer for investment and occupancy.

Butler & Baldwin, Inc., have sold for the Samax Realty Company, Inc., Jack Rimmelman, president, to a client for investment the five-story and basement tenement on a plot 37 by 100, at 144 West 103d Street. This property rents for $8,000 and was held at $80,000.

Frederick Brown resold the two five-story tenements with stores at 353 and 355 West Forty-third Street purchased a few weeks ago. Daniel and L. Korn and Maximilian Winston are the new owners of the property, which they purchased through H. H. Hassiton. The two houses cover a plot 50 by 100, situated opposite the convent school and Church of the Holy Cross.

The houses now rent for $10,718 a year. There are three four-room suites on a floor in each house.

Operators in Many Deals.

Isidore B. Keller, the operator, purchased from the Goodyear Realty Corporation through Max Stadlen, broker, the six-story apartment, on a plot 50 by 100, at 200 West 143d Street. The premises rent for $14,000 and are now held for $100,000.

Mr. Geller also purchased premises at 709 East 156th Street, which is a block-front, facing on three streets, East 156th Street, Westchester Avenue and Hinton Avenue. The building is on a plot 87 by 117, irregular, is occupied by six stores and is arranged for five and six room apartments, and is tenanted by twenty-five families. The building rents for $20,000 and was held at $136,000. The sale was negotiated through John Acito & Co., brokers.

The same operator also purchased the tax exempt building at 153 East 169th Street, adjoining the corner of Grand Concourse, which is 70 by 113. The building was purchased from the builder, Feraca Building Corporation, and is arranged for three and four room suites, and is tenanted by thirty families. The sale was negotiated by Max Stadlen, broker. The premises rent for $35,000 and are held at $170,000.

Isadore B. Geller, as President of the same company, also purchased the five-story double flat known as 971 Columbus Avenue, adjoining the corner of 109th Street, which is arranged for two stores and two six-room apartments on a floor. The premises rent for $6,000 and are held at $65,000.

Mr. Geller also purchased 125 East 110th Street through Joseph Rauschkolb, broker, which is a five-story building, on a lot 25 by 100, the building being arranged for three and four room suites. The premises rent for $6,500 and are now held at $50,000.

The same operator also sold the three six-story buildings, on a plot 112.6 by 100, 1,422, 1,426 and 1,428 Amsterdam Avenue, recently purchased by him from A. J. and B. Frankenthaler. The premises are 37.6 by 100 each and arranged for two stores and four and five room apartments. The buildings are occupied by seventy-two families and rent for $22,000, and were held at $375,000. Premises 1,422 Amsterdam Avenue were resold through Max Stadlen, broker, and premises 1,426 and 1,428 Amsterday Avenue, were resold through E. Harris, broker. Abraham M. Geller acted for Isadore B. Geller in all of the transactions.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The disturbance central Thursday night over Illinois moved mostly northeastward diminished in intensity and Friday night its centre was over Ontario. This disturbance has been attended by general rains within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic States.

Another storm was central Friday night over Utah, whence it will move east-southeastward. It has already been attended by snows over the Northern Rocky Mountain and Northern Plateau regions and by rains in the Pacific States, and it is being followed by rapidly rising pressure and decidedly colder weather over the Western Canadian Provinces and the Northern Rocky Mountain region. The temperature has risen in the Atlantic States and the West Gulf States.

In New England and Eastern New York Saturday will be cloudy and some colder in Vermont and probably fair Sunday. In the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States the weather will be generally fair, with moderate temperature Saturday and Sunday.

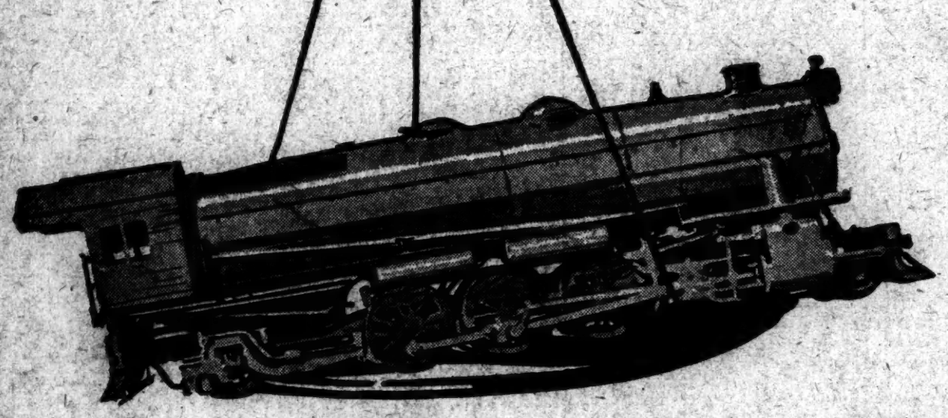
PUBLIC LEDGER

IN TEN YEARS the Public Ledger circulation has increased from 45,000 to over 285,000 daily. In the same period its advertising lineage per year increased from 5,000,000 lines to 27,000,000 lines. Its news service and features are distributed to newspapers from Canada to the Argentine and from Cuba to the Islands of the Pacific.



Chewing Gum to Locomotives

Whatever the product—if it has merit—if it has a market in the rich and populous area of Metropolitan Philadelphia—the Public Ledger will sell it. Not only effectively, but economically.

With its morning and afternoon editions, the Ledger completely blankets this great territory. With its tremendous prestige and authority, it wields a buying influence that is incalculable.

The Public Ledger, for more than three-quarters of a century, has been the one morning newspaper read regularly by the business and professional men of Philadelphia and in the homes of influential, well-to-do citizens.

Its aggressive leadership in the promotion of local enterprises—its furtherance of great national and international movements—its unsurpassed, world-wide news service—have won this distinction for the Morning Ledger.

The Evening Public Ledger—with its popular features—reaches the great industrial sections of Philadelphia, supplementing—not paralleling—the Ledger's morning circulation.
